Village waiting for details on freight terminal

Until the Wheeling village board gets some concrete answers about the operations of a proposed motor freight terminal, the preliminary plans for that project will go unapproved.

The plans were presented to the board Monday night, however, several trustees expressed concern about the exact operations of the terminal. They felt the information presented to them was inadequate and more specific details were necessary before they could make any judgments.

A spokesman for the developers, The First American Realty Co., could not give any specific details on such items as:

- When will the heaviest traffic be coming to and going from the terminal?
- What will be the noise level of the trucks using the terminal?
- What exact routes will be used to and from the area?

VILLAGE PRES. Ted Scanlon said he did not want the developers to get the idea that the village was being negative about the project. "We just feel we have some important questions to be answered that will affect the entire community," he said.

Several trustees agreed with Scanlon and said they just wanted all the questions answered beforehand. Trustee Al Lang, however, said he did not favor the project before and still doesn't because it will add to the already heavy traffic problem on Hintz Road.

The terminal is proposed for the southern portion of the realty company's 89-acre site, which it calls the South Wheeling Industrial Park. It is located south of Hintz Road and immediately east of the Soo Line R.R. It is bordered on the east by an unincorporated Wheeling Township residential area.

Trustee William Hein said he did not agree with the action his board was taking. He was confused as to why it would delay something already approved by the plan commission Aug. 23.

HEIN WENT uninterrupted for several minutes saying the board was being unfair to hold up the project and said that all the questions were answered before the plan commission.

The developer agreed with Hein and said he would like to start building soon and more delays could mean abandoning the project. Scanlon said that he was doing everything in his power to get the project through the board, but would not take action until it was done in the "safest and best way."

"We want you to be a happy neighbor and one more week isn't going to hurt the project," Scanlon said. The developer said he would try to arrange to have the operators of the terminals at next Monday's meeting.

There are to be three terminal buildings on the southern 39 acres of the industrial site. The buildings are to be operated by All American Transportation, McLean Trucking and Gateway Trucking.

The northern part of the development is to be used for light industry. The developers also plan to put in a road through the site that would enter and exit onto Hintz Road.

Library expects OK for demonstration service funds

The Vernon library committee expects approval within 30 days of a two-year grant to provide demonstration library service to most township residents.

Vernon Township is not within the boundaries of any library district. The library committee, made up of representatives of the communities, was established last year to consider the formation of a new Vernon Township library district.

The proposed district would include all of Vernon Township except Mundelein, Indian Creek, Vernon Hills and Mettawa. Residents of these areas have indicated they want to be included in the proposed Cook Memorial Library District.

The North Suburban Library System (NSLS) is seeking a two-year financial and service grant under Project Plus (Promoting Larger Units of Service) to establish Vernon area demonstration library service. The state organization encourages the establishment of new library districts by providing funds for demonstration service. NSLS will also cooperate in funding the project.

THE DEMONSTRATION service proposed includes a facility at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View and a bookmobile that is scheduled to make three stops per week in the Lake County Buffalo Grove area.

The service is expected to cost about $70,000 for the first year.

Library cards will be free to residents and also will be good at any other library that is an NSLS member. A registration drive will be conducted shortly during which residents may sign up for the cards at several area locations and probably in the schools.

In a press conference Tuesday at Stevenson High School, Robert McClarren, NSLS systems director, said after nine months of demonstration service, a referendum will be conducted to determine whether the proposed Vernon Township library district will be created.

IF THE referendum is successful, the NSLS and Project Plus grants will be available to provide service for the second year until taxes are collected.

Buffalo Grove Lake County residents will be polled in a separate referendum Feb. 1 to ask if they would prefer being included in the proposed Vernon Township district or annex to the Wheeling Public Library District. The Wheeling district serves the Cook County portion of the village.

If residents vote to annex to the Wheeling Library District, that district plans to conduct an annexation referendum in May of 1974.

High school cadet gets a taste of life in the Navy

by JILL BETTNER

Cadet Lt. Emil Hynek went to sea last summer. He was one of the first NJROTC cadets in the country to participate in a program to give high school students a taste of real Navy life.

Hynek, a junior at Wheeling High School, is in his second year of the Navy Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

Until last summer, most of Hynek's knowledge about the Navy was learned in classes along with fellow cadets. Then he got the unique opportunity to live and breathe the real thing.

Hynek spent six weeks as part of the crew of the USS Rigel, a refrigeration supply ship that replenishes other ships in the Mediterranean Sea.

Berthing with the rest of the sailors, Hynek took his turn in "the pit," the ship's engine room, and in swabbing the decks and hoisting semaphore flags.

BECAUSE THE ship's crew was short-handed, Hynek and the other 17 NJROTC cadets from other units in the Ninth Naval District aboard worked some long hours. They often stood six-hour watches instead of the normal four-hour duties.

Hynek, assigned to the machinist's division, said he enjoyed the work, though, that included repairing the bilge pumps, operating the boilers and using evaporators which turn sea water into fresh water for use on the ship.

He was also involved in the transfer of goods from the USS Rigel to the other ships the vessel met at sea. Some of the well-known ships Hynek saw included the USS Guadalcanal, a helicopter carrier, and the USS Independence and the John F. Kennedy, both large aircraft carriers.

CADET LT. EMIL Hynek, a junior in the NJROTC program at Wheeling High School, spent six weeks last summer aboard the USS Rigel, a refrigeration supply ship in the Mediterranean Sea. He was among the first high school NJROTC cadets in the country to have a chance to get some first hand Navy experience on board ship.

"I think I really got to know what the Navy was all about," Hynek said. "On ship, you really live and work the Navy — you're not a cadet anymore, you're just like a sailor."

And just like any red-blooded American sailor, Hynek took good advantage of his liberties when the ship put into several ports.

On the trip, Hynek visited Athens, Greece, La Spezia and Naples, Italy and Rota, Spain. The cadets were free to tour the cities and Hynek was able to pick up souvenirs at a Navy exchange store.

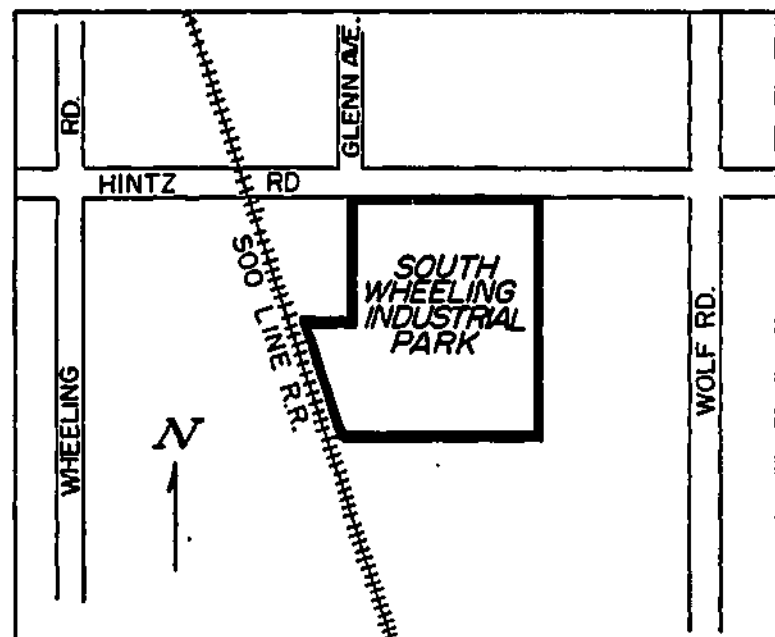

Although the Navy program to give NJROTC cadets experience aboard ships was started two years ago, Wheeling High School was able to send a cadet for the first time this year.

HYNEK WAS chosen to represent the local NJROTC unit by naval science instructor, Capt. Adrain Lorentson, USN (Retired). The trip was financed by the unit and a $100 donation by the NJROTC Parents Association.

Lorentson said the Navy program is especially valuable because most NJROTC units are unable to get much experience aboard real ships. The Wheeling unit makes trips to Great Lakes Naval Base to tour ships there and each Easter vacation, the cadets travel to a coastal port. The time on board the ships though, is usually limited, Lorentson said.

Hynek plans to attend Marquette University where he will participate in the college NROTC program. The NROTC program requires the cadets, who graduate as Navy ensigns, to spend four years in the service. Hynek said he would like to go into operations, which involves navigation, communications and the general handling of the ship.

Hynek is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hynek, 1300 Anthony Ln. in Wheeling.

THIS MAP shows the approximate location of the proposed South Wheeling Industrial Park. The south 39 acres of the site are planned for three motor freight companies that would operate about 75 trucks in and out of the area daily. The only entrance and exit planned for the park is on Hintz Road.

Sexual assault charge leveled

A 30-year-old Mount Prospect man has been charged with deviate sexual assault and unlawful restraint after an alleged incident involving a 24-year-old Wheeling woman.

Mount Prospect police said Ernest G. Martinez, 1001 Cottonwood Ln., was arrested at 6:30 a.m. Sunday and charged with the two offenses. According to police, the woman had agreed to a date with Martinez by telephone for Saturday night. She told police she had never seen him before, but he apparently knew her roommate.

After dining and visiting a number of lounges for drinks, Martinez took the woman back to his apartment rather than to her car, police said. The woman told police the sexual incident followed, and she was overpowered by the man. She allegedly left Martinez's apartment after he had fallen asleep.

Police said they found undergarments belonging to the woman in Martinez's apartment after they were called to the scene. The woman met them in the street.

Martinez is scheduled to appear Oct. 3 in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

CAC meet canceled

Wheeling Trustee Bill Hein has called off an organizational meeting of the Citizens Action Committee scheduled for tonight.

Hein said the meeting, which was to be at Heritage Park, at 7:30 p.m. has been canceled because of a scheduling problem. He said it will be rescheduled for a future date.

Electronic landing system urged for O'Hare runway

The National Transportation Safety Board Tuesday recommended installation of an electronic landing system at O'Hare Airport runway 22R.

A DC-8 cargo aircraft severed power lines in the Des Plaines area June 18 in an approach to the runway. The accident prompted a city-county request to close the runway — which uses a visual approach light system — until a glide-scope approach system used on other runways is installed.

The report, written by NTSB investigator George Seidlin, will be sent to the Federal Aviation Administration. NTSB has no regulatory power over airports.

The report recommends that:

- Descent below a charted "minimum descent altitude" be limited until the electronic system is reached.
- Sighting of either the runway end or visual landing system be required before descent begins.

Lack of the electronic system could limit landings on the runway, which points directly over Des Plaines, to good weather, an NTSB spokesman said. "On the other hand, more landings in worse weather could be allowed if an electronic system is installed."

Judge can enforce pollution ordinances

A judge in Cook County's pollution court ruled Monday that the county has the right to enforce its air and noise pollution ordinances within suburban city and village boundaries.

Circuit Court Judge Wallace I. Karg-man said the county's jurisdiction extends even if a suburb has a local environmental control ordinance.

Kargman's order came as part of air pollution suits brought by the county's environmental control bureau against three Northwest suburban manufacturing firms.

Kargman dismissed two cases filed by the county against Max Factor and Co., 1800 E. Touhy, Des Plaines, after attorney Julian R. Wilhelm argued that an inspector did not compare the smoke coming from the plant with a smoke density chart before citing the firm.

Kargman also dismissed one of two suits against Bell Screw Co., 1625 Chase, Elk Grove Village because the inspector was not sure he used the smoke density chart.

The county was successful in two other cases that were filed since the county's ordinance was amended to spell out that an inspector is not required to physically use the chart in determining if smoke from an incinerator violated the county ordinance.

Apportionment suit trial date to be set

A trial date in the Cook County board apportionment suit filed by Comr. Floyd Fullin will be set at 4:30 p.m. today in federal court by Judge Hubert Will.

Will will meet with attorneys for Fullin and the county board to discuss "what the issues are and how long the trial will last," said Sheldon Gardner, civil division chief in the state's attorney's office.

"My guess is that we will go to trial in 30 to 60 days," Gardner said.

Fullin is seeking an increase from 5 to 6 members in suburban representation on the 15-member board.

Agreement rejected

(From Herald News Service)
Prospects for settling labor disputes in eastern Canada's paper industry appeared more remote yesterday following rejection of a tentative agreement by workers of one company, a strike in another and a walkout that could lead to the stalling of a settlement in a third.

Canadian and American newspapers already have been forced to cut back on editorial and advertising content due to the current newsprint shortage caused by strikes in the industry.

Latest to walk out were 400 workers at the MacMillan Bloedel plant in Saint John, N.B. The workers, members of the United Paperworkers International Union, struck Sunday.

In Thunder Bay, Ont., some 1,300 UPIU members last weekend narrowly rejected a tentative agreement worked out last Wednesday between the union and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd. A strike vote was to be taken next Friday.

At Iroquois Falls, Ont., 1,000 UPIU members at the Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. mill walked off the job Sunday for the second time in three days although the union reached a tentative settlement with Abitibi Friday.

THE WORKERS at Iroquois Falls said the agreement did nothing to resolve their scheduling difficulties. They first walked out Friday morning when the UPIU-Abitibi talks broke down, then returned to work when tentative settlement was reached later in the day.

UPIU area director Jim Buchanan said the dispute in Iroquois Falls was of a "local nature" and the walkout did not constitute a rejection of the tentative agreement. He said he was attempting to arrange a meeting to resolve the dispute.

Ratification votes on the tentative contract agreement with Abitibi will be held this week at the company's nine mills. Final results were expected by the weekend.

The Great Lakes situation was complicated by the fact that a two-thirds vote is needed to approve a strike according to the UPIU constitution. A union spokesman said that getting this vote, in light of the narrowness of the rejection tally, could be difficult.

Mitchell, Stans win trial delay

John Mitchell and Maurice Stans have won a delay in the Vesco conspiracy-perjury case. In ordering the delay, trial judge Lee Gagliardi followed a recommendation by an appellate court that he reconsider his previous rejection of a plea by attorneys that they needed more time to prepare their case. Gagliardi will decide later on a trial date.

'Parochialism' mentioned in bill action

Gov. Daniel Walker has acted on another 124 bills, leaving him with 290 left from the spring session. He signed all but one of the bills. The unsigned bill, appropriating $25.5 million for the state's "parochialism" plan to aid nonpublic schools, will become law without his signature if it's found constitutional.

Carey blasts Daley, top cops

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey accused Mayor Richard Daley, James Conlisk and Mitchell Ware of deliberately covering up police corruption. Daley responded by accusing Carey of "doing little" to reduce crime in the county. He also denied Carey's charges and praised the police officials as "outstanding."

Walker, Daley will meet on transit

Gov. Daniel Walker said he is willing to meet with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and legislative leaders to discuss plans for solving Chicago's mass transit problems. Walker, who drew criticism from Republican leaders for missing two previous transit "summit conferences" suggested a Sept. 20 meeting in Chicago.

Allende beat a myth, but failed in goals

By United Press International

When Dr. Salvador Allende Gossens was elected Chile's president on Nov. 3, 1970, he shattered the Cold War myth that a Marxist could never be freely elected.

Allende, a physician and leader of Chile's Socialist party, had put together a winning coalition of leftist parties, including the Chilean Communist party.

Since then, Allende tried to move Chile in the direction of a socialist economy through legislative means — only to be frustrated by the Christian Democrats' control of Congress.

Born in the southern city of Valparaiso on July 28, 1908, Allende was a member of Chile's upper-middle class.

He excelled in his studies at the school of medicine of the University of Chile. He was active in student politics, and readings in Marxism and Leninism convinced him that revolutionary measures were needed to solve Chile's severe social and economic problems.

Like most Latin American countries, Chilean society was sharply divided between a wealthy middle and upper class and a large number of poor and landless peasants.

In 1933 Allende founded the Socialist party of Chile as an alternative to the Communist party's adherence to Soviet party line. He was first elected to office — a member of the Chamber of Deputies — in 1937.

Allende made his first bid for the presidency in 1951 in an alliance with the Communists, then outlawed.

He was defeated, and tried unsuccessfully again in 1958 and 1964. He finally made it to the top in 1970, backed by a coalition of Socialists, Communists, dissident Christian Democrats and middle-class radicals to narrowly defeat former president Jorge Alessandri with 36.3 per cent.

It was during the election of 1970 that the International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) reportedly approached the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency with an offer for funds to sabotage Allende's election.

Allende's platform called for ending inflation and unemployment; nationalization of "monopolies" such as the ITT-owned Chilean telephone system; extensive agrarian reform, revisions in the judicial system and replacement of the two-house Congress by a "People's Assembly."

He downplayed his revolutionary Marxist doctrine, instead pumping for "Chilean Socialism."

Subsequent withdrawals of funds from Chile by wealthy individuals who fled the country put the Chilean economy in a squeeze. A long series of strikes, student demonstrations and riots, and most recently a crippling transportation strike by owner-drivers of trucks, paralyzed the economy and brought most activity to a halt.

Repeated efforts to settle the strikes, including bringing military leaders into the government, failed, apparently resulting in yesterday's rebellion.

Coup in Chile; report Allende dead

(From Herald news services)

The Chilean armed forces overthrew President Salvador Allende Tuesday "to remove the yoke of Marxism." A newsman inside the presidential palace said Allende committed suicide as troops, tanks and planes stormed the palace.

Juan Enrique Lira, chief photographer for the newspaper El Mercurio, said Allende bade two cabinet members farewell inside the palace and shot himself in the mouth with a machine gun.

Lira said he saw the body of the 65-year-old president lying on a blood-stained carpet in the grand salon of the palace.

The military refused to confirm the suicide and said a communique on Allende's fate would be issued today.

He said Allende's press secretary, Agosto Olivares, also killed himself.

Allende's body was taken from the palace around 8:30 p.m., the newsman said. The decision to launch an all-out attack on the palace came after Allende refused demands that he step down, and went on national radio to call on the people to support him.

The heads of the armed forces didn't wait for Allende to surrender. Immediately after starting the attack on the palace, they proclaimed a new government, declared martial law, established a curfew and forbade civilians to carry guns.

The new junta consisted of army Gen.

Augusto Pinochet Ugarte, navy Adm. Jose Toribio Marino Castro, air force Brig. Gustavo Leigh Guzman and national police chief Col. Cesar Mendoza Frank.

They said they were acting to remove the "yoke of Marxism" from Chile and to halt the country's plunge into national chaos. They warned that any resistance would be crushed by force.

The only fighting in the country appeared to be in Santiago, and casualties appeared to be minimal.

Tuesday's coup was the culmination of months of crippling strikes which paralyzed the economy and brought the nation to the verge of economic disaster.

Armed forces leaders in announcing the coup pledged to respect workers' social and economic gains. The coup followed an aborted attempt by a tank regiment earlier in the summer to force Allende out of office.

It was the first military takeover in Chile, one of Latin America's most stable democracies, in more than 40 years.

The last Chilean president forced out of office was Carlos Ibanez de Campo, who fled the country in July of 1931 in the midst of an economic crisis and a general strike in reaction to his dictatorial policies. Ibanez had seized power in a 1925 coup.

Tapes case argued in court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House lawyers told the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday that President Nixon refuses to release the Watergate tapes "not to protect John Dean or John Ehrlichman or anyone else," but to protect the presidency itself.

Spectators jammed the 200-seat courtroom on the sixth floor of the federal courthouse as the seven appellate justices heard oral arguments in the historic battle for access to White House tapes sought by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Charles Alan Wright, the University of Texas law professor hired to represent Nixon, said there were no circumstances under which a President could be forced to disclose confidential information.

But Wright hinted that once the question was finally settled in the courts, presumably in favor of Nixon's claim of executive privilege, the President might turn over the tapes voluntarily.

Also arguing before the Appeals Court were lawyers for Cox, who wants the tapes for the federal grand jury investigating Watergate, and Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who has ruled that Nixon must furnish them for Sirica's private inspection to determine which — if any — should go to the grand jury.

The court recessed after more than three hours of arguments. It was expected to hand down a decision in time for the case to go to the Supreme Court when it reconvenes Oct. 1 for its fall term.

In a 75-minute presentation, Cox said protection of confidentiality was "outweighed by the higher value of producing evidence . . . and preserving the integrity of public trust in the government against corruption."

Wright said Cox' argument was "demonstrably unsound."

In other developments yesterday: — Sen. Barry Goldwater urged President Nixon to release selected portions of the Watergate tapes and publicly debate contested portions of testimony before the Senate investigating committee because "a complete clearing of the air is long overdue."

— Former White House adviser John D. Ehrlichman testified before the Watergate grand jury about the 1971 Ellsberg break-in which resulted in his indictment last week on burglary, perjury and conspiracy charges. He also will testify about the June 11, 1972, break-in at Democratic headquarters at Watergate and about the ITT antitrust case.

Vietnam steams up; peace seen in Laos

(From Herald news services)

The situation in Vietnam steamed up Tuesday, while strong hopes rose for an end to the long war in Laos.

The United States and South Vietnam governments teamed up in accusing North Vietnam of developing 12 airports into a vast military complex in South Vietnam since the January cease-fire agreement.

The charge is that the Communists have repaired and improved a dozen former U.S. air strips, turning them into military air fields variously equipped with light planes, jet fighters, light jet bombers, missiles and antiaircraft weapons.

ons. All the strips were abandoned after the Jan. 28 agreement.

The U.S., in a note delivered to the North Vietnam embassy in Paris, warned of "grave risks" if South Vietnamese air spaces were violated, and demanded the missiles and weapons be removed.

South Vietnam asked the International Commission of Control and Supervision to make an immediate investigation, and warned it was preparing to wage a "new war" and that it would take "appropriate measures" if the installations are not dismantled.

A Viet Cong spokesman dismissed the building and repairing of airfields as an "internal affair."

There was much better news from Laos, where Prince Souvanna Phouma said his neutralist government and the Communist-led Pathet Lao would sign a pact Friday ending 10 years of war in the country.

There was no immediate indication as to details of the agreement, but a protocol setting up a coalition government will be signed following final revisions. Talks on revision will take place today, with an initial agreement to be signed tomorrow.

Fierce fighting continued in Cambodia, particularly around Kompong Cham — the nation's third largest city — with Communist rebels firing more than 200 shells into the provincial capital.

Yugoslav plane crash kills 41

BELGRADE (UPI) — A Yugoslav jet airliner crashed into a 6,630-foot mountain peak in southern Yugoslavia Tuesday, killing all 41 passengers and crew, Yugoslav Airlines announced.

The plane, a Caravelle, was on a domestic flight from Skopje to Titograd, with 35 passengers and six crew members — all Yugoslavs — the announcement said.

Last radio contact with the plane was at 10:21 a.m. when the pilot reported he had run into a storm, police said.

The wreckage of the plane was located five hours later by a Yugoslav air force jet on desolate Maganik Mountain near Kolasin close to the Albanian border.

Record grain predictions boost hope on food levels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Slightly brightening government planners' hopes for bigger future meat supplies and better food prices, the Agriculture Department Tuesday estimated the record 1973 corn crop at 5.768 billion bushels, up 2 per cent from August.

The record wheat crop was 1.727 billion bushels, up 1 per cent from last month and soybean prospects, at a record 1.599 billion bushels, were up 4 per cent from last month.

Although some crops will still fall short of booming demand, the report showed overall that in a season of tight crop supplies and record prices, American farms are pouring out the biggest harvest in history. The "all crops" production index was up about 2 per cent from last month and, at 120 per cent of the 1967 base, was about 8 per cent above the previous 112 per cent record set in 1971.

A department economist, stressing that the impact of the estimates has not yet been assessed, said tentatively that crops of the size estimated Tuesday "may offer some additional hope that big price increases are behind us" and that future food hikes will be slower than those of the past year.

50-50 chance for strike against Chrysler Friday

DETROIT (UPI) — A top United Auto Workers official Tuesday said there is a 50-50 chance of a strike against Chrysler Corp. Friday night.

"Collective bargaining is not an exact science," said Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the UAW. "But I'd say right now there is a 50-50 chance of a strike."

While top UAW and Chrysler officials met through the day in a special committee dealing with economic matters, Mazey was explaining to union officials how to organize a "peaceful" strike.

Some 200 local officers from Chrysler plants around the nation were called to the Motor City to prepare for a walkout if one is necessary at 11:59 p.m. Friday to back up union demands for a new contract.

Chrysler's 127,500 workers would be eligible for weekly strike benefits ranging from $30 for a single man to $40 for a married man with children. The benefits would begin at the end of the second week of a strike.

The average Chrysler worker now earns about $200 a week.

Mazey said the union's strike fund now is in excess of $60 million, less than half the amount the union had on hand when it closed General Motors for 67 days in 1970. But Mazey said the union actually is in better shape.

"You're talking about nearly 128,000 workers at Chrysler against 400,000 at General Motors," Mazey said.

"Based on the size of our need we're better prepared for a strike," he said. "There is a bigger fund per member and I see no financial problems."

In an apparent conciliatory move to the union in the final week of bargaining, General Motors and Ford Monday agreed to a day-to-day extension of their contracts with the UAW past Friday night's expiration.

This takes some of the pressure off the union because both companies will continue to deduct union dues from workers' pay checks as well as paying insurance premiums.

The union will move over to Ford and then finally GM after it gets a pattern-setting contract at Chrysler.

• Things might have been different for Chile's Salvador Allende if he had taken the advice of a veteran of South American turmoil. So, at least, thinks Juan Peron, former Argentina strongman expected to be re-elected president this month, who says he cautioned Allende to work within the system and bring change through legislation, but the "poor man" didn't listen. In any revolution, said Peron, it is better to waste time than blood.

• Arriving in New Delhi aboard a Russian airliner, Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was greeted by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on his first visit to India. Castro, in familiar olive drab fatigues, stopped en route to Hanoi, after the conference of non-aligned nations in Algiers and talks with Iraqi leaders in Baghdad.

• Fellow freshmen at Southern Methodist University might be envious of 34-year old Robert Jeffrey, who was granted 21 semester hours of credit in three foreign languages. But he got it the hard way. Jeffrey, an Air Force major, learned Spanish, French and German to help pass the time with fellow prisoners during 7½ years in incarceration in North Vietnamese prison camps.

• To help cope with New York's strict new anti-drug law, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller swore in 16 new judges to handle the expected caseload. The first effects of the law, however, show the opposite: arrests have dropped sharply, presumably because pushers are setting up new spots and more addicts are seeking help.

• History was wrong, says a man who was there, in discussing the sinking of the battleship Maine. The records say it was torpedoed by the Spanish as it rested in Havana harbor, impelling the United States into the Spanish-American war. But 89-year-old Joseph Favret says the blast was touched off by sailors smoking below the ship's main deck.

• With husband David having given up his sports writing career, it was only natural that Julie Nixon Eisenhower would have to help put him through his three years of law at George Washington University. So she's taken her first real full-time job: as $10,000 a year assistant editor for the Curtis Publishing Co. of Indianapolis. Mrs. Eisenhower will work out of Washington, helping edit four children's magazines, including "Jack and Jill," and assisting in plans to revitalize the Saturday Evening Post to monthly status.

Federal health-care guidelines explained

Federal guidelines for proposed health-care plans were presented to health planning agencies of 12 Midwest states as part of a seminar sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at the Palmer House in Chicago.

Local agencies probably will have to restructure, according to George Olson, director of Community Health Inc.

Olson said a local agency would be a permanent steering committee to compile a community health plan. This plan would serve as a guideline for the agency when reviewing plans for health care facilities, including hospitals. Olson said restructuring of local agencies probably will be needed to develop objectives based on health needs, existing facilities and manpower in local communities. Health planning organizations learned Monday of the proposed regulation, allowing the agencies to review health care facility plans.

Tree-killer gypsy moths discovered in Illinois

The tree-killing gypsy moth, which can destroy oak, hemlock and white pine trees by eating the leaves, has been found in Illinois during the past two weeks.

Entomologist Roscoe Randall said two such moths have been trapped in Palos Township in southern Cook County and in Springfield. If they become established, he said, the moths can cause severe tree loss.

The moths have been serious pests in parts of New England, New York, Delaware and New Jersey. They have been slowly moving westward, usually hitching rides by laying their spongy egg masses on campers, automobiles or rail cars in the affected areas, he said. Randall urged Illinois residents returning from Eastern trips to check their vehicles carefully and destroy the eggs if they find them.

Readers of Alice in Wonderland may recall the famous battle between Tweedledum and Tweedledee. Recent research on our part has located the bridge hand that caused it.

Alice opened a 20-point two no-trump. Her partner the dormouse woke up long enough to miscount his points and take her to seven.

Tweedledum opened the jack of spades. "Third hand high," muttered Tweedledee as he put up his king.

Alice took her ace and looked around for some way to collect all the tricks. There appeared to be some slight chance if West would hold the king of hearts, so as a time saving play Alice led a low heart at trick two and stuck in dummy's jack.

It held and she proceeded to rattle off all her clubs and diamonds. She discarded one spade from dummy on the fourth club; when it came to the fourth diamond she waited for Tweedledum to discard.

He was obviously in great pain. Finally he discarded the 10 of hearts. He had thrown a spade and a heart earlier.

Alice chuckled dummy's last spade and made the last two tricks with dummy's ace and her queen of hearts.

"Couldn't you have chuckled a spade," roared Tweedledee.

"That would have set up dummy's eight of spades," yelled Tweedledum. "When you played that silly king of spades at trick one you put me in a hopeless spot."

Camp planned for handicapped

A place in the woods of their own

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Imagine a placid lake, a canopy of green leaves, rustic wooden cabins and blind child touching a tree labeled in braille.

With a little help, a 10-acre camp for handicapped children from the Northwest suburbs will no longer be a dream.

The camp, located just east of Bartlett, Ill., was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) by the state this summer.

IT IS PLANNED for use by all handicapped children of school age in the Cooperative's member school districts, but according to NEC officials, it's still a long way from becoming a reality. The camp has been vacant for several years and has been nearly destroyed by vandals. An Jeffery Inkley, NEC business manager put it, "It can't be vandalized any more than it already is — short of burning it down."

The cooperative doesn't have enough money in its budget to hire a cleanup crew or buy furnishings and equipment for the camp but NEC officials plan to start the cleanup job themselves in the next few weeks and are looking for parents, civic groups and other volunteers to donate time and money.

Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center for the retarded, one of the cooperative's education services, said he's going to get "one of those dump trucks and just start pitchin'."

CHILDREN IN Kirk Center are going to help too, Sterrett said. He hopes to make landscaping and cleanup work a project for the center's vocational education classes.

NEC officials hope to make the camp available to children with any type of handicap, physical, mental or emotional. They plan to label the trees in large type for children who have poor vision and in braille for blind children. The camp will be equipped with ramps, paths and bath facilities for children in wheelchairs.

"We want to give our youngsters a well-rounded exposure to all environments," Sterrett said. These children usually "don't know a camp experience like regular boys and girls do," he said.

"We want the students to get out there to feel, touch and experience nature," said Jeff Peterson, diagnostician at Kirk Center. Students who have problems learning language will benefit from the camp, he said because it will "arouse curiosity," and get them to ask questions, talk and learn new words.

Besides vocational projects and learning about nature, camp counselors will also teach students to play. "We teach recreation to our kids because their recreation has basically been before the TV," Sterrett said. "Anything we can do to help our kids become more independent is our real objective," he said. "We want to help them be able to fit in with others and function and become more productive members of society."

THE CAMP HAS five wooden cabins that will house 12 children each, a lodge with a cafeteria and a stone fireplace, and a craft cabin for students working on art projects. The area abounds with trees, brush and wild flowers. Students will be able to use an 11-acre lake that borders the camp site which has been approved by the state for swimming and is stocked with fish.

The camp was originally called "Sunset Camp," and was operated by a private organization in the 1940s as a summer camp for adolescent girls. It was later used as a camp for diabetic children.

Sterrett heard about the camp about a year and a half ago when it belonged to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The department operates the Herrick House, a temporary foster home located on the opposite side of the lake, but had not used Sunset camp for several years.

STATE SEN. David H. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, sponsored a bill in the state legislature earlier this year to give the camp to the cooperative. The bill was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker on Sept. 5.

The camp will be operated through an NEC advisory board chaired by Arthur Aronson, High School Dist. 214 representative at NEC. The cooperative hopes to use the land as a day camp next summer and eventually make it into a 12-month residential camp. It will be self-supporting, said Sterrett, through donations, grant money from the state and student tuition.

PRINCIPAL RON Sterrett, of Kirk Center said the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs volunteers to clean up the special education camp. It's time to "just start pitchin'."

Robbery suspect awaits hearing

A Des Plaines man charged with trying to kill a local druggist Monday during a robbery attempt was taken to Cook County Jail yesterday to await a preliminary hearing.

Wayne Imwood, 21, 1960 Welwyn Ave., will appear tomorrow in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on charges of attempted murder and attempted armed robbery.

Imwood is accused of trading shots with the pharmacist Monday morning at Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, Des Plaines.

Police said a man wearing a stocking mask and baseball cap entered the store and pulled a pistol on the pharmacist, who grabbed his own pistol and opened fire. The handoff fired back at the druggist, who police have refused to identify, and then fled the store.

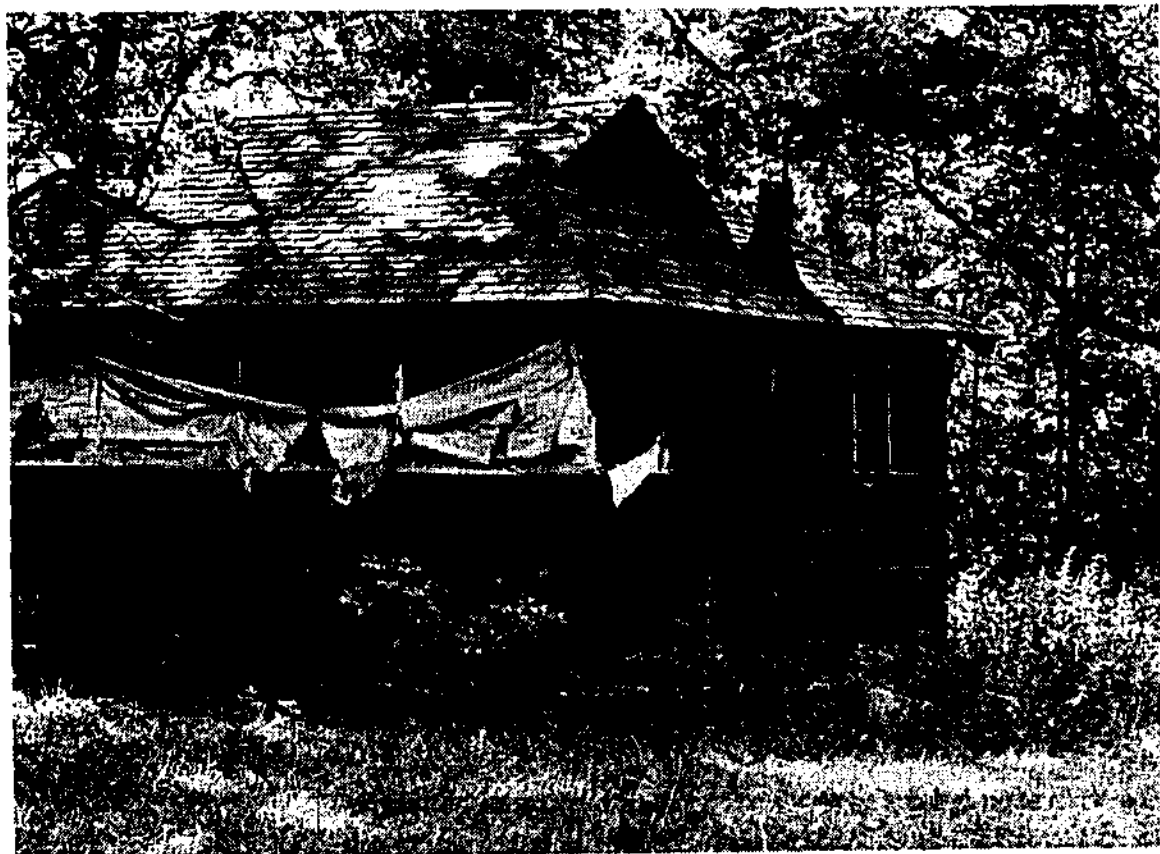

Police, alerted by a nearby postman who heard the shots, captured Imwood about 30 minutes later in a field just south of Golf Road. The postman and other witnesses reportedly told police of seeing a man fitting Imwood's description fleeing south from the store down Broadway on foot.

MONDAY'S ATTEMPT marks the third time the drug store has been hit by a gunman since Aug. 20 when a robber tied up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer after forcing the druggist to hand over two bottles of an undisclosed drug.

The store was held up again less than a week later by a gunman who again demanded a quantity of drugs. No cash was taken in either of the robberies.

IMWOOD IS currently under indictment by a Cook County Grand Jury on a charge of armed robbery naming him in the July 6, 1972 holdup of the Hynes Pharmacy, 809 Lee St., which netted $200 cash and an unknown amount of drugs.

A SUMMER CAMP for handicapped children was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative this month. The camp has been vandalized in recent years and needs major repairs before it can be used. Located near Bartlett, Ill., the camp has cabins for 60 children, a lake and a lodge. NEC hopes to open it next summer.

School lunches go from 50 to 60 cents

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 55 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 60 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

Cost of adult lunches will be higher at Arlington High School than at other schools, district officials explained, because there is a separate serving line for teachers at that school. At other schools, teachers go through regular cafeteria lines with students.

The increases are necessary because of increased prices in staple food items purchased by the district, district officials said. Cost increases range from 7 per cent over last year for sugar to 91 per cent for macaroni.

In other action, the board approved a program to provide free and reduced price lunches for students from low-income families. Under the program a student from a family of four with an income of $5,310 a year is eligible for a free lunch and the same student with a family income of $6,380 a year is eligible for a reduced price lunch.

District officials estimate about 200 students will be eligible for free lunches and about 200 more will be eligible for reduced price lunches.

Board to consider results of survey

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education will discuss the results of the John Muir School questionnaire at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the district administration building, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

Adoption of a junior high school curriculum and discussion of an agreement with the Prospect Heights Park District are also on the agenda.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 12, the 255th day of 1973 with 110 to follow.

The moon is in its full phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

French entertainer Maurice Chevalier was born Sept. 12, 1888.

On this day in history: In 1609, Henry Hudson discovered what is now known as the Hudson River.

In 1822, the Protestant Episcopal House of Bishops voted, 36 to 27, to take the word "obey" out of the marriage ceremony.

In 1966, America's Gemini 2 docked with an Agena space vehicle.

In 1972, the U.S. Senate approved a $35 billion federal revenue sharing bill.

'Estimated tax' deadline Sept. 17

Individuals filing 1973 declarations of estimated tax have an important deadline approaching. According to Roger C. Beck, Internal Revenue Service district director for Northern Illinois, Sept. 17 is the date by which third quarter estimated tax installments must be filed and paid.

Beck reminded estimated tax filers that they no longer will receive a reminder notice each quarter.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income during 1973 has changed may be required to either amend their declaration, or if they have not already done so, to file one. Space to compute the amount of estimated tax due is provided in the estimated tax package.

Further information on filing estimated tax returns can be obtained from a local IRS office.

Greatest Nixon peril: defending his former aides

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The most serious flaw in President Nixon's staunch defense of ignorance in the Watergate matter is his continued protestations of innocence of his two top former aides, H. R. (Bob) Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Most knowledgeable people in Washington recognize the power-conscious White House duo of Haldeman and Ehrlichman strongly sifted the information that got through to Nixon. They know it is possible that the President could have been unaware of some of the most obvious warning signals of the Watergate cover-up.

But, those same insiders who want in the worst way for the President to emerge blameless from Watergate find it impossible to believe that the youthful John Dean III could have or would have made a conscious effort to fool the all-knowing White House Chief of Staff Haldeman or Special Assistant Ehrlichman.

It is true, as the President says, that John Dean is the only witness directly linking him to "guilty knowledge" of the Watergate cover-up. Even in those instances, it is not alleged that President

John Ehrlichman

H. R. Haldeman

Nixon had any part in directing the destruction of records, the perjury or the payment of "hush money" to the Watergate burglars.

However, if Nixon has read the record, he must realize that there is direct testimony by a number of witnesses of the knowledge and role of both Haldeman and Ehrlichman in connection with the payment of $400,000 in Nixon campaign committee cash to the Watergate burglars and their lawyers.

While compelled to admit that they had knowledge of these payments to the Watergate burglars, both Ehrlichman and Haldeman have claimed they regarded it as "a defense fund" for the burglars and did not know it was a criminal act of buying their silence.

Ehrlichman and Haldeman defended and equated the use of Nixon campaign funds for the support of Watergate burglars with the "defense funds" that are raised for such activist figures as Angela Davis.

Significantly, Nixon at his Aug. 22 press conference drew distinctions on the payments made before the March 21 meeting with John Dean and the kind of "hush money" that Dean was suggesting.

"Basically, what Mr. Dean was concerned about on March 21 was not so much the raising of money for the defendants, but the raising of money for the defendants for the purpose of keeping them still — in other words, so-called hush money," Nixon said.

"The one would be legal — in other words, raising a defense fund for any group, any individual, as you know, is perfectly legal and it is done all the time," the President said. "But, if you raise funds for the purpose of keeping an individual from talking, that is obstruction of justice."

There is a good deal more than the testimony of John Dean to suggest that both Ehrlichman and Haldeman had knowledge indicating that the payments to the Watergate burglars were not "strictly humanitarian" desires to care for the families and pay legal expenses.

Herbert Kalmbach, then President Nixon's personal lawyer, testified that in July, 1972, he viewed the payments with such concern that he went to Ehrlichman and asked him about the legality and propriety of the payments and whether he should go forward with a plan communicated to him by Dean.

Although Ehrlichman denies he approved the payments from a standpoint of either legality or propriety, Kalmbach says he wouldn't have gone forward without Ehrlichman's okay and that he is willing to take a lie detector test to prove it.

Haldeman admits having control of a $350,000 cash fund that was eventually used to make payments to the Watergate burglars, and admits being aware of a need for funds for such payments. However, he denies his approval of delivery of the funds to Frederick LaRue, the deputy Nixon campaign director who has allegedly pleaded guilty to conspiracy to obstruct justice, was with knowledge that those specific funds would pay off the Watergate burglars.

Members of the Senate Watergate Committee already have made it apparent they consider his answers a contrived defense to avoid admitting knowing participation in obstruction of justice.

And, if that isn't sufficient to link Haldeman with a "guilty knowledge" of some of the now admittedly "scandalous" activity in the Watergate cover-up, there is the testimony of Haldeman's aide, Gordon Strachan. The young lawyer testified he destroyed relevant White House records at Haldeman's direction and reported back to Haldeman that the records that could link the White House to the Watergate burglary had been destroyed.

Haldeman admitted parts of the conversations, but denied a specific direction to destroy the records. He said he had no recollection that Strachan had reported back to him on the destruction of the records.

Those are only the most obvious corroborations for the testimony of Dean and John S. Magruder, the former deputy campaign director, linking both Haldeman and Ehrlichman to the conspiracy to obstruct justice that Dean has admitted and Magruder has formally confessed through a plea of guilty.

By unwisely linking his own defense to that of Haldeman and Ehrlichman, and stating his confidence that they will be "exonerated" in a trial in federal court, Nixon has assured himself that the Watergate matter will not be "water under the bridge."

Every bit of testimony that reflects upon Ehrlichman or Haldeman must reflect unfavorably upon the President who still tries to picture them as innocent and naive victims of the Watergate cover-up rather than major figures in directing a White House conspiracy to hide evidence of federal crimes.

McGovern aide 'refreshing'

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON — After presidential elections, the winners go to work at the White House and the losers go to work on books. Dick Dougherty, the 1972 McGovern campaign press secretary, is no exception, but still different.

The difference is that Dougherty is a good professional writer, with a sense of humor and perspective that raises his book, "Goodbye, Mr. Christian," a cut above the usual loser's campaign memoir.

Such books usually disclose that the author, be he the candidate's chief adviser or valet, had an idea that would have won the election except for the conviving of some campaign Rasputin who somehow had the Great Man's ear.

In this Dougherty is not all that different, having an idea to sell Joe Sixpack on tax reform and Sen. George McGovern and colliding several times during the campaign with Gordon Well, who was the senator's ("We never call the senator George in public") right hand, protector and nag during much of the long campaign.

Sen. George McGovern

Dougherty leaves Well in ribbons and gets some snicker-snee practice as well on Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's campaign political director of all work. And, like Theodore H. White's The Making of the President — 1972, draws an ambivalent portrait of McGovern "... a decent man, but not all that decent."

It is the fact, indeed, that Dougherty got along fairly well with most of the campaign retinue that makes the book interesting. For Dougherty, almost alone in the circle closest to McGovern, was not a South Dakotan, not a Washington type, not a Kennedy or Johnson campaign retread and not a young man burning to change the world.

Like none of the others, he brought Manhattan to the McGovern entourage. Looking like a man lately whisked away from a long lunch at Costello's establishment on Second Avenue, Dougherty brought a jaunty, wisecracking whiff of the Big Apple to an enterprise that seemed at times to be a roadshow featuring St. Francis of Assisi under the management of Marshall McLuhan.

Dougherty says he quit a good newspaper job because he shared McGovern's objections to the Indochina war and admired his courage and sense of outrage over injustice. But he obviously is a man apart from some of the approaches to domestic concerns taken by the theoreticians of New Politics and in this registers the isolation of a 50-year-old sinus-sufferer who was almost alone in the campaign with a clear recollection of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the New Deal and a Democratic Party that seemed to know what it wanted for the country.

At one stop in the campaign, a "catch-em-off-guard" TV interviewer asked the candidate if he ever "felt lonely in the crowd." McGovern may not have, but Dougherty must have. (UPI)

Herald editorial

Harper needs scrutiny

Imagine what would happen if your child's high school teacher said publicly "I suspect a student at our high school leaves here having done less writing, less talking about ideas and has had less faculty criticism of his thought processes than students at any other high school in the state."

You can see it now. Concerned parents would prick up their ears and, the next time the high school board of education met, they'd be out in force demanding to know whether the statement was true and what the board planned to do about it.

A statement nearly identical to the one cited above was made last week — but not by a high school teacher. The president of the Harper College Faculty Senate made that statement in the course of a speech in which he charged that the Harper administration threatens to make the college "an overblown, dispirited and generally bad institution."

Those are strong and serious charges that the Faculty Senate president made. And though it is too early to say with any confidence whether they are true, they certainly demand public attention.

If the history of Harper continues as it has done in the past, however, the charges probably will not generate the public interest they deserve. The reason is simple — the amount of public involvement with Harper, as compared to the amount of public involvement with the elementary and high schools in the Northwest suburbs, is infinitesimally small. This is true even though more than 10,000 persons were either full or part-time students at Harper last year.

But disinterest doesn't need to be the case. Harper College is governed by a locally elected board, as are the other local public schools. The board sees very little of the public — much less than the high school boards do, for example.

Tomorrow night at 8 the board will hold its regular monthly meeting at the college. Predictably, the audience will be made up almost entirely of faculty and staff members, with a smattering of students and maybe, on a good night, one or two members of the public who have made Harper their hobby.

But we hope tomorrow night will be different. And we urge you, as residents of the Harper College district and taxpayers, to make tomorrow different. Attend the meeting. Get a look at the college — and, maybe, launch your own investigation of the charges made by the Faculty Senate president by talking to board members, administrators, faculty members and students.

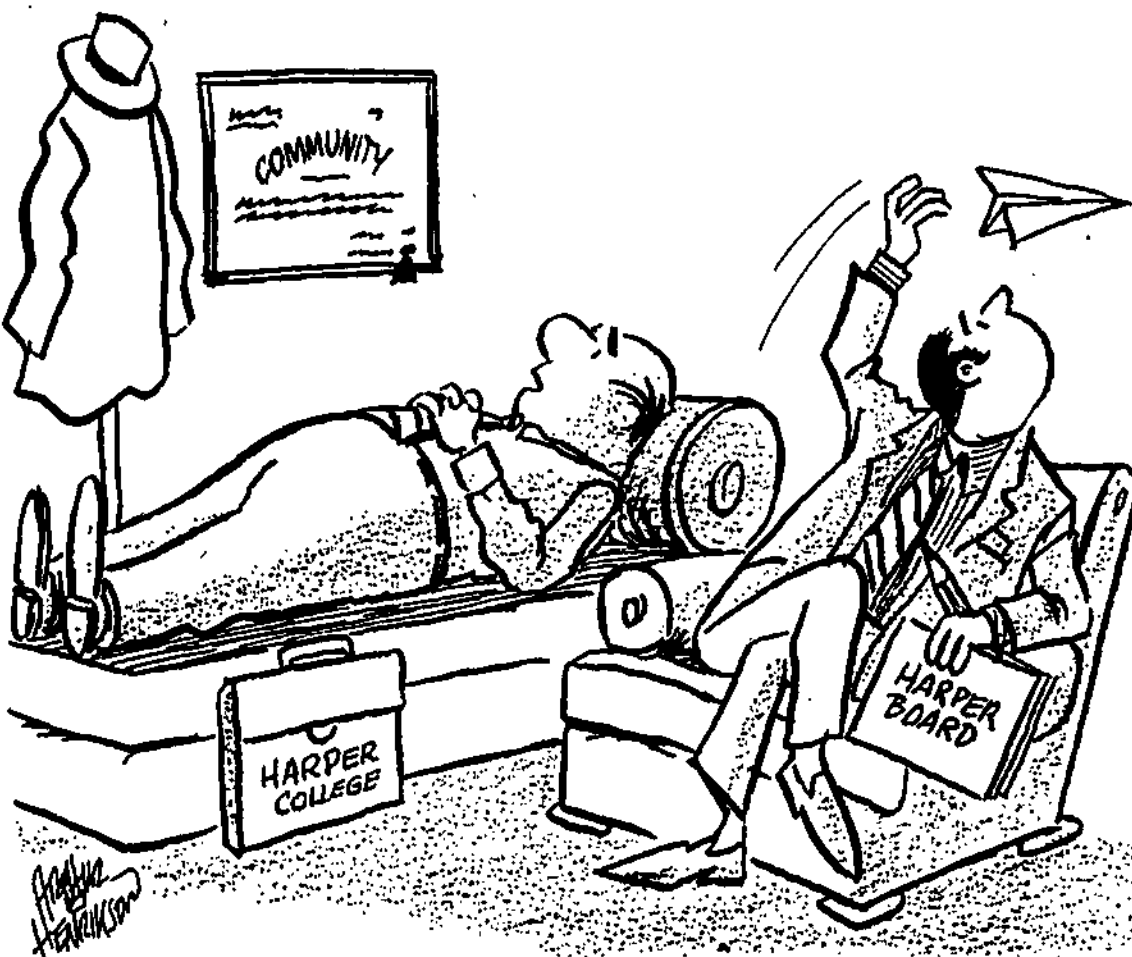

The Faculty Senate president's charges may not be true, but, even if they are not it seems to us that Harper needs help from its community.

Community involvement, after all, can help to guide the Harper board, can provide direction for the programs and can help the college over rough spots.

It is not enough that Harper create its own, hand-picked citizen's advisory committees which now work with almost every aspect of the school. You — the ordinary citizen who has been effective in keeping an eye on the local elementary schools, high schools and village governments — you are the one Harper needs.

I feel alone and ignored

'C&NW crossings need better safety devices'

Letters welcome

The Herald welcomes and encourages letters from readers. Letters are published in "The Fence Post" column; no anonymous mail is considered for publication, and we will not withhold names on request. Letters in excess of 200 words are subject to condensation. Direct your mail to Herald Fence Post, P. O. Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.

A few weeks ago one of our young citizens was killed by a train while cycling through our main business district. Most of us apathetically shook our heads in sympathy and put the blame on human error. Are we being remiss? We read periodically of a pedestrian-train or cyclist-train accident along the North Western line. At the present time warning gates are lowered to warn of approaching trains.

As an automobile driver, cyclist, and pedestrian, I feel this is a fairly safe method of warning alert adults. However, I also believe that fairly safe is not enough. Arlington Heights is a very active town, with many hundreds of citizens crossing the tracks during each day. They deserve maximum protection. There have been times when I have been tempted to cross tracks when the gates were lowered but there was apparently no train visible. Few can honestly say they haven't had the same temptation; whether walking or driving a vehicle.

While the lowered gates system has been in effect for decades, has it kept up with the growth of the Northwest suburbs? Arlington Heights alone supplies approximately 10,000 commuters daily in and out of the city of Chicago. I feel therefore that the voice of Arlington Heights should be loud and clear and if there is room for safety improvement on the part of the railroad or the city, it should be effected.

My only personal thought at the present time along these lines is an additional warning system to be used when more than one track has a train within a few minutes of passing the other. This would hopefully be of particular benefit to pedestrians and cyclists who are not aware of the confusion during rush hour periods when there is more than one train passing through an intersection. In this time of advanced technology certainly a warning device reacting on a track upon train contact would be perfected. The present approaching train whistle is apparently insufficient. The bells on the gates are not alarming enough. Should the ambulance after the accident be more alarming than the warning? A copy of this letter is being sent to the North Western Railroad Safety Director. If you have comments, please express them.

It took a good 'hate' to quit smoking

Dear Dr. Lamb — Nine years ago when I was 55 I had been smoking the well known two packs of cigarettes for 35 years, not that there had been any enjoyment of it during the last 10 or 15 years, just habit — and the seeming impossibility of quitting. No amount of tapering off, no amount of trying to cut down, no drug store aids had any real effect. No advice by doctors or friends enabled me to stop the habit. Then one night when I went to bed my leg went numb, and even though I sat up and had a shot of whiskey, I had trouble restoring the circulation to my leg.

While all of this was going on, I thought about an acquaintance who had smoked and drank up a storm and was told by his doctors to quit smoking or "off comes that leg." He didn't quit and off came the leg. Then the doctors told him quit or pretty soon off comes the other leg. Well, he did quit smoking, along with breathing, eating, and living. My conclusion was simple, damn it man, you are killing yourself. And for what, something you don't even enjoy or want. Then I transferred my outrage to a mythical someone else who was trying to kill me. What do you mean I can't quit? The hell I can't. I just did.

Sure it was rough for a couple of weeks, but there was an exuberant fun along with it. It was a feeling of victory. I did have a mind, I did have the power to simply laugh at the very thought of giving in. It was cumulative. Food tasted better than I had remembered for years.

If you really want to stop, just get good and stinking mad at the person who is literally killing you. Take it as a personal challenge and see what happens.

Dear Reader — Thanks for sharing your experience. I agree with you that if, psychologically, you are able to direct your hostility toward cigarettes and consider them as an outside enemy, that it could help you kick the habit. Individuals devise different ways of helping them to quit and your history is one way which works for some people. I might add that it certainly is true that individuals with circulatory problems to the legs, who continue to smoke, can, and do, lose their legs as a result of their cigarette habit.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please explain what these two words mean. Hyperglycemia and hyperlipidemia.

Dear Reader — "Hyper" means increased — the hyper-active child is an overactive child. The ending "emia" refers to blood (anemia means without blood which isn't strictly correct, even for people with this problem). The syllable "gly" comes from glucose or glycogen meaning a type of sugar. Thus, the word hyperglycemia means an increased amount of sugar in the blood.

"Lipid" means fat or fat-like, thus hyperlipidemia means increased amounts of fatty substances in the blood. Part of the problem of understanding medicine is the vocabulary. The language barrier sometimes makes it difficult for patients to understand their doctors.

TV Aggravation

by Ed Lundwehr

Ninety-nine percent of our TV servicing is simple and of the general type. But every once in a while, a tiny hair line crack across a printed circuit, practically invisible, can create havoc. This connection makes and breaks in response to the slightest changes in movement and temperature.

These are the times when our modern electronic servicing equipment and our complete files of all set circuitry is so important for accurate maintenance. With little extra time we can ferret out this trouble and have your set in good operation. This is one of the reasons that Lundwehr's Home Appliances, is growing. When you phone 255-0700 for service, there are no three and four calls. We do the job the first time. Ask your neighbor about us.

COFFEE BREAK THIS year was a birthday party, with the cakes replacing the usual sweet rolls. Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, left, and Eleanor Rives, at coffee urn, greeted the club representatives and chatted with them until the publicity writing session resumed. About 300 women attended.

RECOGNITION FOR THEIR efforts over the past nine years in preparing for and conducting the annual Paddock Publications publicity workshops came as a surprise to Mrs. Marianne Scott, women's editor, and her assistant, Mrs. Dorie McClellan. Executive Editor Ken Knox presented each with a pin-on locket.

Workshop participants help celebrate birthday

Club representatives attending the annual Paddock Publications publicity workshop last week not only learned the ABCs of writing club news, but joined in a 10th birthday celebration of the news-writing clinic.

A special birthday cake, complete with lighted candles, decorated the main serving table during the coffee break at mid-morning, and the menu included cupcakes this year instead of the usual sweet rolls.

In appreciation of the efforts of Mrs. Marianne Scott, women's editor, and Mrs. Dorie McClellan, her assistant, in making the workshops so successful over the years, Executive Editor Ken Knox presented each with a gift locket at the first day's session in the Plum Grove Club, Palatine.

APPROXIMATELY 300 women attended the two sessions held in Palatine and at the Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines.

The first workshop was held in 1964 at the Maitre d' Restaurant in Elk Grove Village. An overflow crowd at the single session prompted Mrs. Scott and Mrs. McClellan to set up two sessions on consecutive days the next year, and that format has prevailed since.

Mrs. Scott estimated a total of between 3,000 and 4,000 club presidents and publicity chairmen have benefited from the clinic since it was started.

Until the covering a few years ago of DuPage County papers from the Herald, one clinic was held in DuPage County and one in Cook. Since then the sessions have taken place at the Plum Grove Club and the "Y."

A fun time was initiated several years ago when the entire Suburban Living staff joined Mrs. Scott and Mrs. McClellan in presenting a fashion show prior to the newswriting part of the workshop. Over the years they have modeled home sewn garments made from drapery remnants, newspaper print pattern dresses, fake fur fashions and apparel in India prints.

THIS YEAR a Latin American theme was followed with the staff modeling ponchos, evening and daytime wear and even a jumpsuit.

Participating in the fashion show besides Mrs. Scott and Mrs. McClellan were Mrs. Pat Adam, family living editor; Fran Heckert, Sugar 'n Spice editor; Genie Campbell, arts editor; Monica Wilch, consumer affairs writer; Billie Bachhuber and Eleanor Rives, staff writers; Karen Thompson, fashion editor; and Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, antiques columnist.

Staff photographer Dom Najolia assisted during the publicity writing portion of the workshop.

Speaking of . . .

The paper situation

by KAY MARSH

It's hard to keep up with what's in short supply these days; we really need to keep a little list. But even that may be difficult, considering today's paper situation.

Part of the problem is increased demand in general. Also, paper manufacturers, like the makers of many other products, are halting or curtailing production of their cheapest items. Paper makers, for instance, are concentrating production on heavier grades. These aren't really better for many uses; they may not even work as well. But they do have a higher profit margin for manufacturers and suppliers.

Now, heaven knows there is plenty of paper most of us would just as soon never receive: bills, for example; overdue notices; checkup reminders from the dentist. On the other hand, it's surprising how much paper we do use every day.

So what does all this mean to you as a consumer? Here are a few of the results, good and bad, that you might expect.

Your favorite magazines may cost more, if publishers have to pay more for heavier paper grades (plus higher postage bills to mail the heavier finished products).

YOUR NEWSPAPER may change. Because of paper mill strikes and a recent nationwide rail strike in Canada, some newspapers are instituting various paper-saving devices. Moreover, the problem may be more than temporary, since newsprint is an internationally scarce commodity.

Business forms are getting scarcer and costlier. Companies complain that they are forced to buy more expensive grades of paper even for throw-away items. While these shortages may not affect you directly, you can be sure they will affect the cost of doing business in general and that you as a consumer will ultimately help pay the bill.

Your child's notebook paper may take a bigger chunk out of the family budget, as it becomes ever harder to find bargains on big packages of filler paper. Again, more production is going into the more expensive grades. And makers of school supplies are putting what paper is available into spiral notebooks, which offer a higher price per pound of paper.

Fortune cookies may cost more. Makers say they're being forced to print fortunes on bond paper, which is much more expensive than the manila formerly used.

GIFT WRAP may be in short supply. A recent Wall Street Journal story reports that most of this year's Christmas wrap has already been produced, but that higher prices and tighter supplies may appear by Valentine's Day. An executive of American Greetings Corporation is quoted as saying that "there likely will be real shortages by the 1974 Christmas season."

Of course, there may be a few happier aspects to the paper situation, too.

Junk mail may go down, as the cost of producing it goes up. Over-packaging may decrease.

Ecology will get a boost. Such simple steps as writing on both sides, or stapling together our own scratch pads from used paper, will help save paper and money, too. On a larger scale, recycled paper is finding more and more fans, including politicians who seek to impress conservation-minded voters. And other big paper users are experimenting with alternatives. Last year, for instance, a San Francisco bank announced that it would print its checks on paper made from a sugar cane by-product, thus saving an estimated 8,000 trees a year.

PAPER POLLUTION should decrease as business firms cut down on forms and paperwork wherever possible.

Federal form pollution may even decrease slightly. A news story last year reported that one man, working full time just to find out how many federal forms exist, had gotten as high as 70,000 separate types and was still counting. As you might expect, Internal Revenue, including Social Security reports, accounted for more than a third of all federal forms.

While there have been no reports that the government is reducing forms or paperwork appreciably, there was a recent news item that at least one big printer had had to turn down a contract for this year's income tax forms, because he couldn't get the grade of paper specified.

Does this mean there won't be enough extra tax forms around for all those "trial run" computations?

Of course not. But it might be a good idea to try to get your tax forms early, say around in January.

Or just about the time you're stocking up on gift wrap for Christmas of 1974.

Sorority offers student grants

Patricia Karwat, Hoffman Estates, president of Nu Rho Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority, announced that the sorority this year will give more than $10,000 for educational grants in the specific field of guidance and counseling. Grants are awarded to college students, who will be doing junior, senior or graduate work, based upon their scholastic ability and financial need. Anyone interested in more information or securing application for a grant may call Mrs. Kenneth Suberlak, Schaumburg, at 894-4641.

Applications are reviewed by the philanthropy committee of the sorority at its meeting in February and applications for the summer session 1974 or the Academic year 1974-75 should be postmarked no later than Jan. 15, 1974.

Dominick's Day for St. Viator's

St. Viator Mothers' Club is sponsoring a "Dominick's Day" today at all Dominick's Stores.

Although this is a fund-raiser for St. Viator High School, it costs the participants nothing. After shopping at a Dominick's Store, shoppers present the "Dominick's Day" slip to the checker, then automatically, the school will receive a percentage of the total bill. Mrs. Russell Pilton can be reached at 332-1272; for slips anytime today.

BRIGHT EMBROIDERY and applique trim the electric blue poncho from Peru modeled by Fran Heckert. Her multi-colored striped embroidered blouse, worn with off-white slacks, is from Guatemala.

FOR AN EVENING WRAP, model Billie Bachhuber carries a Guatemalan reboso in stripes of black, hot pink, kelly green and royal blue to match her gay floral print skirt, worn with black bodyshirt.

A Paddock review

'South Pacific' still enchanting

by PAT ADAM

Like the South Sea Islands that inspired the original James Michener tales, the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "South Pacific" still has power to enchant.

Theatergoers still thrill to a May-December romance that ends happily, mourn a brave young man who gives his life for his country, laugh at a bunch of sailors starved for female company. And all set to lilting melodies that endure.

Despite the limitations of the small Guild Playhouse stage, Des Plaines Theater Guild has put together a most satisfying production of this ever popular musical. And a wise choice as well . . . If the packed house opening night is an indication of what lies ahead.

A gala opening night it was, too, with Guild members all decked out in South Sea islands costumes and handing out leis to their theater guests. On stage palm trees at either side and painted on the curtain helped transport the audience to the South Pacific setting of this musical.

FROM THE appealing "Dites-moi" opening number sung by two dolls, Rosemary Bastone as Ngana and Michael Grizzi as Jerome, the half-Polynesian children of hero French planter Emile de Becque, to the finale of the same song with de Becque and nurse Nellie Forbush joining the youngsters, it's indeed some enchanting evening in the playhouse on Lee Street.

Casting for this show is excellent, and while only Gil Pearson, Pat Piper and Venus Miller really have the ability to belt out a song, sweet voices abound. Certainly musical director John Shaw must take plenty of credit for the performers' doing justice to some of the best loved tunes in show biz. His orchestra should take a bow too — often the musicians are the unsung (pardon the pun) heroes of a musical.

After a few wavering moments on opening night, Pat Piper and Tom St. Leger, a newcomer to area community theater, moved into their roles as Nellie and Emile with zest. I was particularly impressed with the feeling St. Leger put into his songs and the gracefulness of his gestures. Pat does some pretty fast stepping in this show as well as sing, and that famous laundry song, "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair," is a real audience pleaser the way she renders it.

VENUS MILLER scores high as that amusing and shrewd Polynesian huckster, Bloody Mary, and Christine Gysler is delightful as the lovely Liat, especially her graceful movements in the bouncing "Happy Talk."

Some of the show's best acting is turned in by Michael Sims as the young Navy officer, Lt. Joseph Cable, particularly as he listens to Emile lament "This Nearly Was Mine." Sims' facial expressions clearly reveal the young lieutenant's agony at losing Liat. The young man also possesses a dulcet voice.

Seabee Luther Billis, that conniving operator, is convincingly portrayed by Gil Pearson, and probably one of the best numbers in the production is sung by him and the men's chorus, "There Is Nothing Like a Dame." It's usually difficult to get enough good male singers for community shows, but "South Pacific" must have been too enticing to pass up. Space prohibits listing the players, but, fellows, you were great!

GUILD VETERAN Ed Sauer turns in another top performance as the island's commander, Capt. Brackett, and Bernard Mallina is a very proper aide in the role of Commr. Harbison.

Rounding out the production are the women's chorus of Navy nurses, Bloody Mary's children and Jim Beddia, this year's president, as the pilot who drops Lt. Cable and Emile on the island where they spy on the Japanese.

The build's backstage crews have come up with their usual outstanding sets, including that elusive Isle, Bali Ha'i. The three-dimensional effect achieved through lighting plus the construction itself is worth special mention. John Grabowski and R. William Shadlenger are the ones responsible. Beth Vandenhorn handled the choreography, and Tom Ventris directed this show for the guild.

Summer's not quite over. Take a little South Seas vacation in Des Plaines. Play dates are this Friday and Saturday, Sept. 21, 22 and 23 and Oct. 6. Tickets, 296-1211.

Auxiliary opens membership

The membership drive of Elk Grove Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 9284 is now open and interested women may call the membership chairman, Mrs. Lou Champe, 437-3383.

Eligible are wives, widows, mothers, daughters and foster daughters, sisters and half sisters, grandmothers and granddaughters of men honorably discharged from the U.S. Armed Forces who are also entitled to a campaign badge for service on foreign soil in time of conflict.

At the recent national convention held in New Orleans Mrs. Howard Lundgren, state Americanism chairman and member of the Elk Grove Auxiliary, received an award for her Americanism program and the state patriotic conference which she helped to coordinate.

Mrs. Ruby Schroeder, fourth district president was guest at the recent meeting of the Elk Grove Auxiliary.

High school sweethearts wed in Mount Prospect

Forest View High School class of 1970 sweethearts, Denise Darnall and David R. Long, were married Aug. 18 in a candlelight ceremony at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

Parents of the Mount Prospect couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Darnall, 1735 Willow Lane, Mrs. Donald Long, 1207 W. Sunset Road, and the late Donald R. Long.

Denise chose a gown of satin and silk organza re-embroidered with Alencon lace and seed pearls. A Juliet cap of matching lace held her three-tiered silk illusion veil and she carried a nosegay of white daisies, yellow Sweetheart roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

Nancy Schar, Rolling Meadows, was bridesmaid for the double-ring rite. She wore a yellow flocked voile over taffeta dress flounced in a ruffle. A white picture hat and a basket of yellow and white daisies, miniature orange carnations and baby's breath completed her ensemble.

BRIDESMAIDS WERE Mrs. Carol Meier, Macomb, Ill., Gale Oswald, Chicago, and Patricia and Melissa Long, sisters of the groom from Mount Prospect. Their dresses were fashioned the same as the maid of honor but were of alternating colors of yellow and spring green. The bride designed and made the five bridesmaid's gowns and her own headpiece.

Serving as best man was Gary Werner, Mount Prospect. Seating the guests were Wayne Meier, Macomb, Joe Sommers, Springfield, Edward Johnson, Rolling

Mr. and Mrs. David Long

Meadows, and Fred Melone, Mount Prospect.

Following a buffet dinner for 130 guests at the Des Plaines Elks Club, the newlyweds left on a week's honeymoon at Lake of the Ozarks. They are now at home in Champaign where both are seniors at the University of Illinois.

Cupid visits church choir

It was while singing in the choir at Rochelle Evangelical Lutheran Church that Edward and Martha Sasthoff first met, and last Sunday they celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

Martha was born in Rochelle and Edward in Bensenville, Ill. His family later moved to a farm in Rochelle and the pair were married in the Rochelle church Sept. 10, 1913.

Edward and Martha moved to Palatine in 1923, residing at 17 E. Palatine Road for the past 27 years. They have been active members of St. John United Church of Christ, Algonquin Road, since moving to Palatine.

Edward, a retired carpenter, and Martha have two daughters, Marcella Hertz, Ponce de Leon, Fla., and Leona Sorenson, Colorado Springs. They also have eight grandchildren.

Their grandson and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Hertz hosted the anniversary dinner party in their home in Algonquin.

Their roommates dated so they did too

They discovered their roommates were dating and decided to follow suit, which led to the altar for Kathryn Anne Guebert of Red Bud, Ill., and Thomas James Murray of Mount Prospect.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Guebert and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Murray, 919 S. See-Gwin.

To exchange vows in St. John's Lutheran Church in Red Bud Aug. 18, the bride wore a Victorian gown in satin peau trimmed with Venise lace. She wore a cathedral veil and carried a nosegay of stephanotis, baby's breath, and pink roses.

Marlene Donkus of Renault, Ill., was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Judy Meyer of St. Louis, sister of the bride; Paul Murray, sister of the groom; and Lea Simmons of Waterloo, Ill.

They wore old-fashioned gowns of blue voile and blue picture hats. Their nosegays were composed of daisy mums and baby's breath.

Jodi Meyer, 9, of St. Louis, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Best man was James Newquist of Carbondale, and ushers included Tom Corcoran of Pontiac; Dave and Roger Guebert, brothers of the bride; Bill and Herb Lakemacher of Chicago and Buffalo Grove, cousins of the groom.

After an outdoor reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple honeymooned in Florida. They now live in St. Anne, Ill.

The bride and groom were graduated from Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. The groom also is a graduate of St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights. He is employed at Franklin Farms, St. Anne, while the bride is teaching at St. Anne High School.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We've had a lush garden this year and, with everything so expensive, I'd love to freeze new Irish potatoes. Can whole potatoes be put in the freezer after scalding them? — Carol Harneck

Yes. For freezing whole potatoes, use the small but perfect ones. Scrub or scrape them and wash well. Parboil for five minutes, then chill in cold water for five minutes. Then pack in your containers and pop them into the freezer.

Dear Dorothy: I imagine you take a lot of kidding about the many baking soda items. On the other hand, if they're good, why shouldn't they be in there? Obviously, I'm building up to one myself. A friend says she uses one tablespoonful of baking soda in a basin of warm water for the first rinse after shampooing her hair. She says it not only removes all soap residue, but any hair spray the shampooing didn't get. — Marge H.

I enjoy the needling — and particularly when it goes with a hint as good as this one seems to be.

Dear Dorothy: I'm the wife of a mechanic and mother of three and have found the best stain remover — whether the stain be grass, fruit, grease, felt-tip pen or anything else — is mechanics' hand soap. Put a dab on a stain, let it stay all night. Put on a little more next day, and launder as usual. It will work on anything washable. — Mrs. Ted Hall

Dear Dorothy: I've always used a wooden stick to stir a new can of paint until a friend urged me to try a wire coat hanger. With the two ends bent together and the hook stretched out so it is easily held, the four pieces of wire do a terrific job of mixing — and the hanger can just be tossed away. — Albert J.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006)

Garage sale

Plum Grove Garden Club members are sponsoring a garage sale Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It takes place at 820 S. Bennett, Palatine. The public is welcome.

Ageless fashions from Shangri-La

Fashions a la "Lost Horizon" will be modeled next Tuesday evening at 7:30 at Mary Ann Silks and Woolens, 2300 Rand Road, Arlington Heights.

Fabrics by DuPont and patterns by McCall will be featured with Ardis Anderson of Mary Ann's and Denise Moore of DuPont as commentators. "Make Your Own Shangri-La" is the theme of the show which is based on the Oriental influence of the movie spectacular.

Fun Fair Saturday at Kirk Center

A fun fair with games chosen especially for handicapped children will take place Saturday, Sept. 15, at Kirk Center, 520 S. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The fair, sponsored by Lambda Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. All proceeds go to Kirk Center as part of the chapter's service project.

Among the games will be a fish pond, lollipop tree, swinger ball and pin, tip the cat, bean bag and bumper car. Popcorn and Kool-Aid will be sold by the chapter, which also plans a cake walk during the fair.

Benefit dinner dance

Northwest Suburban League of United Cerebral Palsy will hold its annual fund raising dinner dance Saturday, Sept. 22, at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

Cost of the evening, which will include music by the Bob Mitchell Trio, cocktails and a prime rib dinner, is $30 per couple. Mrs. James Lee, 392-3408, may be called for reservations.

Celeste Ennis weds Iowa man

Celeste Constance Ennis designed her own gown for her marriage to Forrest Dean Roberts on Aug. 18 at the Lutheran Church of the Cross in Arlington Heights.

Her gown was decorated with seed pearls and featured lace sleeves and a chapel-length train. A shoulder-length veil and a white colonial bouquet completed her attire.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Ennis, 1443 S. Highland Avenue, Arlington Heights, and Mr. and Mrs. Riley W. Roberts, Newton, Iowa.

LOUISE RUDNICK, Mount Prospect, appeared as maid of honor in a white dress adorned with pale green flowers. She carried a colonial bouquet of green, pink and white flowers. Shevawn O'Connor, cousin of the bride from Riverside, Ill., was bridesmaid for the double ring ceremony and she was dressed identically to the maid of honor.

FORREST CHOSE as his best man, Ross Reinheimer, Elgin. Ushers were Kirby Moon, Mount Union, Iowa, and Larry Streeter, the groom's brother-in-law from Newton, Iowa.

A buffet luncheon reception for 85 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. Following a two-week honeymoon in the New England States and Canada, the newlyweds are residing in Arlington Heights.

Celeste is a 1971 graduate of Forest View High School and is employed as a commercial artist. Forrest graduated from the University of Iowa in 1970, and is now working for Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook.

Fall campaign should feature hot shooting

Prospect looks like team to beat in golf

NEW FACES with mixed expressions characterize the intrepid Mid-Suburban League golf teams who have embarked on an experimental fall program.

The move, necessitated by overcrowded conditions and interference with the money-making twilight leagues at various golf courses, was initiated by the MSL as a pilot for perhaps statewide adoption by the Illinois High School Association.

The switch, of course, was received with varied emotions by the conference coaches. Conflicts with football, the almost complete absence of a non-conference schedule and the "split" season that will find these same teams cranking up again in the early spring for the state tournaments, were ammunition for early arguments.

But the advantages, most notably the favorable weather theory and relief of golf course congestion, outweighed the spring drawbacks.

Now head coaches were named at three schools because of football conflicts. Bob Lorenz took over the reins at Elk Grove from former coach Brendan Flynn. Tim Schaap jumped into the Forest View job in the absence of Art Klein and Bill Schultz will pick up the Palatine program where Mark Denny left off.

Jack Berry has transferred to the controls of Buffalo Grove's new entry and Don Tancillo stepped into the post vacated at Wheeling.

Veterans Bud Bornman of Arlington, Barry Carlson of Conant, Fremd's Len Flocca, Hersey's Ken Carter, George Bork of Prospect, Mike Nisen of Rolling Meadows and Tom Jacobson of Schaumburg return for the new challenge of fall golf.

The consensus of coaches — both novice and experienced — calls for a banner year for the Mid-Suburban League in terms of performance. Most of the players participated in the 1973 spring program and continued "schooling" on their own during the summer months.

The fall schedule should capture most golfers at the peak of their form. Most have played religiously for nearly six straight months and the best scoring in the league's history is anticipated.

Defending spring champion Hersey is reinstated as a serious contender this fall with a backbone of Col Zimmerman, Jeff Kallman, Bruce Conroy, Rocky Clancy and Ed Stubbs all owning varsity experience.

Prospect, though, has been deemed by most coaches as the team to beat as Bork welcomes back a squad with both depth and talent.

The Knights are stacked with senior lettermen Rich Carlson, Craig Calkins, John McBride and Ron Swanson and junior insignia winner Craig Ridley who was named Chicagoland Junior Golfer of the Year over the summer.

Individually, there are others who may be bidding for league medalist honors. Buffalo Grove boasts a real "money player" in junior Rick Grossel who thrives in tournament action.

Wheeling owns potential standout Dave Schultz, Palatine a steady trio in Jim Arden, John Lonergan and Bob Capoun, Forest View some depth in Rick Keyser, Greg Martindale and Ron Romack and Arlington a leader in Steve Loughman.

Conant relies on Kevin Eakins, Dave Sidlin, Bob Whiting and Jim Gannon and Elk Grove will probably follow Scott Walker and Mark Christensen.

Fremd is looking to John Evans, Bob Frank and Jeff Rubak. Rolling Meadows to Tom Carlstrom, Steve Nicolett and Todd Sander and Schaumburg to Greg Gervale and Scott Richards.

While losing some players and coaches to the grid program, the teams will be making use of potential golfers who previously preferred baseball in the spring.

Perhaps the most difficult adjustment facing the linksmen this fall is the change of weather patterns — an increasingly cooler climate as the season unfolds as opposed to the progressively warmer temperatures during the spring.

On the other hand, playing conditions should be at their optimum at this time of year. Courses are in ideal shape rather in the midst of thawing as was the case in the early spring.

Perhaps the falling of leaves on the courses where the foliage is mature will hamper the players in the latter part of the campaign, but it shouldn't dampen their spirits as did the heavy spring rains and occasional snow flurries.

Most teams have booked a non-conference match with either the Lockport or Joliet schools who are also teeing off in a fall program.

Otherwise, the competition for MSL superiority will be head-to-head combat in predominantly double-dual meets. The conference clash will be hosted by Palatine at Palatine Hills in mid-October. The final ranking in the dual-meet standings plus the finish in the league meet will determine the eventual fall champion.

Mid-Suburban golfers will have all winter to think about the state qualifying eliminations that will begin with the districts on May 11.

Conant will continue to present its annual Cougar Classic — one of the largest and most prestigious tournaments — for area viewers on April 27 as a tuneup for the state playoffs.

Fremd, Palatine romp in cross country action

Conant surprises; Maine West tops Hersey

by LARRY EVERHART
Cross Country Editor

Results pretty much followed the form sheet as the Mid-Suburban League kicked off a new cross country schedule Monday evening with Maine West also joining in. All 12 MSL teams were in action in four double duals.

Closest thing to a surprise was Conant — not the fact that coach Jack Ary's Cougars won (they were expected to be tough with nine good lettermen back), but more the ease with which they won. Conant smashed Arlington by an almost perfect score and also trounced Prospect — and the Cardinals and Knights are not expected to be slouches.

Maine West served notice that it may have one of its best teams to add to a strong tradition. It nipped Hersey — the area's strongest finisher last year — but the Huskies swept Schaumburg and Elk Grove in league action.

The other two meets were romps for Fremd, favored to take the MSL crown, and Palatine. The Vikings of coach Ron Menely won by perfect 15-0 scores over both Wheeling and Forest View, and Palatine had no trouble with Rolling Meadows and Buffalo Grove.

Also no surprise was that Schaumburg's Arnie Jackson turned in the most impressive individual showing. Underfeated in the league last year and having apparently fully recovered from a hip injury that sidelined him in the latter part of the spring track season, Jackson toured the just-under-three-mile Busso Woods course in Elk Grove in 15:02 — 51 seconds ahead of second-place Ron Stephani of Hersey.

In the four-team affair overall, Hersey also got a fifth from Jay McCarthy (16:10) and sixth by Chris Cooney with no one else higher than 10th.

Maine West had the best team balance with third, fourth, seventh, eighth and ninth. In order, they were Greg Klebe (15:58), Glen Oland (16:00), Brian Dunavont, Kevin Skahan and Paul Frost.

In dual scores, thus, Maine West won all three, Hersey beat Schaumburg 20-39 and Elk Grove 15-50, and Schaumburg topped Grove 10-40.

Conant was highly-impressive with six of the top seven places. Only Jeff Chamberlain of Prospect, with second place, invaded the blue bunch. Dave Elderkin won the 2.75-mile race at Union 76 Oil grounds in 14:52 and Cougars following in order were Mark Kaufman (15:05), John Bond, Rick Jensen, Dave Mansolf and Steve Watton.

Greg Toblax and Rich Reithal were next for Prospect and Arlington's highest finish was 10th, by Mike Hoseman.

Fremd was even more dominant against Wheeling and Forest View with the first 10 placers all wearing green and gold. John Miller won the three-mile event at Wheeling in 15:42 and others in order, spaced just a few seconds apart, were Eric Inbody, Jim Galls, Dave Scott, Wilson Fieldhouse, Mike Rohrer, Steve Henriks, Geoff Bolton, Chuck Ruppenthal and Paul Kinyon.

Tony Hess led Forest View with 16:21 and August Zicceralla paced Wheeling with 16:24.

Palatine ruled to the tune of seven of the top eight places, the only intruder being Rolling Meadows' Mike Scott with sixth (15:49). Dave Teble led the Pirates with 15:00, John Thullen was 10 seconds behind, Carl Kiewert 12 seconds back, and others Paul Kearns, Rick Schell, Pete Kearns and Mike Masuel.

Next for Meadows were Jim Conroy and Steve Lehman. Jeff Schuster led Buffalo Grove in its very first league meet ever with 14th place.

Fremd opens with fall golf triumph

Fremd became the first team to enter the victory column in the Mid-Suburban League golf standings with a 166-174 decision over Elk Grove. The match marked the opening of the fall golf season.

Viking junior Cliff Garcia paced the winners with a three-over 39 on the Indian Lakes' par 36 Ironquels layout. Jim Higley added a 41 and Bob Frank and Jeff Rubak carded 43's.

Fremd completed a sweep for the afternoon as the frosh-soph Vikings recorded a 173-215 verdict over Elk Grove.

Warriors lose 2-0 in varsity soccer

Maine West opened its varsity soccer season on Monday with a 2-0 loss to Quigley South. The Warriors played Wheaton Warrenville on Tuesday and host Glenbrook North on Thursday.

RUNNER-UP MUSKIE. Ron Stephani checks in with second place, tops for Hersey, in four-team meet Monday that opened Mid-Suburban League season. He ran 15:53 for three miles, behind 15:02 for Schaumburg's Arnie Jackson.

Falcons boast versatile outfit in bid for honors

by LARRY EVERHART

There's usually at least a little margin for error in any high school sport, but you can't tell that to anyone connected with Forest View's varsity football team the past two years.

Anything short of perfection — even just a little short — has not been good enough for the Falcons. It must have been frustrating for them to put together back-to-back seasons with records of 7-1 and 6-1-1 — yet not even win a division title either time.

And that frustration was compounded by the fact that the only team standing in the way of those titles both seasons was Forest View's arch-rival neighbor — Elk Grove.

But the Falcons certainly appear capable of ending the heartbreak this time around. They're everyone's pick to charge to the South Division throne room.

New head coach Fred Lussow — a former (Class of 1961) football and basketball star at Prospect who has replaced Paul Jordan — welcomed an enviable combination of experience and young talent when drills began last month.

He has 13 lettermen to work with, not concentrated in any one area, plus boys from an undefeated sophomore team. These Falcons just aren't used to losing and don't feel about to start. The seniors have lost a total of one game in three years and the juniors have lost none (tied one) in two years.

"They're very anxious for the first game to see what they can do as a unit," says Lussow, "but none of us is looking ahead. They're confident but not overconfident. It's up to us coaches to keep it that way. I know we're favored and it's not easy when everyone is gunning for you, but that's a price of having a good team."

He's equally sold on his backs and linemen, saying, "We're pretty fortunate to have experience spread just about everywhere. I wish we had more players, but I guess other guys do too. We only have about 18 juniors and 26 seniors. This is a veteran club."

"It's probably the most versatile team we've had. We've got three people in the backfield who can run the ball. They don't always have to line up the same way. And I think we'll be better on defense than last year."

As if all that isn't enough, Lussow says, "They reported in the best physical shape of any team I've ever been associated with." That spans no short time, going back to his prep playing days in the late 1950's.

Leading returners are tackle Craig Brinkman, a 6-foot-2, 215-pound bull who led the team in tackles last year, and John Kronforst, a 5-11, 185 halfback who spearheaded a productive offense in 1972.

Kronforst was a strong second in the league in rushing, had 895 yards from scrimmage in all eight games, averaged 5.2 yards per carry, led the league in scoring, handled punt returns and caught a few passes. Oh, yes, he can also punt and placekick, although he wasn't needed for that last year.

Other returning lettermen, most of whom were also stalwarts last year, include: end Mark Buchek (180), center John Douglas (230), tight end-safety Kurt Haland (185), fullback Ken Holan (185), flanker Rick Mirro (170), linebacker Tim Mincey (170), both-ways tackle Mike Petran (230), guard Rob Krueger (200), defensive back Jim Volant (160) and guard-linebacker Bob Graham (185).

The loss which will probably be hardest to fill was that of quarterback, since Bill Miller last year completed 50 of 90 passes for 669 yards with only three interceptions. (He also rushed for 143). He has graduated, along with the top two receivers, Tom Mueller and Dale Schoenbeck, plus standouts John Forsander, Dave Stanko, Rich Novak and Jim Burke. Mueller caught 24 passes and Schoenbeck 16.

But there appear to be replacements. Two boys are battling for the signal-calling post — senior Ray Meinsen and junior Neil Schmidt — and Lussow says it's a tossup between the pair of 165-pounders thus far.

One of the roughest challenges of the season will come in the season opener at Maine East this Friday night against a Demon squad loaded with returning talent. League opener is the following Friday night at home against Rolling Meadows.

Thunderbird, L-Tran win seven in Classic

by GENE KIRKHAM

Opening at Hoffman Lanes, the Pad-dock Women's Classic Traveling League saw Thunderbird Country Club sweep their series over Franklin - Weber Pontiac with all five bowlers rolling 500 or better for a 2702 team series, high for the night.

Marge Carlson rolled 578 with a 258 third game, high game for the league. Mary Yurs hit 570 with games of 189, 194, and 187. Dee Kachelmuss rolled 522, Jean Sclilian had 516, and Jean Ladd rolled a 200 game for a 516 series.

Franklin - Weber's Betty Peterman rolled 542 with a big 242 middle game and Ethel Juenger rolled 540 with a 202 final game.

L-Tran Engineering swept their series over Arlington Park Towers with Toshi Inahara leading her team with a 217 game and a 563 series. Lorrie Koch rolled 525 and Isobel Kosi rolled 514 as L-Tran had 2572 to Arlington Park Towers 2340.

Striking Lanes won five of seven points over Des Plaines Lanes in a match which saw Striking's Betty Brelle fire the high series of the night. Betty rolled games of 205, 182, and 241 for a 628 total. Judy Brumond rolled 573 with 211 and 209 the last two games, while Lu Schoenberger rolled a 518 series.

For Des Plaines Lanes Bobbie Kostelny rolled 209, 186, and 187 for a 582 series and Winnie Lohse rolled 547 with a 225 game. Des Plaines won their two points by a one pin margin, 877 to 876. Striking hit a 979 final game to total 2691.

Hoffman Lanes won five of seven over Sullivan Pontiac with Peggy Harris providing some fireworks with games of 218, 190, and 218 for a 626 series which was the second of two 600's for the night.

Sheila Clegg rolled 541 and Lois Kamenske 508, also for Hoffman, while Ruth Baurhyte and Betty Parkhurst had 533 and 510 for Sullivan Pontiac.

Sullivan earned their two points with an eight pin victory in the second game as Hoffman fired 967 the third game for a 2607 series.

Six lettermen key Cardinals

by KEITH REINHARD

Very old school.

Brand new coach.

That contrasting combination will try to develop quickly into a winner at Arlington this fall as Chuck Haynes takes over the helm of the 48-year-old Cardinal football program.

After better than four decades of mostly dry spells, the Redbirds began to gain some notoriety on the gridiron during the mid '60s when they moved into the Mid-Suburban League. Since then Arlington has fared from respectable to great and it will be the task of Haynes to maintain this healthy reputation.

For 1973 he views the job with guarded optimism. "We're not that deep in experienced personnel so I would probably have to correlate our chances for success with the time it takes some of these younger players to come around."

The new chief pilot rates his squad as about average in size with reasonably good overall team quickness and an experienced foundation to build upon.

He sees another attribute, however, as being essential if the Cards want to remain in contention through the '73 campaign, noting, "I hope we'll be a smart ball club above all, for this is often the quality that separates winners from losers when size, speed and experience are about equal."

With regard to experience, Haynes has six returning lettermen to fashion his first varsity unit around. That group includes what could become one of the MSL's premier passing combinations in 187-pound quarterback Ward Schell and 182-pound tight end Jeff Cleveland.

Anchoring Arlington's forward wall will be three more veterans, guards Chris Johnston (185 pounds) and Pat Hourigan (175) along with tackle Mike DeMarr (190). Two other linemen who were with the varsity last year as underclassmen and are expected to see extensive action this fall are tackle Doug Betters (207) and junior center or guard Jim Stanczak (185).

One of the most inexperienced facets of Arlington's attack will be the running game. Except for Schell, who gained better than 200 yards as a ball carrier in 1972, there is no one with any previous varsity game exposure.

The only backfield experience at all is sported by Scott Bittner (161), the sixth returning letterman. After that the accent is definitely on youth with four juniors and a sophomore among those in the running for a starting offensive backfield post.

At halfback the candidates include Terry Botterman (161) and juniors Craig Bernhardt (170) and Jim Graham (145). At fullback there is George Vukovich (168), junior Kevin Dick (150) and sophomore Phil Diniell (175) and at slotback in addition to Bittner there is Dave Weber (145) and junior Andy Kessenich (146).

Elsewhere the roster is equally sprinkled with underclass hopefuls. Vying at tight end are Mark Larson (170) and junior Steve Kamps (156). In the running at offensive tackle are juniors Dave Rahrz (191) and Ben Hathaway (185) and at guard other aspirants are Scott Narup (165) and junior Dar Townsend (180).

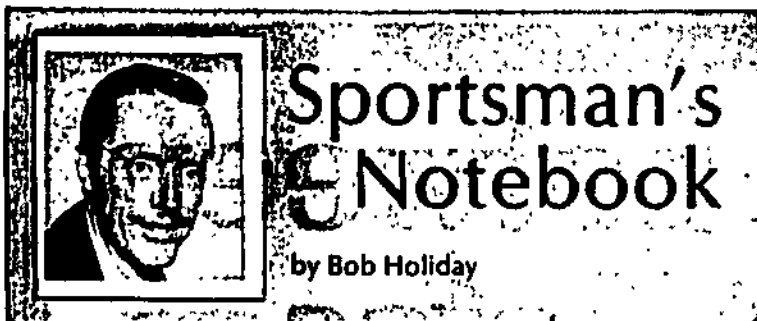

In the running for split end are Don Kamps (156) and Art Busby (146). At center there is John Sherron (195) and junior Bob Griffith (163).

A number of the names on offense will undoubtedly crop up in the defense as well. Additionally, Haynes is taking a long look at further underclass possibilities including outside linebackers Joel Kolman (150) and Herb Darmofal (158), deep secondary men Jack Powell (140) and Mike Schell (165), and Bob Chester (155) and linemen Kurt Kennedy (207) and Tom Twigg (195). Kennedy and Schell, brother of Ward and a possible backup quarterback, are both sophomores.

"With so many sophomores and juniors pushing hard to crack the starting lineup, this could turn out to be an experimental year for all of us," observed Haynes, now in his sixth year at Arlington after growing up through high school and college in Nebraska and teaching previously at DeVry Tech in Chicago and Niles North.

At Rolling Meadows

In the Thursday Eve Openers the Chocolate Chips rolled high series of 1964 and game of 699. Top individual scorers were Shawn Harwood with 325-197, Angie Plicker 320-177, Julie Keenan 314-143, Jennelle Dearen 175, Scotty Cole and Willie Funk 167a, and Ron Kibbe 163. . . . Marian Rogers converted the 3-7 split.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

LAKE MICHIGAN fishing, both in Illinois and Wisconsin waters, continues to be excellent, even though you have to wear almost winter-type clothing to fight off the early morning chill.

The coho salmon are hitting, both north and south, at depths of about 40 feet in waters that drop anywhere from 50 to 150 feet. Trollers are still using flutter spoons behind herring dodgers with colors that range from pale green to fluorescent orange and gold. The dodgers, too, produce better in colors than the standard chrome finish.

Chinook salmon are coming out of the same waters, hitting the same lures plus trolling flies. Lake trout are a little deeper than the coho and chinook in the near-by waters, but they are running very, very deep, when you find them at all, in the far north waters off Door County and Algoma.

Experienced guides, however, expect this to change any day now, as reports come in of trout and salmon being taken off piers and breakwaters all along the shoreline.

It isn't a minute too early to start serious fishing for salmon and trout off the government breakwaters and piers along the Illinois shoreline. While casters will be able to cover more water, it is getting close to time to take along the kids, or the wife and let them dunk nile crawlers under a bobber, three to four feet down.

The Commonwealth Edison fishing bridge off Waukegan is still one of the best still-fishing spots anywhere on the Lake Michigan shoreline. A few brown trout were caught there last weekend, on pinkie jigs above a heavy silver spoon, one of those three-way rigs that you cast, let drift and then retrieve.

A new Wisconsin state record rainbow weighing 21 pounds 8 ounces was taken just off Fox Point in Milwaukee County recently and a 34 pound chinook was taken about four miles off Racine the same weekend. A 18½ pound brown was caught just off Kenosha. So the big ones are still hungry, feeding up as they head for the shoreline waters.

Fishing on the inland lakes in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin ranges from slow to "picking up." The Illinois Chain of Lakes is starting to get better for largemouth bass fishermen as the lunkers begin to move toward the shoreline waters in search of their winter supply of food.

Twin Lakes in Wisconsin, along with Benedict and Beulah, are also getting better as the weather begins to get cooler. Lake Geneva is still good, but you almost have to use soft shell crabs to do any good. Night fishing on Geneva remains as one of the best ways to fill a bucket with smallmouth bass or walleyes.

This is also the time of year for musky action to go from "good" to "great" in the north central district of Wisconsin.

Action last week included a 47½ inch 30½ pound whopper out of Island Lake in Vilas County; a 45½ inch, 21½ pounder out of Boulder Lake and a 43½ inch, 19 pounder out of Minocqua Lake, Walleyes fishing in the Woodruff area is slow, but anglers who know how to find the underwater humps and bars can still limit-out.

Minocqua gave up a 28½ inch 7½ pound walleye over the weekend and a 6½ pounder came out of Trout Lake. A lunker-size 4½ pound smallmouth was taken out of Big St. Germain, and a 5½ pounder was taken out of old-reliable Lake Tomahawk.

Inland waters trout fishing closes Sept. 15 in Wisconsin and lake trout and splake fishing closes on inland waters the 30th. Anglers who like to throw flies at trout, then, should get in at least one more weekend. Recommended: The Peshigo River near Antigo, both above and below town; and the Pine, Popple and Brule rivers in Florence County.

SOMEONE HAS, apparently, found something worthwhile to do with that ever-present white elephant of wartime years, Bong Air Force Base. Officials announced last week that in addition to its being preserved as a wildlife area. Future plans call for Bong to have facilities for such activities as model rocket launching, sky diving, model airplane landing, sledding, ice skating and snowmobiling in addition to camping, fishing, hiking and hunting.

YOU NEVER KNOW what you can learn from a woman department: Once in a while, when shooting color photos, a fiberglass boat can look pretty grubby. There are some commercial preparations that are supposed to make fiberglass easy to maintain, but it is either a little too fragile or a little too hard to apply.

We were, then, a little amazed to see Mississippi River boaters using ordinary Johnson liquid floor wax on their boats. We asked one boat wife why. She told us that each season before they launch the boat, they apply a heavy coat of the floor wax to the entire hull. She showed us why. When the boat was picked up from the river, the scum and stain of the river waters washed away with a squirt from a water hose.

And another wifely idea. Lake Michigan charter boat captains, and their customers, are usually bothered by hard-hitting black flies during all kinds of weather. Donna Atkinson, Burt's wife and co-owner of the Donna G. Charter boat out of Waukegan harbor, sprays their boat with regular "Yard Guard." Presto, the flies go away and stay away. The secret seems to be that sprays designed to fog yards will adhere to boat surfaces and keep the pests at bay. (Just be sure that any foods or eating utensils are safely tucked away when you spray.)

And while we're on the subject of brand name merchandise, the Seldel company supplied dehydrated and freeze dried camping foods for a recent camping-boating project. With much assistance, we tasted them and found them to be excellent, tasty, easily storable provisions for extended trips into the backwoods or backwaters.

But what's-her-name, who was the cook on our trip, insists that she must write the report on that subject so that it is understandable by women and other people who know about foods. Talk about Chauvinism!

More speed, less size for Warriors

by MIKE KLEIN

Twelve months later, the challenge has grown even steeper for Jim Morel, Maine West's second year head football coach who was big Ten starter and National Football League sub.

Last fall, the former Purdue University receiver and his staff guided Maine West to a 5-3 overall record and 4-1 in the Central Suburban South, good for second behind undefeated Niles West.

It was the Warriors' first winning season in four years. Morel, who stuck briefly with the Los Angeles Rams, won with an excellent group of seniors.

At least three members of last year's club now play college football: lineemen Rich Wetendorf (Purdue) and Dave Rumals (Illinois State) plus split receiver Chris Bouchee (Louisville).

A fourth, quarterback Bruce Terry, accepted a scholarship at Illinois State but decided not to report.

Beyond that nucleus, a host of players with at least average speed and good size gave Maine West a very physical football team. They were embarrassed only once, 38-0 at New Trier West, and closed with three wins in four games.

Now, however, the challenge changes. The size and experience graduated. Morel's new Warriors, including last year's 7-1 sophomores, have neither the size nor experience but their speed is better.

Mike Werner, one returning senior halfback, fumbled his books and isn't eligible. That's too bad. In last year's final game, Werner tore Niles North apart with 32 carries and 147 yards. Morel spoke highly of him for 1973.

One player who did have some size, 200-pound returning center Jeff Keister, went through one week of twice daily workouts before giving up.

And the schedule gives Maine West no breaks whatsoever. They'll open at home Friday night against Arlington, always respectable. Then come Maine South, Proviso East, Glenbrook North, Niles West and Deerfield.

Still, Morel says he's been pleased with workouts to date, partly because this club should compensate for less size with better overall speed.

Fullback John O'Connor and tailback Dan Myska, both seniors and lettermen, will key the running game along with junior slotback Norb Plozaj.

O'Connor, a hard-nosed 193-pounder, will also work at one inside linebacker and Myska will be at a right defensive halfback. Plozaj is a reserve at left defensive halfback.

O'Connor replaces graduated fullback Scott Smith who won the Central Suburban scoring title with nine touchdowns and 54 points.

Myska's quickness made him valuable on sweeps last fall. He'll also throw an occasional pass, completing two for 35 yards last year. He had 63 rushes for 249 yards, a 5.5 yards-per-carry average and four touchdowns.

Two juniors will share quarterbacking duties, Terry Quinn getting the nod over Ron Houston. Their first string receivers are tight end Todd Salernio and split end letterman Ed Donal, the latter also Maine's lone free safety.

The offensive interior line will have seniors Bill Carl, Tom Williams and Scott Davis plus juniors Steve Zuccarini and Phil Logsdon. Zuccarini is West's largest player at 215 pounds. Carl weighs 211 and Davis, at 204, is the only other Warrior over 200.

Defensive starters will include Zuccarini and Carl at ends plus 188-pound junior Al Mueller and 192-pound senior Steve Grube at tackles.

Other linebackers with O'Connor are 175-pound junior Mike Janonis, 188-pound junior Bill Makuch and 185-pound senior Bob Sperling.

Senior Job Jobst, 155 pounds, joins Myska at a defensive halfback with O'Connor backed up by senior letterman Jim Boesche at free safety.

Golden Retriever Specialty —

If you want to see Golden Retrievers in action, then from Friday, Sept. 21, through Sunday, Sept. 23, will be the time. What has turned out to be the largest national specialty ever held in the Middle West has 533 class entries; in field, obedience, tracking and conformation.

The Golden Retriever Club of Illinois is the host club for the event and entries have been received from over 20 states, including both east and west coasts.

The field trials will be held at the Richmond Game Fields, Richmond, Ill., Hwy. 173, one-half mile east of Hwy. 12, starting at 8 a.m., on Friday, Sept. 21, and Saturday, Sept. 22.

Also on Saturday, Sept. 22, the tracking tests will be held at the Twin Ponds Hunt Club, west of Algonquin. The entry for this is 14, which is the largest tracking entry ever for Golden.

The last day, Sunday, Sept. 23, the conformation show and obedience trial will be held at the McHenry County Fairgrounds, Rte. 47, between Rte. 120 and City Rte. 14, Woodstock.

For more information, you may contact Mrs. Dorothy Arling of Arlington Heights, 255-7590.

Dalmatian Specialty —

It will be a busy weekend. Also on Saturday, Sept. 22, the Chicagoland Dalmatian Club will hold a specialty show at the Sportsman's Club grounds, 189th and Wentworth Ave., Lansing, Ill.

The judges will be Mrs. Alan Robson of Westchester, Pa., breed judge; Phillip Norris, Mount Prospect, the puppy sweepstakes; Forrest Johnson of Davenport, junior showmanship; and Marshall DeHaven of LaGrange who will judge the obedience classes.

Show hours are from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Admission will be one dollar for adults and children will be admitted free. If you want more answers, call Kathleen Howard in Wheeling at 541-4314.

Great Dane Show —

A little advance information about the Great Dane Specialty to be held by the Lake Shore Great Dane Club, Inc., on Sunday, Oct. 7.

The location will be the DuPage County Fairgrounds on Manchester Rd., Wheaton. Judging will start at 9 a.m. with two top breed judges expected to pick from an entry of near 300. More about this one later.

Feeding and water dish —

A little common sense in picking out feed and water dishes for your dog will help end a few problems. A shallow dish, for example, is very good for a puppy or a flat-faced, short-nosed dog, but a deep dish is best for a long nosed dog.

It goes without saying, long-eared dogs should have narrow, steep-sided dishes to keep their ears out of their food and water.

Barks & Bays —

It used to be that station wagons were the mark of the dog crowd. Now it is everything from campers to mobile homes.

Success doesn't come easily.

Phoenix project to be restudied by village board

by JOE FRANZ

The village board has decided to reconsider a bid by the Phoenix Construction Co. to rezone property around the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Following a special closed-door session Monday night, the board voted to review a somewhat revised plan which is scheduled to be presented by Phoenix at next week's village board meeting.

VILLAGE MGR. Daniel Larson said the matter was considered at an executive session behind closed doors because it concerned land acquisition. If the village approves the project, owners of the golf course have said they will give the village the opportunity to purchase it. Illinois law states trustees can meet in closed session to discuss land acquisition.

"A public meeting is not the proper forum to discuss purchase price or conditions of purchase for a piece of property," Larson said.

He added that the board also was justified in meeting in closed session because there could possibly be court action by the owner of the Phoenix property if the development is turned down.

A VILLAGE trustee, who asked to remain anonymous, said Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, following the board's rejection of the project, approached Phoenix about revising its plan. At the urging of Armstrong, Phoenix agreed to come back before the board, the trustee said.

Armstrong has said he is in favor of the project if the village is given the opportunity to purchase the golf course.

Armstrong has said he is in favor of the project if the village is given the opportunity to purchase the golf course.

Phoenix has agreed to reduce the density and the heights of some of the buildings in the development, Armstrong said. The project was rejected primarily for those reasons.

"There is no significant change in what they're (Phoenix) proposing. Let's face it, they're not going to come and propose single-family homes," Armstrong said.

Phoenix has asked the village to rezone two tracts from single-family to multi-family to allow construction of townhouses, apartments and condominiums.

Armstrong said recently, "Frankly the golf course is not for sale if we (the village) don't reach an agreement with Phoenix. Personally, I think if the golf course is lost to the village, it's a crime."

HAROLD FRIEDMAN, one of the owners of the golf course, who is also believed to be one of the beneficiaries of a secret land trust holding the Phoenix property, offered to sell the course to the village for $1.1 million, if the zoning change is approved.

Some officials have said the golf course at that price would be a bargain, while others have argued the offer is nothing better than the fair market value.

If the village is given the chance to purchase the course, it would probably either be purchased through a bond referendum or through a lease purchase agreement. In either case, even if the village changes the zoning there is no guarantee the village can afford the course or whether residents would be willing to support a tax increase through a referendum.

The developer has an option to buy the property, but will do so only if the zoning is changed. If Phoenix does not buy the land, the option could be picked up by another developer.

The project rejected last week called for 813 units on three parcels fronting the golf course and 240 units on a tract north of Ill. Rte. 83. It is not known how next week's proposal will differ.

In order for the development to be built, as proposed, zoning changes on two of the golf course pieces and the northern piece would be needed.

ALTHOUGH THE zoning on three of the pieces is single-family, the village several years ago agreed to grant multi-family zoning on two of them. Through an oversight, however, the zoning was never changed.

Raysa said even though the ordinances changing the zoning were never passed, the courts might hold that the village must grant the change because it was promised. He said the village has a "50-50 chance" of winning a court battle.

If the village grants the zoning change, the village will be given a 4.8-acre site across from the village hall. The site, which has been considered as a possible location for a public works garage, has been offered to the village in lieu of $35,000. Friedman has owned the village for about two years. The land is estimated to be worth $90,000.

The trustees who voted to reconsider the Phoenix proposal were Thomas Mahoney, Jerry Driscoll, Randall Rathjen and Edward Osmon. Rathjen and Osmon voted to reject the project last week. Trustee Clarice Rech has voted against the proposal both times. Trustee James Shirley, who previously voted against the project, was absent.

Kindergarten parents accept 'hallway classes'

Several parents of the 35 kindergarten children who are having class in the hallway at Willow Grove School appeared satisfied with the arrangement after discussion Monday night with the Dist. 96 school board.

The Herald last week received calls from a number of parents who objected to the move by school officials to relieve overcrowding at the building.

Explaining the reasons for the action to four parents who attended the meeting, Supt. William Hitzeman said a larger number of kindergarten students registered this year than had been predicted and there were not enough classrooms to accommodate them.

Hitzeman said 160 kindergarten children were expected to register in Dist. 96 this fall, but 179 actually signed up. Board member Frank Clayton added that last year school officials feared the kindergarten classes might have to be conducted in shifts.

HITZEMAN HAS SAID the overcrowding problem will be eliminated when the new Twin Groves School opens, probably in January.

Until then, one section of 18 children will continue to attend class in the morning in the hallway and a section of 17 pupils will be there in the afternoon. All kindergarten classes last 2 1/2 hours.

"We recognize that this is not the most ideal situation," Hitzeman said, "but looking at our other options, we felt this was the best arrangement."

The students use the hallway mainly as a place to work quietly, said Ron Warwick, administrative assistant. They are able to use the other three kindergarten classrooms in the school. Hitzeman assured the parents there are no safety hazards in conducting the kindergarten classes in the hallway.

Two mothers said their children don't mind not having a classroom. In fact, they said, the children seem to enjoy moving around to the other kindergarten rooms.

THE ONLY OBJECTION to the arrangement was raised by a mother who said she felt parents should have been notified of it in advance.

Hitzeman agreed and apologized for not letting the parents of the students know that their children would be having class in the hallway. He said the decision was not made until shortly before school began and there was not enough time to contact parents.

In another effort to cope with the increasing enrollment in the district, the school board agreed Monday to transfer all fourth grade classes at Willow Grove to Twin Groves when that school opens.

Students in kindergarten through the third grade will attend Willow Grove after January and grades four through eight will be at the new school.

Although these are the plans now, changes in enrollment in the next few months may necessitate other shifts, Hitzeman said.

Library expects OK for demonstration service funds

The Vernon library committee expects approval within 30 days of a two-year grant to provide demonstration library service to most township residents.

Vernon Township is not within the boundaries of any library district. The library committee, made up of representatives of the communities, was established last year to consider the formation of a new Vernon Township library district.

The proposed district would include all of Vernon Township except Mundelein, Indian Creek, Vernon Hills and Mettawa. Residents of these areas have indicated they want to be included in the proposed Cook Memorial Library District.

The North Suburban Library System (NSLS) is seeking a two-year financial and service grant under Project Plus (Promoting Larger Units of Service) to establish Vernon area demonstration library service. The state organization encourages the establishment of new library districts by providing funds for demonstration service. NSLS will also cooperate in funding the project.

THE DEMONSTRATION service proposed includes a facility at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View and a bookmobile that is scheduled to make three stops per week in the Lake County Buffalo Grove area.

The service is expected to cost about $70,000 for the first year.

Library cards will be free to residents and also will be good at any other library that is an NSLS member. A registration drive will be conducted shortly during which residents may sign up for the cards at several area locations and probably in the schools.

In a press conference Tuesday at Stevenson High School, Robert McClarren, NSLS systems director, said after nine months of demonstration service, a referendum will be conducted to determine whether the proposed Vernon Township library district will be created.

IF THE referendum is successful, the NSLS and Project Plus grants will be available to provide service for the second year until taxes are collected.

Buffalo Grove Lake County residents will be polled in a separate referendum Feb. 1 to ask if they would prefer being included in the proposed Vernon Township district or annex to the Wheeling Public Library District. The Wheeling district serves the Cook County portion of the village.

If residents vote to annex to the Wheeling Library District, that district plans to conduct an annexation referendum in May of 1974.

High school cadet gets a taste of life in the Navy

by JILL BETTNER

Cadet Lt. Emil Hynek went to sea last summer. He was one of the first NJROTC cadets in the country to participate in a program to give high school students a taste of real Navy life.

Hynek, a junior at Wheeling High School, is in his second year of the Navy Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps program.

Until last summer, most of Hynek's knowledge about the Navy was learned in classes along with fellow cadets. Then he got the unique opportunity to live and breathe the real thing.

Hynek spent six weeks as part of the crew of the USS Rigel, a refrigeration supply ship that replenishes other ships in the Mediterranean Sea.

Berthing with the rest of the sailors, Hynek took his turn in "the pit," the ship's engine room, and in swabbing the decks and hoisting semaphore flags.

BECAUSE the ship's crew was short-handed, Hynek and the other 17 NJROTC cadets from other units in the Ninth Naval District aboard worked some long hours. They often stood six-hour watches instead of the normal four-hour duties.

Hynek, assigned to the machinist's division, said he enjoyed the work, though, that included repairing the bilge pumps, operating the boilers and using evaporators which turn sea water into fresh water for use on the ship.

He was also involved in the transfer of goods from the USS Rigel to the other ships the vessel met at sea. Some of the well-known ships Hynek saw included the USS Guadalcanal, a helicopter carrier, and the USS Independence and the John F. Kennedy, both large aircraft carriers.

CADET LT. EMIL Hynek, a junior in the NJROTC program at Wheeling High School, spent six weeks last summer aboard the USS Rigel, a refrigeration supply ship in the Mediterranean Sea. He was among the first high school NJROTC cadets in the country to have a chance to get some first hand Navy experience on board ship.

"I think I really got to know what the Navy was all about," Hynek said. "On ship, you really live and work the Navy — you're not a cadet anymore, you're just like a sailor."

And just like any red-blooded American sailor, Hynek took good advantage of his liberties when the ship put into several ports.

On the trip, Hynek visited Athens, Greece, La Spezia and Naples, Italy and Rota, Spain. The cadets were free to tour the cities and Hynek was able to pick up souvenirs at a Navy exchange store.

Although the Navy program to give NJROTC cadets experience aboard ships was started two years ago, Wheeling High School was able to send a cadet for the first time this year.

HYNEK WAS chosen to represent the local NJROTC unit by naval science instructor, Capt. Adrain Lorentson, USN (Retired). The trip was financed by the unit and a $100 donation by the NJROTC Parents Association.

Lorentson said the Navy program is especially valuable because most NJROTC units are unable to get much experience aboard real ships. The Wheeling unit makes trips to Great Lakes Naval Base to tour ships there and each Easter vacation, the cadets travel to a coastal port. The time on board the ships though, is usually limited, Lorentson said.

Hynek plans to attend Marquette University where he will participate in the college NROTC program. The NROTC program requires the cadets, who graduate as Navy ensigns, to spend four years in the service. Hynek said he would like to go into operations, which involves navigation, communications and the general handling of the ship.

Hynek is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hynek, 1300 Anthony Ln. in Wheeling.

Funeral services for Mrs. Marie Handley, 73, nee Rhodus, of 724 N. Hawk, Palatine, were held Monday in Bloomington, Ill. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Normal, Ill.

Mrs. Handley, born April 8, 1900, in Illinois, died Saturday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Marilyn (Richard) Majus of Palatine; a son, Jerry and daughter-in-law, Lorraine Handley of Tucson, Ariz.; five grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Catherine (Richard) Prescott, and two brothers, Russell and Joseph Rhodus, also of Bloomington, Ill. She was preceded in death by her husband, Thomas.

Funeral arrangements were made by Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, Palatine.

Deaths Elsewhere

LOIEL JOHN MIRS, 48, of Pasadena, Calif., formerly of Arlington Heights, died suddenly Aug. 31, 1973, in Needles, Calif. He was born in Little Falls, Minn., March 14, 1925.

Funeral services were held Sept. 5, 1973, in St. John's Chapel in Pasadena, Calif.

Surviving are his widow, Eleanor; a daughter, Mrs. Lynn (Walter) Bartlett of Palatine; three sons, Lee and Loiel John Jr. Mirs, both of Palatine and Norman Menth of Pasadena, Calif.; mother, Mrs. Hilda (the late Otto) Mirs of Bensenville, formerly of Arlington Heights; five sisters, Mrs. Sarah (Edward) Lamb of Algonquin, Mrs. Gladys (Ward) Wente and his twin sister, Mrs. Lorraine (Alvin) Haas, both of Des Plaines, Mrs. Erna (Frank) Frohne of Arlington Heights and Mrs. Jerry Szech of Pasadena, Calif.; three brothers, Gilbert and Otto, both of Arlington Heights and Orville Mirs of Tempe, Ariz.; three nieces and five nephews.

JAMES H. SPEERS, 70, of 246 S. West-corn Ave., Aurora, Ill., formerly of Arlington Heights for 13 years, died suddenly Thursday in Aurora, after an apparent heart attack. He was born Jan. 28, 1903, in Pontiac, Ill.

Prior to retirement five years ago as an accountant for Northern Illinois Gas Co., with about 25 years of service, Mr. Speers had been a resident of Aurora since 1959. He was a member of the New England Congregational Church in Aurora, and a member of the board of trustees of the church. He was also a member of the Jerusalem Temple Lodge No. 90, A.F. & A.M.; University of Illinois Alumni Association, and a former member of the First Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the New England Congregational Church, Aurora. The Rev. Dr. Edward L. Kohlmann officiated. Burial was in Lincoln Memorial Park Cemetery, Aurora.

Surviving are his widow, Dorothy, nee Albrecht; a son, Robert of Aurora; two daughters, Mrs. Jane (William) Franz of Crystal Lake and Mrs. Judy (Douglas) Morton of Denver, Colo.; seven grandchildren; three brothers, Ray and Gordon, both of Odell, Ill., and Robert Speers of Stillacom, Wash., and two sisters, Mrs. Lucille (Glen) Shurr of Pontiac, Ill., and Mrs. Grace (Orville) Jones of Pekin, Ill.

Healy Funeral Home Chapel in Aurora was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Camp planned for handicapped

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Imagine a placid lake, a canopy of green leaves, rustic wooden cabins and blind child touching a tree labeled in braille.

With a little help, a 10-acre camp for handicapped children from the Northwest suburbs will no longer be a dream.

The camp, located just east of Bartlett, Ill., was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) by the state this summer.

IT IS PLANNED for use by all handicapped children of school age in the Cooperative's member school districts, but according to NEC officials, it's still a long way from becoming a reality. The camp has been vacant for several years and has been nearly destroyed by vandals. As Jeffery Inkley, NEC business manager put it, "It can't be vandalized any more than it already is — short of burning it down."

The cooperative doesn't have enough money in its budget to hire a cleanup crew or buy furnishings and equipment for the camp but NEC officials plan to start the cleanup job themselves in the next few weeks and are looking for parents, civic groups and other volunteers to donate time and money.

Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center for the retarded, one of the cooperative's education services, said he's going to get "one of those dump trucks and just start pitchin'."

CHILDREN in Kirk Center are going to help too, Sterrett said. He hopes to make landscaping and cleanup work a project for the center's vocational education classes.

NEC officials hope to make the camp available to children with any type of handicap, physical, mental or emotional. They plan to label the trees in large type for children who have poor vision and in braille for blind children. The camp will be equipped with ramps, paths and bath facilities for children in wheelchairs.

"We want to give our youngsters a well-rounded exposure to all environments," Sterrett said. These children usually "don't know a camp experience like regular boys and girls do," he said.

"We want the students to get out there to feel, touch and experience nature," said Jeff Peterson, diagnostician at Kirk Center. Students who have problems learning language will benefit from the camp, he said because it will "arouse curiosity" and get them to ask questions, talk and learn new words.

Besides vocational projects and learning about nature, camp counselors will also teach students to play. "We teach recreation to our kids because their recreation has basically been before the TV," Sterrett said. "Anything we can do to help our kids become more independent is our real objective," he said. "We want to help them be able to fit in with others and function and become more productive members of society."

THE CAMP HAS five wooden cabins that will house 12 children each, a lodge with a cafeteria and a stone fireplace, and a craft cabin for students working on art projects. The area abounds with trees, brush and wild flowers. Students will be able to use an 11-acre lake that borders the camp site which has been approved by the state for swimming and is stocked with fish.

The camp was originally called "Sunset Camp," and was operated by a private organization in the 1940s as a summer camp for adolescent girls. It was later used as a camp for diabetic children.

Sterrett heard about the camp about a year and a half ago when it belonged to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The department operates the Herrick House, a temporary foster home located on the opposite side of the lake, but had not used Sunset camp for several years.

STATE SEN. David H. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, sponsored a bill in the state legislature earlier this year to give the camp to the cooperative. The bill was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker on Sept. 5.

The camp will be operated through an NEC advisory board chaired by Arthur Aronson, High School Dist. 214 representative at NEC. The cooperative hopes to use the land as a day camp next summer and eventually make it into a 12-month residential camp. It will be self-supporting, said Sterrett, through donations, grant money from the state and student tuition.

PRINCIPAL RON Sterrett, of Kirk Center said the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs volunteers to clean up the special education camp. It's time to "just start pitchin'."

Robbery suspect awaits hearing

A Des Plaines man charged with trying to kill a local druggist Monday during a robbery attempt was taken to Cook County Jail yesterday to await a preliminary hearing.

Wayne Imwood, 21, 1960 Welwyn Ave., will appear tomorrow in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on charges of attempted murder and attempted armed robbery.

Imwood is accused of trading shots with the pharmacist Monday morning at Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, Des Plaines.

Police said a man wearing a stocking mask and baseball cap entered the store and pulled a pistol on the pharmacist, who grabbed his own pistol and opened fire. The bandit fired back at the druggist, who police have refused to identify, and then fled the store.

Police, alerted by a nearby postman who heard the shots, captured Imwood about 30 minutes later in a field just south of Golf Road. The postman and other witnesses reportedly told police of seeing a man fitting Imwood's description fleeing south from the store down Broadway on foot.

MONDAY'S ATTEMPT marks the third time the drug store has been hit by a gunman since Aug. 29 when a robber tied up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer after forcing the druggist to hand over two bottles of an undisclosed drug.

The store was held up again less than a week later by a gunman who again demanded a quantity of drugs. No cash was taken in either of the robberies.

IMWOOD IS currently under indictment by a Cook County Grand Jury on a charge of armed robbery naming him in the July 8, 1972 holdup of the Hynes Pharmacy, 809 Lee St., which netted $200 cash and an unknown amount of drugs.

To allow music instructors with bachelor's degrees to charge $3.50 and those with master's degrees to charge $4 per lesson for instruction given in the schools. Previously, all instructors were not allowed to charge more than $3.50 per lesson.

'Estimated tax' deadline Sept. 17

Individuals filing 1973 declarations of estimated tax have an important deadline approaching. According to Roger C. Beck, Internal Revenue Service district director for Northern Illinois, Sept. 17 is the date by which third quarter estimated tax installments must be filed and paid.

Beck reminded estimated tax filers that they no longer will receive a reminder notice each quarter.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income during 1973 has changed may be required to either amend their declaration, or if they have not already done so, to file one. Space to compute the amount of estimated tax due is provided in the estimated tax package.

Further information on filing estimated tax returns can be obtained from a local IRS office.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 12, the 255th day of 1973 with 110 to follow.

The moon is in its full phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

French entertainer Maurice Chevalier was born Sept. 12, 1888.

On this day in history:

In 1609, Henry Hudson discovered what is now known as the Hudson River.

In 1922, the Protestant Episcopal House of Bishops voted, 38 to 27, to take the word "obey" out of the marriage ceremony.

In 1968, America's Gemini 2 docked with an Agena space vehicle.

In 1972, the U.S. Senate approved a $35 billion federal revenue sharing bill.

A SUMMER CAMP for handicapped children was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative this month. The camp has been vandalized in recent years and needs major repairs before it can be used. Located near Bartlett, Ill., the camp has cabins for 60 children, a lake and a lodge. NEC hopes to open it next summer.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board adopted a policy to govern the censorship of all educational materials used in the district's three schools. It is designed to give the school board a guideline to follow in case a school district resident should object to materials.

Don Anderson, school architect, also reported the district will be able to seek bids on the proposed remodeling to Kildeer School around the first of next month.

The school will be closed for the work after the Twin Groves School is completed.

Price of school lunches hiked

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 55 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 80 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

The board also adopted the tax levy for the 1974-75 school year in the amount of $1,225,950. This is based on the prediction that the district's assessed valuation will increase from $43 million to $53 million in the next year.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board agreed to:

• Purchase fuel oil from the Liberty Asphalt Company Inc., the district's supplier last year. The price for the 1973-74 school year was $1.1135 per gallon. However, the company will not quote a firm price for fuel this year because the current fuel shortage is causing frequent price fluctuations.

• To allow music instructors with bachelor's degrees to charge $3.50 and those with master's degrees to charge $4 per lesson for instruction given in the schools. Previously, all instructors were not allowed to charge more than $3.50 per lesson.

Awaiting preliminary hearing

Man arrested in drugstore shootout in County Jail

A Des Plaines man charged with trying to kill a local druggist Monday during a robbery attempt was taken to Cook County Jail yesterday to await a preliminary hearing.

Wayne Imwood, 21, 1960 Welwyn Ave., will appear tomorrow in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on charges of attempted murder and attempted armed robbery.

Imwood is accused of trading shots with the pharmacist Monday morning at Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, Des Plaines.

Police said a man wearing a stocking mask and baseball cap entered the store and pulled a pistol on the pharmacist, who grabbed his own pistol and opened fire. The handoff fired back at the druggist, who police have refused to identify, and then fled the store.

Police, alerted by a nearby postman who heard the shots, captured Imwood about 30 minutes later in a field just south of Golf Road. The postman and other witnesses reportedly told police of seeing a man fitting Imwood's description fleeing south from the store down Broadway on foot.

MONDAY'S ATTEMPT marks the third time the drug store has been hit by a gunman since Aug. 20 when a robber tied up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer after forcing the druggist to hand over two bottles of an undisclosed drug.

The store was held up again less than a week later by a gunman who again demanded a quantity of drugs. No cash was taken in either of the robberies.

IMWOOD IS currently under indictment by a Cook County Grand Jury on a charge of armed robbery naming him in the July 8, 1972 holdup of the Hynes Pharmacy, 809 Lee St., which netted $200 cash and an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood is scheduled to face trial on the count Oct. 9 in Chicago Circuit Court. Associate Judge Jerome Burke yesterday ordered Imwood's bond lowered from $30,000 to $10,000.

Pair charged for gun in car

Two Maywood men were arrested Saturday after police found a pistol in their car after an anonymous caller told of seeing them with the weapon.

According to reports, Oscar Travis, 30, of 1412 S. 18th, and Wesley Wade, 32, of 617 S. 21st, were stopped in the auto near 2100 Touhy Ave., by police and informed of the anonymous call.

The caller told police they would find the men in a car in the area with a gun.

Travis consented to a search of the car and the gun was found in the trunk along with six bottles of cough medicine.

Travis was charged with unlawful use of a weapon; Wade was charged with disorderly conduct. The two were released on bond and have been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Oct. 18.

Artists scheduled for Oakton series

Chicago-area artists have been scheduled as lecturers for the Thursday, Sept. 20, and Tuesday, Sept. 25, sessions of the "Who is Chicago?" series at Oakton Community College.

Jerry Peart, a sculptor who moved to Chicago within the past year, will discuss the process of "breaking in" to Chicago's artistic community at the session on Sept. 20, at 9:30 a.m.

Anita Kushner, a watercolorist and printmaker, and Edith Altman, a sculptor who creates "minimal" wood construction, will lecture on Sept. 25 at 9:30 a.m. In addition to illustrating their own work with slides, they will discuss the difficulties confronting women who seek recognition as artists in Chicago.

The lecture series, in the Focus: Chicago program at Oakton, is part of a course in Modern Culture and the Arts, taught by Dick Storing, assistant professor in humanities. The series is held weekly on either Tuesday or Thursday mornings in the Lounge of Building 4 at the Interim campus of Oakton Community College, 7900 N. Nagle, Morton Grove.

BARRELS AS PLANTERS ... Barrels as patio tables ... Barrels as birdhouses, chairs, stools — whatever the imagination makes them. Mrs. Angelo Cruz, assistant leader of Cadet Girl Scout Troop 624, shows off the finished product. About 150 unfinished barrels will go on sale Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the parking lot of the Des Plaines Historical Society, 777 Lee St., for $1.50 each. The sale is a fund-raiser for the cadets and will help them put on a Halloween party for mentally retarded children.

Chicago action to mean water rate hikes here?

by STEVE BROWN

Proposed water rate increases in Chicago probably will trigger rate hikes in Des Plaines, but city officials said yesterday the increases were coming anyway.

The rate increases, which would boost Chicago water prices as much as 35 per cent, will be felt in Des Plaines and more than 70 other towns which purchase water from Chicago.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said the Chicago increase will definitely force an increase in local rates.

"WE CANNOT continue to absorb increasing costs," he said. Behrel added that the city had planned to increase the rates soon because of rising costs.

A recently released six-month report of water revenues for the city shows that Des Plaines has lost about $160,000. The loss was attributed to lower water use and increasing costs.

The city purchases about 60 per cent of its water from Chicago. A long-term contract allows Des Plaines to obtain an average of seven million gallons a day from Chicago. The water supply is supplemented by several local wells.

Des Plaines pays Chicago about 27.5 cents per 1,000 gallons of water. Behrel said Des Plaines charges residents about 63 cents per 1,000 gallons. He said the difference in price results from the city's costs in proving water lines, pumping stations and personnel.

BEHREL SAID that it is too early to predict how much the city rate increase might be at this time. He added that the city also has plans for a series of improvements to the water system and might implement them now.

"If we are going to increase the rates, we might also tag on the improvements and do this all at once," the mayor said.

The city has plans for a $1.8 million water system upgrading program, which would improve water pressure and other areas. Behrel said the city hoped to get a federal grant of about $800,000, but a freeze of federal funds has stymied that effort.

THE MAYOR said the city has noted a decrease in water use during the last few years. He said the decrease in use will reduce the city's water billings.

"We knew this was coming, but we have been working with a surplus for the past few years," Behrel said. He added that the water bond fund has about $330,000 at this time, but noted that the surplus would not last long with the current deficit rate.

He said the city's entire water rate structure will now be taken under study.

$6.2 million Maine North referendum 'won't hike taxes'

Passage of the estimated $6.2 million referendum to complete Maine North High School will not increase Maine Township taxes, according to figures released by Dist. 207 Business Mgr. Harold Markworth.

Markworth told the school board Monday that personal property taxes are expected to decrease by 9 cents per $100 assessed valuation because the district has paid off a number of bonds. The referendum would cost taxpayers 6 cents per $100, leaving at least a 3 cent per $100 decrease.

Property taxes will decrease further due to a new state aid formula for school financing. Dist. 207 will receive more money from the state and, at the same time, is required to decrease its tax rates by $1.05 per $100 over a four year period.

Markworth said there is a possibility the district may qualify for $115,000 from the state capital assistance program to be used toward construction at Maine North.

GUIDELINES FOR the program have not been published, Markworth said, and he did not know if the district could qualify.

Assistance is determined by need. A capital development board bases its decision on the district's financial resources, indebtedness and educational program.

"It would seem to be a rather bleak hope that we could qualify on the basis of submitting this data," he said. A grant under the program would require a reduction in taxes.

IN OTHER ACTION Monday the board rejected a single $213,800 bid by Rock Road Construction Co. to build a football field and track at Maine North. Board Architect Don Stillwaugh said he thought only one bid was received because other companies felt they could not have construction done by this winter.

The board voted to rebid the project with modified specifications and completion dates.

School board gives contractor 7 days

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board has instructed its attorney to give the Friendship Junior High building contractor notice that he has only seven days to complete site work.

The board voted unanimously to take over site work and rough grading at Friendship and deduct the estimated $4,400 cost from the $60,000 owed to contractor Al Berg.

Supt. James Ervitt told the board at a special meeting Monday night that no grading has been done at the school in about two weeks. Until grading is completed, landscaping cannot be done, said Ervitt, warning of a "sea of mud" next spring, unless work is started soon.

Ervitt said this action was perhaps a preview of things to come. Work in other areas of the building, including the gym and auditorium, is lagging, he said.

ERVITT SAID the gym is still six to seven weeks from completion and work in the auditorium has been minimal. Roof work is incomplete as are countless other minor items in the building.

The board voted Aug. 20 to release $60,000 of the $120,000 it held back in money owed to Berg. The $60,000 payment has not yet been made and Dist. 59 attorney Frank Hines told the board their motion to release payment could be rescinded.

Further discussion of such a possibility was delayed until the board's Monday meeting.

The Friendship building was to originally have been completed by Jan. 1, 1973. A series of delays pushed the deadline from March to June 1, to July 1 and finally to Sept. 4. The contract with Berg contained no penalty provisions for construction delays.

High school austerity program 'relaxing'

The austerity program in spending started last year in Maine Township High School Dist. 207 is still in effect but restrictions have been "relaxed," according to business manager Harold Markworth.

The "relaxing" is evident in this year's $23,828,650 tentative budget which is up almost 12 per cent from last year, but still within the bounds set by expected revenues for the 1973-74 school year.

Austerity began in 1972 when the district decided not to continue with deficit financing and operate within existing revenues. Last year's budget was a decrease of 4.5 per cent over previous budgets.

MARKWORTH SAID supplies and equipment not bought last year will be purchased this year. The rest of the 12 per cent hike was due to increasing costs and salary raises.

The district's revenue, increased by $500,000 under a new aid formula for state funding of school districts. Revised property assessments provided the district with an additional $140,000 for the 1973-74 year.

The tentative educational fund shows an increase of $1,064,705 or almost 7 per cent. Most of this increase, about $844,600, is budgeted for teacher salaries.

THE BUILDING fund, which includes custodial salaries and maintenance, increased $257,300 or about 11 per cent. More than half of the increase is due to a salary raise for custodians. The remainder is budgeted for increased expenses and preliminary architectural costs for redesigning Maine North High School.

Fire prevention and safety fund expenditures, which pay for building changes to make schools conform to state safety standards, is up $109,300 or more than 3 per cent.

Transportation and liability insurance expenditures are also higher than last year.

Maryville reviewers to investigate sites

The citizens' action committee reviewing the Maryville school site selection will be investigating location and price of other suitable sites in River Trails Dist. 26.

The committee met Monday night for the first time to organize and form objectives.

School Board President Lloyd Demel, told the committee, "I am confident that your role will be to contribute to the known facts and explore all alternatives that the board and administration may have overlooked" in the selection of the Maryville site.

He stated holding a referendum for $150,000 to $200,000 for the purchase of land for a Maryville school was previously judged by the board as having a low probability of passing. Some people contend there is a reasonable potential for taxpayer approval because the district will obtain a free school worth $1 million from the state, he added.

The committee was selected Saturday by acting Dist. 26 Supt. James Retzlaff after a 5 1/2-hour meeting last week wherein the school board and administration attempted to justify selection of the River Trails Junior High School site for the new Maryville school.

The group was charged with making a recommendation on the Maryville site by Oct. 4. Committee members are a combination of volunteers and people drafted for the job, according to Retzlaff.

Development panel may face lawsuit

The threat of a lawsuit and charges of underhanded tactics came before the Des Plaines municipal development committee this week.

Ralph Martin of the Wm. L. Kunkel and Co. real estate firm told the committee he may sue the city if a zoning variation for property at 1236 Whitcomb Ave. is not granted.

Martin said that while the zoning board approved the variation, the city council, in a 7 to 6 vote, denied the proposal. Martin called the city's action "confiscatory."

THE PROPERTY is 77 feet under the city's minimum lot size and also has a smaller frontage than the city requires. Martin said the lot had been full size, but a portion of the property was taken over by Commonwealth Edison.

Ald. Ewald Swanson (6th), who heads the committee said he will recommend the council approve the variation request.

Swanson's action, however had apparently raised the possibility of conflict of interest on his part. He became a real estate salesman for Kunkel in June. Swanson pushed for council approval for the zoning request last month, but several aldermen contended granting the variation would set a precedent for other zoning variations.

A SPOKESMAN for Cook County States Atty. Bernard Carey said Carey's office is examining Swanson's action in the matter to determine if a conflict exists. Swanson has denied any conflict.

The committee also decided not to recommend zoning changes for R-5 multiple family district at River Road and Mill Street.

The action brought sharp criticism from Mrs. Estelle Crisafulli who said yesterday, that persons who wanted the zoning changed to a single family district were not told of the meeting.

Two separate petitions, one favoring a change in the zoning to the R-2 single family district and another asking no change had been submitted to the council.

BOTH PETITIONS had been discussed on Aug. 13, but no decision was reached. The petition seeking the zoning change was submitted by Burton Kosmen, head of the Citizens' Action Committee. He argued the Mill Street-River Road area had been over developed and no more multiple-family housing should be built.

At Monday's meeting, neither Kosmen nor any of his supporters were present. Persons who favored the retention of the present zoning were there and Mrs. Crisafulli said the committee's action was underhanded.

"I feel like I was used, like a clay pigeon," she said, explaining that while she had spoken in favor of the multiple family zoning Monday, she learned yesterday that opponents had not been invited to the meeting.

Kosmen also charged that a first ward alderman had invited persons who opposed the change to the meeting, but failed to notify him. Kosmen said he intended to continue to fight the R-5 zoning in that area.

ONE QUICK turn of the key will lock the two-wheeler secure and the owner can walk away worry-free. William Spring of Arlington Heights is the inventor of a theft-deterrent bicycle rack that is expected to be on the market early next year. Above is a scale model that he built to show its features.

Theft-proof!

Area inventor's work prevents bike ripoffs

by BETTY LEE

Bike thieves, beware! William Spring of Arlington Heights can put you out of business.

Spring is the inventor of a bike rack that would discourage even the best bike thieves from plying their trade.

"It's not really theft-proof," he said. "But nothing really is if he (the thief) really tries. This is actually a theft-deterrent bike rack." Thieves would more likely help themselves to easier steals, he added.

Spring's invention, being readied for manufacturing, looks pretty much like the conventional bike rack you see at schools, parks and apartment buildings. It was designed mainly for two-wheel bikes.

But at each bicycle unit he added two metal shields that encompass the front wheel of a bike. A latch bar with an auxiliary chain locks the bike frame into place and the chain prevents the back wheel from being stolen. At each unit there is a coin-key box. The box can be locked in one quick turn of the key.

"Actually I got the idea for this two years ago when we wanted to start a bicycle magazine," said Spring who lives at 801 S. Vall. Spring, 46, is the head of a technical publication and industrial advertising firm which he started in Chicago nearly six years ago. "With the bike boom and all, we thought it would be a good enterprise to go into."

THE MAGAZINE never got started, but it did make Spring think about bicycles, bike riders and their anxiety of having their bikes stolen. "Bike theft was quite startling and has been excessively greater since," said Spring. "There must be a means of locking a bike without carrying a 20-pound chain around."

"The whole idea came about in about 20 minutes," he said. "That's how much thought went into it initially."

The rest of the time was spent waiting for the patent, which he recently obtained.

Some of the time was spent walking from door to door to see the heads of various municipal organizations in Chicago. Armed with rough sketches, Spring wanted to find how appealing such a bike rack would be.

He found most of the people enthusiastic. "The Association of Bicycle Commuters in Chicago said they thought the design was feasible," he said. "That was two years ago." Spring plans to talk to more groups in Arlington Heights as well as those in Chicago, this time with a 1/8" scale model, complete with model bikes.

"Right now we're trying to get it manufactured," he said. "One company who manufactures playground equipment and bike racks is interested. They say they get calls every day for a better bike rack."

SPRING is waiting for the company to produce a prototype of the rack in order to point out any changes or deficiencies. After the prototype, the company will conduct a market research study for the item, he said.

"With luck, they'll be on the market by the first of the year," he said.

Although the rack was designed primarily for municipalities because of the coin-key device, the rack may also be manufactured without the device.

"It's mainly a revenue making device. The simile would be the lockers at the train stations or airports. But for those who don't want to produce revenue, like schools and apartment buildings, a person can supply his own padlock."

Student lunches going from 50 to 60 cents

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 55 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 90 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

Cost of adult lunches will be higher at Arlington High School than at other schools, district officials explained, because there is a separate serving line for teachers at that school. At other schools, teachers go through regular cafeteria lines with students.

The increases are necessary because of increased prices in staple food items purchased by the district, district officials said. Cost increases range from 7 per cent over last year for sugar to 91 per cent for macaroni.

In other action, the board approved a program to provide free and reduced price lunches for students from low-income families. Under the program a student from a family of four with an income of $5,310 a year is eligible for a

Two youths arrested for paint sniffing

A Schaumburg youth and a Mount Prospect youth were arrested late Saturday after Des Plaines police said they had been sniffing paint in a car and tried to flee police.

According to reports, Vito Baldimanti, 20, of 501 Brockton Ln., Schaumburg, and Richard Mascarella, 19, of 141 Bonnie Brea Ln., Mount Prospect, were seen by Patrolman Stanley Slack in a car on the rear access road of the Maryville Academy shortly after midnight.

Upon seeing the squad car, the pair drove off and led police in a high speed chase down Morrison to Lee Street and turned on Brookfield Avenue where they abandoned the car and tried to elude police on foot.

Police said during the north side chase, the two narrowly missed striking two pedestrians and several minibike riders. The two were apprehended by officers from the Cook County Sheriff's Police who had been alerted to the incident by radio.

POLICE SAID a bag, containing a can of spray paint, which had been set up to sniff paint from, was found at the spot where the pair tried to elude police. A second can of paint was found inside the car which the two young men had abandoned during the chase.

Baldimanti was charged with sniffing an intoxicating compound, reckless driving and attempting to elude police. Mascarella was charged with sniffing an intoxicating compound.

Baldimanti was released after posting a $1,000 bond, while the other youth posted a bond of $500. Both will appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on Oct. 18.

$200 worth of lumber taken from roof firm

Some 200 pieces of lumber valued at about $200 were stolen from Suburban Roof Truss Co., said Des Plaines police Monday.

According to reports, the two-by-four inch pieces of wood were discovered missing from outside the building Saturday morning by an employee.

Thieves take car, motorcycle here

Thieves stole an auto owned by George Lang, 543 S. LaSalle St., early yesterday after the car had been left in a parking lot at 1450 Rand Rd., said police.

The victim noticed when he came from a store about 1 a.m., police said.

In another theft, a motorcycle owned by Howard Shrewsbury, 158 Pennsylvania Ave., was stolen Sunday, according to reports.

The victim told police the cycle had been chained to a gas meter outside his home.

'Estimated tax' deadline Sept. 17

Individuals filing 1973 declarations of estimated tax have an important deadline approaching. According to Roger C. Beck, Internal Revenue Service district director for Northern Illinois, Sept. 17 is the date by which third quarter estimated tax installments must be filed and paid.

Beck reminded estimated tax filers that they no longer will receive a reminder notice each quarter.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income during 1973 has changed may be required to either amend their declaration, or if they have not already done so, to file one. Space to compute the amount of estimated tax due is provided in the estimated tax package.

Further information on filing estimated tax returns can be obtained from a local IRS office.

Old mushroom farm battle trial-bound

The 4½-year-old battle between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines over a 12½-acre former mushroom farm will go to trial Oct. 5.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge F. Emmett Morrissey yesterday set the trial date. He is the third judge in the many-times delayed case. It is expected to be a bench trial, without jury.

Both towns have annexed the property west of Algonquin Road and south of Dempster Street. Des Plaines annexed the land first, but Mount Prospect officials and the owner, Kenroy Inc. of Skokie, both contend the Des Plaines annexation was illegal.

Kenroy is attempting to build 188 apartments on the property.

From the library

"Come fly with me," invites Jonathan Livingston Seagull, and join the adult book discussion group at the first meeting of the fall session on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Des Plaines Public Library.

The first book to be discussed will be "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" by Richard Bach. Read the book (it is published in paperback) and come primed with deep thoughts, questions and conclusions. Miss Roberta Conrad, library staff member, will lead the discussion. Is there a book that you would like to have discussed? Suggestions are requested.

THE LIBRARY has recently acquired a picturesque book, "From Stump Town to Ski Town," the story of Whitefish, Mont.

This biography of a western town should interest the many Des Plaines friends of the co-author, Elizabeth (Betty) Paine Schafer, who was educated in the Maine Township High School, later at Radcliffe College and Northwestern University School of Commerce.

During World War II, she enlisted in the U.S. Naval Reserves; after the war, she married August G. Schafer from Montana. She taught in the Whitefish

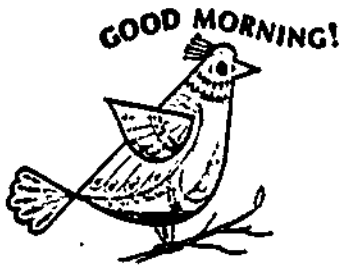

High School, then served as librarian at the Whitefish Public Library until she retired in 1970. She is listed in the eighth edition of "Who's Who in American Women."

She has spent the last 3 years researching and writing this book which is delightfully humorous at times yet seriously depicts the rigors of frontier life.

Only precinct captains allowed to vote

Rose defeats Kirkwood for Dem committee post

William Rose of Elk Grove Village was elected Elk Grove Township committeeman last night after efforts to open voting to all township Democratic organization members failed.

R. Kent Kirkwood, of Mount Prospect, who resigned as president of the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization to seek the committeeman post introduced the motion that all paid members of the organization be allowed to vote.

The motion was defeated 22-10 by a vote of precinct captains only. Kirkwood received five votes in the final election.

Rose had 23. And Paul Shaneyfelt received three.

Shaneyfelt and Kirkwood both said they would seek the committeeman post in the regular March election. Last night's election was because of the retirement of Chester Chesney. Rose will serve until March.

ROSE AND OTHER party members said winning this election would be a definite advantage in March when all registered Democrats will select the committeeman.

There was considerable debate before the vote was taken on whether to open last night's election to all Democrats.

Paul Rettberg, precinct captain, said, "No matter who is elected, he has to live with the precinct captains and members of the organization. Whoever is committeeman would have a better position, having been elected by all members."

Other precinct captains argued for their right to fill the vacancy.

Kirkwood had suggested that an outside person be invited to preside over the election of Chesney's successor. He also objected to what he called a lack of by-laws to govern the filling of the vacancy.

Kirkwood had suggested that State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a state central committeeman.

Kirkwood had also suggested that State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a state central committeeman, preside over the election. But Pierce did not attend.

There was an effort to retain Chesney as a vote of confidence for his more than 12 years of service. But he declined.

Rose spoke before the election and said he felt that possibly everyone who was a Democrat should have the opportunity to vote for committeeman. But he added that the precinct captains should decide whether or not to abrogate that right.

Rose was an unsuccessful candidate last year for the state senate against Republican David J. Regner. Shaneyfelt was a one-time candidate for the state senate and township supervisor.

The meeting was held at Aerospace Mechanics Hall in Des Plaines.

Student lunches going from 50 to 60 cents

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 55 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 60 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

Cost of adult lunches will be higher at Arlington High School than at other schools, district officials explained, because there is a separate serving line for teachers at that school. At other schools, teachers go through regular cafeteria lines with students.

The increases are necessary because of increased prices in staple food items purchased by the district, district officials said. Cost increases range from 7 per cent over last year for sugar to 81 per cent for macaroni.

In other action, the board approved a program to provide free and reduced price lunches for students from low-income families. Under the program a student from a family of four with an income of $5,310 a year is eligible for a free lunch and the same student with a family income of $6,360 a year is eligible for a reduced price lunch.

District officials estimate about 200 students will be eligible for free lunches and about 200 more will be eligible for reduced price lunches.

Science fiction fans: you'll like our library

The science fiction fan will be king, starting later this month at the Elk Grove Village Public Library. From Sept. 30 to Oct. 13 the library will sponsor a "science fiction festival" that will be highlighted by the premiere showing of a science fiction movie made at the library by library patrons.

The movie, titled "Beyond These Doors — 2023," takes a look at what libraries might be like 80 years from now, according to Administrative Librarian Mary Clark.

A picture of what libraries will be like was put together by library staff members who read books and library journals dealing with the latest innovations in libraries, along with predictions for the future.

"We placed the time of the movie at 80 years from now," said Miss Clark, "so we could be fairly specific in showing what to expect in libraries."

MISS CLARK has more than the average interest in innovative ways of doing things at the library. Before coming to the Elk Grove Village Library, she worked in the library at the Chicago Sun-Times and Daily News. For a while, she worked on a system of totally computerizing the library.

Although scenes for the movie are still being shot daily at the library, the final script isn't finished, according to Miss Clark. The main plot of the film however, will deal with a girl who travels forward in time and finds herself in a library of the future. The differences in the futuristic library are explained to the girl by a talking computer.

In charge of the movie production are two recent graduates of Elk Grove High School, Bob Robman and Rich Peter. Both are interested in cinematography and have made other movies in the past for class assignments in school.

The festival will also feature a science fiction writing contest. The contest will be divided into two categories; one for those of junior high school age and the adult division for those from high school age on up.

FIRST-PRIZE winners in each division will have their works bound into book form, according to Miss Clark. Their work then will be put into the library's fiction collection.

Entry deadline for the contest is Sept. 24. There is no charge to enter and all types of fiction will be accepted, according to Miss Clark.

Special science fiction works will also be featured during the festival. The works are Nebula Award winners, one of the highest honors in science fiction writing.

heavy, park district director Jack Claes said most of the park district's programs are still open. "There's still plenty of room," he said.

Claes said he received several complaints from those who signed up early on the first day of registration on Monday. According to Claes, some had to wait in line two hours.

"Things were pretty hectic," said Claes, "and we could have used more help. We're working on a system to relieve the congestion of the first day of registration. We tried talking to other park districts to find out how they handled the situation, but they have the same problem too."

Record parks program signup seen

Participation in Elk Grove Park District programs may reach a new high this year if registration continues at its present rate.

More than 1,000 Elk Grove Village residents have signed up during the first two days of registration, according to Rie Arnold, recreation infern for the park district.

The most popular classes so far, according to Arnold, are the dance classes, seven of which are closed. The women's volleyball league and family hayrides for Oct. 21 also are closed, according to Arnold.

Child, 5, needs blood donors for heart surgery

A 5-year-old child in Elk Grove Village is scheduled to have open-heart surgery next month and Trustee Nanci Vanderweel is soliciting blood donors.

Mrs. Vanderweel, chairman of the community blood program, said the village needs about 80 units of blood to meet its quota for the third quarter of this year.

Persons interested in donating blood for the third-quarter quota can make an appointment to donate blood by calling Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 437-5500.

The village is a member of the blood replacement program sponsored by the North Suburban Association for Health Resources. If 4 per cent of the village's residents donate blood during the year, all village residents are guaranteed free blood, no matter how much is needed.

Blood will be given for routinely scheduled operations and emergency conditions.

THE THIRD quarter ends Oct. 12. For the fourth quarter, Oct. 13 — Dec. 31, the village will need 225 donors.

A special blood drive day, Oct. 13, will start the fourth quarter donations. Persons willing to donate blood for the fourth quarter special day can make appointments by calling Mrs. Vanderweel at the village hall, 439-3900.

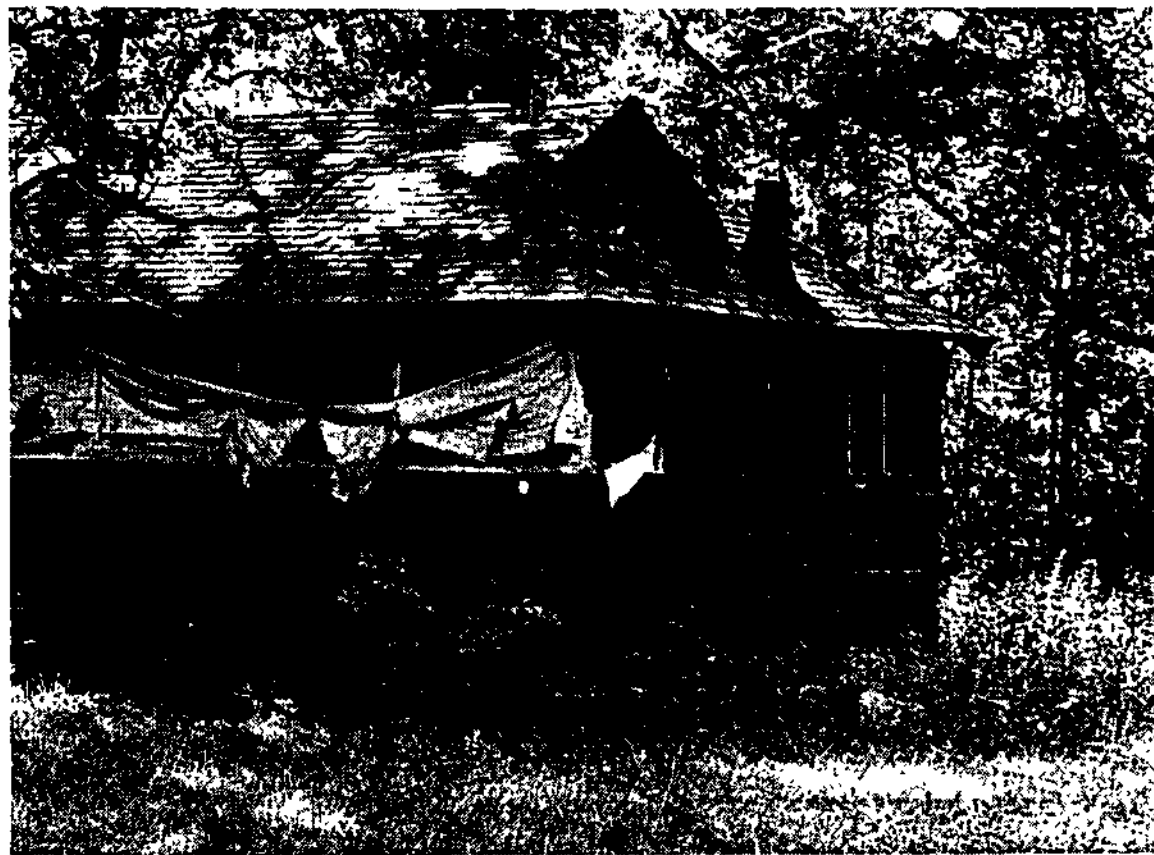

Mrs. Vanderweel said the child scheduled to have open heart surgery will probably need 11 units (pints) of blood. The village, although still needing donors for the third quarter, is in no danger of being dropped from the program of free blood replacement until the end of the year, according to Mrs. Vanderweel.

She said the program is operated on a yearly basis and the village would have to be given 60 days notice before it is dropped. At the beginning of next year, if the village is short of its yearly quota, notice may be given.

She said, however, the replacement bank considers Elk Grove Village, "one of the better ongoing programs."

A SUMMER CAMP for handicapped children was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative this month. The camp has been vandalized in recent years and needs major repairs before it can be used. Located near Bartlett, Ill., the camp has cabins for 60 children, a lake and a lodge. NEC hopes to open it next summer.

A new 'Walden'

Rustic camp planned for handicapped children

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Imagine a placid lake, a canopy of green leaves, rustic wooden cabins and blind child touching a tree labeled in braille.

With a little help, a 10-acre camp for handicapped children from the Northwest suburbs will no longer be a dream.

The camp, located just east of Bartlett, Ill., was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) by the state this summer.

IT IS PLANNED for use by all handicapped children of school age in the Cooperative's member school districts, but according to NEC officials, it's still a long way from becoming a reality. The camp has been vacant for several years and has been nearly destroyed by vandals. As Jeffery Inkley, NEC business manager put it, "It can't be vandalized any more than it already is — short of burning it down."

The cooperative doesn't have enough money in its budget to hire a cleanup crew or buy furnishings and equipment for the camp but NEC officials plan to start the cleanup job themselves in the next few weeks and are looking for parents, civic groups and other volunteers to donate time and money.

Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center for the retarded, one of the cooperative's education services, said he's going to get "one of those dump trucks and just start pitchin'."

CHILDREN in Kirk Center are going to help too, Sterrett said. He hopes to make landscaping and cleanup work a project for the center's vocational education classes.

NEC officials hope to make the camp available to children with any type of handicap, physical, mental or emotional. They plan to label the trees in large type for children who have poor vision and in braille for blind children. The camp will be equipped with ramps, paths and bath facilities for children in wheelchairs.

"We want to give our youngsters a well-rounded exposure to all environments," Sterrett said. These children usually "don't know a camp experience like regular boys and girls do," he said.

"We want the students to get out there to feel, touch and experience nature," said Jeff Peterson, diagnostician at Kirk Center. Students who have problems learning language will benefit from the camp, he said because it will "arouse curiosity," and get them to ask questions, talk and learn new words.

Besides vocational projects and learning about nature, camp counselors will also teach students to play. "We teach recreation to our kids because their recreation has basically been before the TV," Sterrett said. "Anything we can do to help our kids become more independent is our real objective," he said. "We want to help them be able to fit in with others and function and become more productive members of society."

THE CAMP HAS five wooden cabins that will house 12 children each, a lodge with a cafeteria and a stone fireplace, and a craft cabin for students working on art projects. The area abounds with trees, brush and wild flowers. Students will be able to use an 11-acre lake that borders the camp site which has been approved by the state for swimming and is stocked with fish.

The camp was originally called "Sunset Camp," and was operated by a private organization in the 1940s as a summer camp for adolescent girls. It was later used as a camp for diabetic children.

Sterrett heard about the camp about a year and a half ago when it belonged to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The department operates the Herlick House, a temporary foster home located on the opposite side of the lake, but had not used Sunset camp for several years.

STATE SEN. David H. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, sponsored a bill in the state legislature earlier this year to give the camp to the cooperative. The bill was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker on Sept. 5.

The camp will be operated through an NEC advisory board chaired by Arthur Aronson, High School Dist. 214 representative at NEC. The cooperative hopes to use the land as a day camp next summer and eventually make it into a 12-month residential camp. It will be self-supporting, said Sterrett, through donations, grant money from the state and student tuition.

PRINCIPAL RON Sterrett, of Kirk Center said the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs volunteers to clean up the special education camp. It's time to "just start pitchin'."

Robbery suspect awaits initial hearing

A Des Plaines man charged with trying to kill a local druggist Monday during a robbery attempt was taken to Cook County Jail yesterday to await a preliminary hearing.

Wayne Imwood, 21, 1960 Welwyn Ave., will appear tomorrow in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on charges of attempted murder and attempted armed robbery.

Imwood is accused of trading shots with the pharmacist Monday morning at Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, Des Plaines.

Police said a man wearing a stocking mask and baseball cap entered the store and pulled a pistol on the pharmacist, who grabbed his own pistol and opened fire. The bandit fired back at the druggist, who police have refused to identify, and then fled the store.

Police, alerted by a nearby postman about 30 minutes later in a field just south of Golf Road. The postman and other witnesses reportedly told police of seeing a man fitting Imwood's description fleeing south from the store down Broadway on foot.

MONDAY'S ATTEMPT marks the third time the drug store has been hit by a gunman since Aug. 20 when a robber tied up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer after forcing the druggist to hand over two bottles of an undisclosed drug.

The store was held up again less than a week later by a gunman who again demanded a quantity of drugs. No cash was taken in either of the robberies.

IMWOOD IS currently under indictment by a Cook County Grand Jury on a charge of armed robbery naming him in the July 6, 1972 holdup of the Hynes Pharmacy, 809 Lee St., which netted $200 cash and an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood is scheduled to face trial on the count Oct. 9 in Chicago Circuit Court.

Associate Judge Jerome Burke yesterday ordered Imwood's bond lowered from $30,000 to $10,000.

Want to fly?

Civil Air Patrol—it's not imaginary

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Imagine a local organization which provides members with the opportunity for flying lessons and aerospace education, campouts, leadership training and more, all at minimal cost.

The Civil Air Patrol (CAP) does all of this. Yet considering the lack of public awareness of the organization, it might as well be imaginary, according to Capt. James Houchens, a CAP commander. He would like to see the situation change.

CAP's long-standing place in American history should be rights, make it better known to the public. Founded in 1941 as a civilian volunteer auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, CAP members flew famous air search and rescue missions during World War II.

Since the war, CAP has continued to provide emergency air search and rescue assistance. In addition, the organization has added an aerospace education function which extends to adults and youngsters.

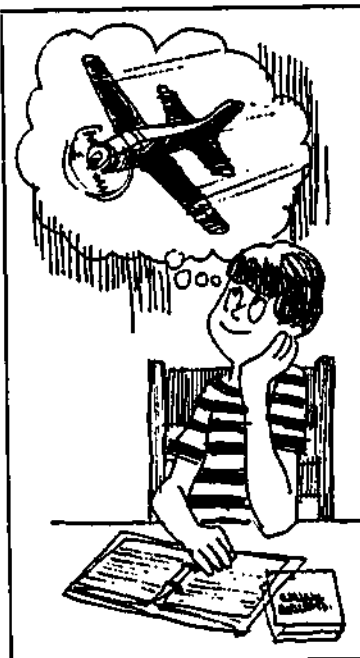

IT IS THE CAP cadet program which is most active in the Northwest suburban area. By missing out on what the CAP cadet program has to offer, area youngsters, who wistfully dream of one day learning to fly, may be missing an invaluable opportunity.

It takes Houchens, who is the commander of the Wheeling Cadet squadron, a few minutes to describe all the activities which the program includes.

"If you took the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Civil Defense workers all rolled into one and made them aerospace nuts, that's what CAP is," he said.

The Wheeling squadron, which presently includes 16 cadets and three adults, meets at 8 p.m. every Monday at Wheeling High School. These meetings concentrate on aerospace education and leadership training.

According to Houchens, a typical meeting includes classroom instruction on flying and some concentration on leadership training, through drills, guest lecturers, or classroom material.

The squadron also offers a range of activities, besides the Monday meetings, in which most cadets participate. These activities include orientation flights, which give cadets their first real taste of flying.

The flights are conducted by qualified instructors as a regular program. After an introductory flight successive flights acquaint cadets with landing and take-off procedures, stalls, turns and other maneuvers. Finally, the more sophisticated aspects of flying such as cross-country and radio procedures are taught to the cadets.

Excavation work on the Busse Woods retention basin, the largest of six flood control structures of the project, is expected to begin soon under state funding.

Salt Creek watershed funding expected

Approval of federal funding for the Upper Salt Creek watershed flood-control program reportedly will be granted soon, but federal officials did not specify an exact date.

A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, said the Office of Management and Budget would submit the resolution for funding to Congress by the end of this week. The spokesman said congressional approval would be granted soon.

A spokesman for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service said the agency has heard rumors for several weeks that OMB would soon submit the resolution to Congress. As of yesterday afternoon, the congressional public works committees had not received the resolution, according to the spokesman.

The SCS would be the agency that would administer any federal funding.

OFFICIALS from OMB would not comment yesterday on when the resolution would go to Congress.

Federal funds of $11.8 million are being requested for the flood control program. The funds are about half the money needed for the project. State and local government agencies are contributing the balance.

Approval by OMC and Congress would Stuck for a special holiday meal?

Having problems thinking up a special new dish to prepare for that holiday meal? The Elk Grove Park District may be able to help.

"Holiday Cookery" is one of the newest classes being offered by the park district this season. Teaching the four-session course will be Charlotte Erickson, author of "The Freezer Cookbook." Mrs. Erickson also writes a weekly syndicated column, incorporating her time and energy-saving ideas for the busy woman in the kitchen.

The class will meet every other Tuesday from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. starting Oct. 23. The course will be conducted in the Home Economics room at Grove Junior High School.

Anyone from junior high age and up can enroll in the course for a $19 fee. The class is expected to have about 30 students.

Four main topics will be covered in the

The cost to cadets is normally around $2 for each such orientation flight, Houchens said. This pays for gas expenses.

Other regular activities are camping and other scouting-type activities held on weekends, and a course on basic electronics and radio procedures.

FOR CADETS who are serious about learning to fly, the squadron also provides the opportunity for actual flight training. CAP owns a Cessna 150 trainer plane housed at Chicago's Midway Airport which cadets can use for flight lessons.

While flight lessons are expensive, cadets can achieve their private pilot's license for around $500, Houchens said. Normally, a license would cost more than $1,000, he said.

Beyond the regular activities sponsored by the squadron, cadets also may choose to participate in several special activities.

Every year CAP sponsors one-to-two-week training camps at Air Force bases, which cost about $40. Although the sessions cover a variety of subjects, the most popular session is the survival course, Houchens said. In it, cadets are given survival training similar to that which the Army Green Berets receive.

CAP ALSO sponsors an International Air Cadet Exchange program which involves summer trips to a foreign country in Europe, the Near East, Central or South America and Southeast Asia.

Finally, CAP annually offers around $41,000 in college scholarships to deserving cadets. While the scholarships are not restricted to military schools, they are science- and engineering-oriented. In addition, CAP also offers scholarships to help defer the costs of flight training.

While Houchens said CAP "is trying to build leadership qualities and does have some military flavor attached to it," he stressed that CAP is a civilian organization. It is entirely privately-funded and membership has no effect on military status.

WHILE MOST cadets wear uniforms, the uniforms are not mandatory. Also, long hair need not prevent an interested youngster from joining, Houchens said.

In order to join the cadet program, a boy or girl must be between 13 and 18 years old, single, in school and a U.S. citizen. The Wheeling cadet squadron includes communities within a five-mile radius of Wheeling High School, excluding Lake County.

Adults wishing to join CAP must be over 18 and a U.S. citizen.

Annual dues are $8 for cadets, while adults must pay a $28 initiation fee, after which time dues are $21 per year.

Anyone interested in finding out more about CAP is encouraged to attend one of the regular Monday night squadron meetings, Houchens said. Further information also can be obtained by calling Houchens at 359-0408 or 965-4700 or by writing to CAP, P.O. Box 372, Wheeling, 60090.

Township government has survived—and prospered

by JULIA BAUER

It was just a year ago that Palatine Township officials and representatives of the local League of Women Voters (LWV) were facing off for a court battle designed to force a referendum that might do away with township government.

Today, that government is getting stronger every day, with the timely transfusion of some $71,000 from the federal government coffers for the township to spend on local social programs this year.

Federal revenue sharing is revitalizing several pet projects of Palatine Township officials, projects that were dumped in 1970 when a court ruling cut off an anticipated $190,000 in excess commissions.

Townships had previously been allowed to take a 2 per cent commission for county taxes collected by the township. When the system was ruled unconstitutional, the township turned to levying taxes and cutting programs to survive.

THE FEDERAL revenue-sharing program "puts us, in a way, back where we ought to have been if it had not been for Judge O'Brien, (the judge in the excess commissions case)," said Township Supervisor Howard I. Olsen. But besides the rosy picture for funding various projects, the township board is also unhampered with the abolition move that took much of its time last fall.

"We have decided this past year to be just observers... as opposed to raising everybody's blood pressure," said Alice DeViney, the chairman of the league's township study committee. She and Ann Scollay led the movement to abolish Palatine Township government, and confrontations were frequent between the two women and the board members. League members started the movement last summer, when they gathered nearly 2,000 signatures asking township officials to put the question of abolition on the Nov. 7, 1973, general election ballot.

Township auditors rejected the petitions on the advice of their attorney, because the state legislature had not set guidelines for transferring township duties to another government if a township was abolished.

ARGUMENTS FOR and against keeping township government never made it as far as a court room hearing last fall. The lower court case brought by the LWV was thrown out on a technicality, and an appeal ran out of time before the November election.

To move to abolish township government is a statewide LWV position. League members claim that the township, particularly in a metropolitan area, is an outmoded and unnecessary level of government, since most of the residents live inside other local municipal boundaries.

Township supporters deny the charges and say the township is one of the few remaining grassroots levels of government.

NOW THAT THE dust has settled, the question is whether or not the frantic abolition movement did any good. The league says yes, the township says no.

"We feel that we have done a service to the community. If nothing else, we've increased their awareness of township government. Not enough people knew enough about it," Mrs. DeViney said yesterday.

For Township Supervisor Howard I. Olsen, the abolition move is "water over the dam."

"I don't really think it changed a lot of minds," Olsen said of the LWV movement.

THREE OTHER townships were confronted last fall with similar petitions to abolish that level of government, in Maline, Niles and Northfield townships. The only referendum came in Northfield Township, where voters soundly rejected the option to abolish that township government.

In the coming months, Palatine Township officials will probably not be confronted with another abolition move from the LWV. League members are working at the state level to get enabling legislation passed, which was the major pitfall of their drive last fall.

At the local level, the Palatine board has four new auditors elected in April. And as far as the league is concerned, those auditors are doing well.

"I think they are asking more questions. They're trying to get more information before making decisions," Mrs. (continued on page 5)

Attorney selected for Centner case

Jack Siegel, a noted Chicago attorney, was named yesterday to present the village's case against former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner in the upcoming public hearing over Centner's ouster.

The selection of Siegel was announced by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, confirming a Herald report yesterday that Siegel was expected to represent the village. John D. Hayes, also a Chicago lawyer, will represent Centner in the hearing, which is tentatively set for Oct. 13.

THE HEARING, to be conducted by the three-member Palatine Fire and Police Commission, is expected to settle the questions raised in Centner's forced resignation June 25.

In demanding his resignation, Republican members of the village board accused Centner of poor leadership, low police department morale and inadequate policies in fighting drug traffic, checking for overweight trucks and inspecting taverns between 1 and 4 a.m.

Pro-Centner forces contend the former chief was not given a chance to defend himself and pushed for a public hearing to air the reasons for his ouster.

FORMAL CHARGES against Centner are expected to be drawn up within two weeks by Siegel and Jones. Jones decided against using the village's regular attorney or prosecutor to prosecute a village employee.

Siegel is a partner in the law firm of Siegel and Stoness Ltd., and represents the City of Evanston and the villages of Arlington Heights and Schaumburg.

Hayes, Centner's attorney, of John D. Hayes and Associates Ltd., was police magistrate in Palatine from 1961 to 1965 and is president of the Illinois Trial Lawyers Association.

The three members of the fire and police commission, who were appointed by Jones, are Paul Jung (chairman), Gray M. Sanborn and Roger Mick.

They will submit a report of their findings and recommendations after the hearing, but the village board is not obligated to follow the suggestions.

'Centner affair' cost: $5,000?

The Centner affair could wind up costing Palatine taxpayers as much as $5,000.

The potential total covers attorney fees of up to $1,500 for the village's special prosecutor, Jack Siegel, and as much as $3,500 in extra wages for former Police Chief Robert R. Centner himself, if he remains on the force as a lieutenant.

Siegel is regarded as one of the most respected lawyers in the Chicago area, and his $50-to $80-an-hour fee—some $10 more to $20 more than most lawyers—reflects his reputation. Siegel's services are expected to cost the village $1,200 to $1,500, according to Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

In addition, the village could potentially spend an extra $3,500 in wages over a two-year period because of the Centner case.

IN ACCEPTING Centner's resignation on June 25, the trustees agreed to keep him on the payroll as a lieutenant, but as his chief's salary of $19,200—$1,755.30 a year more than the regular salary for lieutenants of $17,444.70 a year.

The acting police chief, Frank Ortiz, has also been drawing the chief's salary, $19,200, plus the 5 per cent pay hike approved by village trustees, or a total of $20,160.

After the public hearing, tentatively set for Oct. 13, Centner will either be reinstated by the trustees as police chief or be kept on as a lieutenant. If he remains a lieutenant, he would still receive the chief's salary, because of the prior agreement with the trustees.

The 16-year police veteran is two years from retirement, so the additional $1,755 a year in wages if Centner remains a lieutenant could run the village $3,510.

Village's recycling center to reopen this month

Wait! Don't throw out that newspaper. And hold onto those old soft drink bottles too.

Paper and glass, as well as tin, once again will become valuable commodities in Palatine when the village's recycling center reopens, tentatively later this month.

Organizers of the revised recycling center are hoping for a Sept. 29 opening date. As currently planned, the center would be open the last Saturday of each month. If sponsoring organizations can be found, the center will be open an additional day each month.

The previous recycling center, operated by the health department, was closed in June because of abuse. Residents were not properly bundling newspapers brought to the recycling center, or separating clear from colored bottles.

PLANS FOR the recycling center are to be reviewed by the village board's health, safety and welfare committee Monday, and by the Environmental Control Board Sept. 19. Final village board approval of the old village dump site at Northwest Highway and Smith Street for the center is expected Sept. 24.

Eleanor Mize, chairman of the newly formed Palatine Recycling Committee, said she hopes residents will "cooperate and make it work this time because it certainly is necessary and is a good community endeavor toward cleaning up the environment."

Organizers of the new center hope to avoid the problems encountered with the previous center by supervising the center whenever it's open. Tentative hours for the center are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Palatine Road widening at Winston to start Oct. 1

The long-awaited widening of Palatine Road at Winston Drive in Palatine is tentatively scheduled to begin Oct. 1.

Workers from Englehardt Inc., Mundelein, will be on the scene starting Oct. 24 for construction preparations.

Actual construction may begin the following Monday, Oct. 1, according to David Cook, project cost account head of Englehardt.

The $1 million project is expected to take 100 working days. Subtracting some days because of adverse weather conditions, completion of the project is not expected until next May at the earliest, according to Cook.

Only one lane will be open to traffic during construction, and motorists are advised to take alternate routes if possible.

The road improvement is designed to get rid of the present bottleneck as Palatine Road narrows from four lanes to two at the Winston Drive intersection.

THE PRESENT stop signs at the crossing will be replaced by traffic signals. Left-turn lanes will be provided for Palatine Road traffic.

Frontage roads will continue to exist, though they will be moved slightly. Six homes in the path of the new frontage road are being moved for the road improvement.

The $1 million price tag is being split by the state and federal highway departments. The village's share of the cost is $15,000 toward the traffic light installation.

THE TWO-LANE stretch of Palatine

Road between Winston and Williams drives is the only segment of Palatine Road between Waukegan Road in Northfield and Hicks Road in Palatine which is not four lanes wide.

Further west in Palatine, the road again narrows to two lanes, but this stretch of road is scheduled for widening by the state in its long range plans.

The improvement at Winston Drive will serve the 2,000 residents of the Winston Park subdivision, as well as residents of the Lake Louise, and Spinnaker Cove-Virginia Lake subdivisions.

U.S. funding expected soon

A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Philip Crane,

R-12th, said the Office of Management and Budget would submit the resolution for funding to Congress by the end of this week. The spokesman said congressional approval would be granted soon.

A spokesman for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service said the agency has heard rumors for several weeks that OMB would soon submit the resolution to Congress. As of yesterday afternoon, the congressional public works committees had not received the resolution, according to the spokesman.

The SCS would be the agency that would administer any federal funding.

OFFICIALS from OMB would not comment yesterday on when the resolution would go to Congress.

Federal funds of $11.8 million are being requested for the flood control program. The funds are about half the money needed for the project. State and local government agencies are contributing the balance.

'Copters join Chanley search

A helicopter search was conducted yesterday for a 75-year-old man who wandered away from St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine sometime Friday.

Men from the Chicago Fire Department, who manned the helicopter, searched fields and roads in the surrounding area. As of late yesterday afternoon, their efforts had not turned up any clues to the fate of Alexander Chanley.

Chanley, 75, reportedly said he was going to walk to a nearby store when he left the home Friday morning. Police have asked area residents to contact the department, 358-2131, if they have seen Chanley.

Police said Chanley weighs 184 pounds, is bald and about 5 feet, 2 inches tall.

He was last seen wearing a green short-sleeve shirt, gray pants, brown jacket, brown ankle boots and a straw hat.

St. Joseph officials told police that Chanley gets lost easily and may have wandered off.

Sol Murtha

Sol Murtha, 43, of 330 Lake St., Mundelein, died suddenly yesterday morning in Highland Park Hospital, Highland Park, after a brief illness. A resident of Mundelein for 15 years, he was born Feb. 5, 1930, in Chicago.

Mr. Murtha was a co-owner of the Father and Son Roofing Co. in Mundelein, and was a member of the Mundelein American Legion Post, No. 867.

Visitation is tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday in the chapel of the funeral home, with the Rev. George Groh of the Diamond Lake Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Willow Lawn Cemetery, Mundelein.

Surviving are his widow, Evelyn (Lorraine), nee Mackel, formerly of Palatine; daughter, Mrs. Linda (Nick) Phelan of Chicago; a son, A. Ricky, at home; one grandson; two brothers, Frank Yormark of Iron Mountain, Mich., and Jerry Rosen of Chicago, and a sister, Esther Moss of Chicago.

Raymond E. Baker

Raymond E. Baker 67, of Reedsburg, Wis., formerly of Des Plaines, a retired machinist for H. M. Harper Co., died Sunday in Reedsburg Memorial Hospital, Reedsburg, Wis. He was born Aug. 16, 1906.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. on Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, where funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are his widow, Hedwig; a daughter, Mrs. Francis Koecher of Des Plaines; two grandchildren; two brothers, Floyd of Anderson Ind., and Lonnie of Westfield, Ill., and a sister, Mrs. Carolyn Odom of Sparks, Nev.

Marie Handley

Funeral services for Mrs. Marie Handley, 73, nee Rhodus, of 724 N. Hawk, Palatine, were held Monday in Bloomington, Ill. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Normal, Ill.

Mrs. Handley, born April 8, 1900, in Illinois, died Saturday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Marilyn (Richard) Majus of Palatine; a son, Jerry and daughter-in-law, Lorraine Handley of Tucson, Ariz.; five grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Catherine (Richard) Prescott, and two brothers, Russell and Joseph Rhodus, all of Bloomington, Ill. She was preceded in death by her husband, Thomas.

Funeral arrangements were made by Ahgrim and Sons Funeral Home, Palatine.

Deaths Elsewhere

LOIEL JOHN MIRS, 48, of Pasadena, Calif., formerly of Arlington Heights, died suddenly Aug. 31, 1973, in Needles, Calif. He was born in Little Falls, Minn., March 14, 1925.

Funeral services were held Sept. 5, 1973, in St. John's Chapel in Pasadena, Calif.

Surviving are his widow, Eleanor; a daughter, Mrs. Lynn (Walter) Bartlett of Palatine; three sons, Lee and Loel John Jr. MIRS, both of Palatine and Norman Menth of Pasadena, Calif.; mother, Mrs. Hilda (the late Otto) MIRS of Bensenville, formerly of Arlington Heights; five sisters, Mrs. Sarah (Edward) Lamb of Algonquin, Mrs. Gladys (Ward) Weste and his twin sister, Mrs. Lorraine (Alvin) Haas, both of Des Plaines, Mrs. Erna (Frank) Frohne of Arlington Heights and Mrs. Jerry Sezech of Pasadena, Calif.; three brothers, Gilbert and Otto, both of Arlington Heights and Orville MIRS of Tempe, Ariz.; three nieces and five nephews.

JAMES H. SPEERS, 70, of 246 S. West-ern Ave., Aurora, Ill., formerly of Arlington Heights for 13 years, died suddenly Thursday in Aurora, after an apparent heart attack. He was born Jan. 28, 1903, in Pontiac, Ill.

Prior to retirement five years ago as an accountant for Northern Illinois Gas Co., with about 25 years of service, Mr. Speers had been a resident of Aurora since 1959. He was a member of the New England Congregational Church in Aurora, and a member of the board of trustees of the church. He was also a member of the Jerusalem Temple Lodge No. 90, A.F. & A.M.; University of Illinois Alumni Association, and a former member of the First Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the New England Congregational Church, Aurora. The Rev. Dr. Edward L. Kohlmann officiated. Burial was in Lincoln Memorial Park Cemetery, Aurora.

Surviving are his widow, Dorothy, nee Albrecht; a son, Robert of Aurora; two daughters, Mrs. Jane (William) Franz of Crystal Lake and Mrs. Judy (Douglas) Morton of Denver, Colo.; seven grandchildren; three brothers, Ray and Gordon, both of Odell, Ill., and Robert Speers of St. Louis, Mo., and two sisters, Mrs. Lucille (Glen) Shurt of Pontiac, Ill., and Mrs. Grace (Orville) Jones of Pekin, Ill.

Healy Funeral Home Chapel in Aurora was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Village board wrapup

Remodeling plan objection readied

The Village of Palatine will lodge a formal objection to plans to remodel a house just outside the village limits for a Montessori nursery school.

Village trustees this week decided to file a statutory objection with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals over a request for a special zoning use to operate the school at the northwest corner of Quentin Road and Kenilworth Street.

The trustees concurred with concerns expressed by the plan commission that the present two-story house does not have adequate space for loading and unloading, and does not have adequate sanitation facilities.

The village's filing of an objection means the special use permit would have to be approved by a three-fourths majority of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, rather than by a simple majority.

Church solicitation request turned down

Volunteers from the newly-formed Unification Church in Chicago won't be allowed to solicit for funds in Palatine.

Village trustees this week turned down a request by church organizers to allow paid volunteers to offer candles for a contribution on a door-to-door basis.

Trustee James L. Shaw said he is "all for the ideals they say they stand for," but said the church group's letter to the village was vague and inconsistent.

New sandwich shop to open soon at Plaza

A sandwich shop will be opening soon in the Palatine Plaza shopping center, Northwest Highway and Hicks Road.

Village trustees this week approved a special zoning use permit for Shelly's, a breakfast and lunch counter, in the store formerly occupied by the Palatine Currency Exchange, which has moved to the Palatine Mall. The restaurant, operated by Sheldon Blumberg, who has run restaurants in Chicago for the past 11 years, is expected to mainly serve shopping center employees.

Bothwell St. to keep single-family housing

S. Bothwell Street in Palatine will remain single family residential after all. Village trustees this week rejected a request to convert a house on the west side of Bothwell, just south of Washington Street, to a three-flat.

The decision was in keeping with the recommendation of the zoning board of appeals. Some 30 residents of the neighborhood had objected to the rezoning at the public hearing last month, and were present Monday night when the village board considered the petition.

Residents contended remodeling the house would change the character of the neighborhood. The house is owned by Louis and Anna Meier. The petition was filed by John and Mildred Ignatius.

DeViney said of the new board. Along with the change of auditors, two new league observers attend board meetings now.

DURING THE PAST few months, the township board has allotted some $42,000 to various social service agencies, including a day care center, a new activities program for the elderly, support of the Northwest Mental Health Clinic, and the Northwest Opportunity Center and money for flood control equipment for the highway department. Additional requests will be reviewed Sept. 24.

The federal revenue sharing program is on a five-year schedule, at which time the U. S. Congress will review it and decide whether or not to continue the program.

Olsen is working to get the local social programs "on a sound basis first," in case revenue sharing is stopped at the end of the five years.

"We will come to a point where, as a community, we can't afford to do without those services," Olsen predicted, adding that local people will find some way to fund it.

One of the township's biggest projects is currently funded by local tax dollars.

The Bridge youth services bureau, a counseling agency, is in its third year and is receiving $53,000 this year from Palatine Township. Other area townships are also contributing to its operation.

Residents OK Arlington Crest rezoning

Residents of the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine have endorsed rezoning the subdivision to a new zoning category created especially for Arlington Crest.

Eveline Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Association, said at a public hearing Monday night that the new category, R-1-C, would enable residents of the subdivision "to continue to enjoy our large lot size."

Arlington Crest lots are an irregular size compared with other single family residential subdivisions in the village, and because of it, Arlington Crest property owners have had to obtain zoning variations before beginning any construction.

Skating lessons begin Monday at parks

Ice skating lessons will be offered beginning Monday by the Salt Creek Park District. Classes will be held at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex and will run for six weeks.

Classes will run for a half hour and will be available for all levels of ability, plus hockey classes and mom and tot classes. An exhibition will be held after the final session, which will end Oct. 27. Registration fee is $14. Register by calling 259-6890.

The previous village board proposed as a solution rezoning the subdivision to the R-2 category, which also is for single-family residential districts, but Arlington Crest residents feared it would lead to higher taxes. They suggested that a new zoning category be set up.

No objectors to the rezoning of the subdivision, which lies on the southeastern edge of Palatine, were present at the public hearing.

The village board is expected to approve the reclassification of Arlington Crest at a later meeting.

Next police chief 'not pre-picked'

The next police chief of Palatine was not pre-picked, according to Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

Jones Monday night denied suggestions by a resident, Andre Scheffer, that Frank Ortiz, the acting police chief, will be named full-time police chief.

Village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc referred to a Herald article identifying Ortiz as "a leading candidate" for the post as "very poor taste," and said it put the police chief search committee in "a very strange position."

The article, a news analysis, described the numerous tasks Ortiz has undertaken during his two-month tenure which his predecessor, Robert R. Centner, failed to perform, according to village trustees who forced Centner to resign.

PTA notes

The Northwest Suburban PTA Council of School Dist. 15 is looking for bridge players to play in their annual Bridge Derby.

Bridge games are held on the second Saturday evening of every month starting in October and ending in May. Participants do not have to be members of the PTA, have children in Dist. 15 schools or have a great deal of skill at the game.

The monthly charge is $2 per couple. The winners of each two-table round retain their $2. Cumulative scores are kept and prizes will be awarded to the winner and runner-up at a June banquet. The remainder of the money is placed in a revolving loan fund for teachers in the district who need financial assistance in furthering their education.

Persons interested in the monthly bridge games should contact either Marge Silbgen at 359-1266 or Sue Elbridge at 358-5886 by the end of this month. Substitutes are also needed.

"PTA A-Fair" will open the PTA season at Hunting Ridge School in Palatine on Tuesday, Sept. 18 at 8 p.m.

The fair will feature 11 booths depicting the many facets of PTA and explaining the program for 1973-74. The fair will follow a brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. John Kennedy, PTA president.

All parents in the Hunting Ridge School attendance area and teachers are invited to attend the meeting.

Library board will discuss referendum

Plans for a referendum to finance a new Palatine library will be discussed tonight at 7:30 when library board members meet in the board room at 49 N. Brockway St.

Library officials will review building plans and costs and may set a date for the referendum, expected to come next month.

No cost estimate has been released for the proposed library. A building site has already been purchased on Benton Street south of Northwest Highway.

'Estimated tax' deadline Sept. 17

Individuals filing 1973 declarations of estimated tax have an important deadline approaching. According to Roger C. Beck, Internal Revenue Service district director for Northern Illinois, Sept. 17 is the date by which third quarter estimated tax installments must be filed and paid.

Beck reminded estimated tax filers that they no longer will receive a reminder notice each quarter.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income during 1973 has changed may be required to either amend their declaration, or if they have not already done so, to file one. Space to compute the amount of estimated tax due is provided in the estimated tax package.

Further information on filing estimated tax returns can be obtained from a local IRS office.

Township government has survived—and prospered

by JULIA BAUER

It was just a year ago that Palatine Township officials and representatives of the local League of Women Voters (LWV) were facing off for a court battle designed to force a referendum that might do away with township government.

Today, that government is getting stronger every day, with the timely transfusion of some $71,000 from the federal government coffers for the township, to spend on local social programs this year.

Federal revenue sharing is revitalizing several pet projects of Palatine Township officials, projects that were dumped in 1970 when a court ruling cut off an anticipated $120,000 in excess commissions.

Townships had previously been allowed to take a 2 per cent commission for county taxes collected by the township. When the system was ruled unconstitutional, the township turned to levying taxes and cutting programs to survive.

THE FEDERAL revenue-sharing program "puts us, in a way, back where we ought to have been if it had not been for Judge O'Brien, (the judge in the excess commissions case)," said Township Supervisor Howard I. Olsen. But besides the rosy picture for funding various projects, the township board is also unhampered with the abolition move that took much of its time last fall.

"We have decided this past year to be just observers . . . as opposed to raising everybody's blood pressure," said Alice DeViney, the chairman of the league's township study committee. She and Ann Scollay led the movement to abolish Palatine Township government, and confrontations were frequent between the two women and the board members.

League members started the movement last summer, when they gathered nearly 2,000 signatures asking township officials to put the question of abolition on the Nov. 7, 1973, general election ballot.

ARGUMENTS FOR and against keeping township government never made it as far as a court room hearing last fall. The lower court case brought by the LWV was thrown out on a technicality, and an appeal ran out of time before the November election.

To move to abolish township government is a statewide LWV position. League members claim that the township, particularly in a metropolitan area, is an outmoded and unnecessary level of government, since most of the residents live inside other local municipal boundaries.

Township supporters deny the charges and say the township is one of the few remaining grassroots levels of government.

NOW THAT THE dust has settled, the question is whether or not the frantic abolition movement did any good. The league says yes, the township says no.

"We feel that we have done a service to the community. If nothing else, we've increased their awareness of township government. Not enough people knew enough about it," Mrs. DeViney said yesterday.

For Township Supervisor Howard I. Olsen, the abolition move is "water over the dam."

"I don't really think it changed a lot of minds," Olsen said of the LWV movement.

THREE OTHER townships were confronted last fall with similar petitions to abolish that level of government, in Maine, Niles and Northfield townships.

The only referendum came in Northfield Township, where voters soundly rejected the option to abolish that township government.

In the coming months, Palatine Township officials will probably not be confronted with another abolition move from the LWV. League members are working at the state level to get enabling legislation passed, which was the major pitfall of their drive last fall.

At the local level, the Palatine board has four new auditors elected in April. And as far as the league is concerned, those auditors are doing well.

"I think they are asking more questions. They're trying to get more information before making decisions," Mrs.

From 50 to 60 cents

School lunch prices rising

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 35 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 90 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

Cost of adult lunches will be higher at Arlington High School than at other schools, district officials explained, because there is a separate serving line for teachers at that school. At other schools, teachers go through regular cafeteria lines with students.

The increases are necessary because of increased prices in staple food items purchased by the district, district officials said. Cost increases range from 7 per cent over last year for sugar to 81 per cent for macaroni.

In other action, the board approved a program to provide free and reduced price lunches for students from low-income families. Under the program a student from a family of four with an income of $5,310 a year is eligible for a free lunch and the same student with a family income of $4,380 a year is eligible for a reduced price lunch.

Recycle program expansion a surprise

by TONI GINETTI

When Mrs. Sandy Behr made a suggestion two months ago to the Rolling Meadows recycling, ecology, and beautification (REB) committee to expand the city's recycling program, she never expected the program would be under way today under her direction.

"I'm only surprised that it happened so soon," Mrs. Behr said of her suggestion to open a recycling station at the Meadow Trace apartments, where she resides.

The recycling drive at the apartments began last month and will be held again this week as part of the city's regular recycling effort. The program was started by the REB committee and in part by the efforts of Mrs. Behr.

MRS. BEHR had been a regular recycler for two years when she was approached by the REB committee to join the organization, she said. When she filled out an information card, Mrs. Behr included some notes on her thoughts about expanding the program.

Two months later, the organization called her asking her to detail her ideas which were then reviewed by Supt. of Public Works John Hennessy and supported by Meadow Trace manager Bill Revello.

"Actually, the committee had wanted to start something in the apartments before and it was sort of a matter of finding someone interested in working on it," Mrs. Behr said. "Also the Meadow Trace management showed more interest in the program than other apartments."

The special recycling program at the apartments began last month and will be held again this week from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. tomorrow and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday. The city's regular recycling will be held Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the public works building, 3200 Central Rd.

"IT KIND OF makes you feel good to see something like this start so fast," Mrs. Behr said. "Usually it would take about a year to start this kind of thing."

For residents interested in participating, cans, bottles, and newspapers may be brought to the collection site behind the White Hen store at the Meadow Trace complex.

A $25 rent credit will be awarded to one of the residents who contributes to the drive. Other prizes to be awarded will be a golf cart from the apartment and $17 in coupons from the One Hour Martinizing store in Meadow Square.

The monthly bicycle drawing will be held Saturday at the regular recycling drive.

Most revenue sharing funds going to city water needs

The major portion of Rolling Meadows' bonanza total of $225,943 in federal revenue sharing funds for the 1973-74 fiscal year was earmarked last night for city water needs.

The City Council approved a resolution presented by the finance, ordinance, and judiciary committee to allocate the funds for four categories, three of which deal with water needs. The resolution calls for $35,000 of the funds for the purchase of a new refuse truck and two pieces of equipment for it, with the rest of the money, some $190,943 to go for water uses.

Of the $190,943, $75,000 will go toward the purchase of a one million gallon elevated water storage tank at the site of the city's sixth well site now under construction near the intersection of Golf Road and the Northwest Tollway. Another $75,000 will be used to loop a city water main from Rohlwing Road at the Levitz Furniture store west to Hicks Road north of the Hallcrafters plant.

THE FINAL $40,943 of the total will be used toward the drilling of a seventh well site in the city on property near the Zale development on the western limits of the city.

The $225,943 figure represents the amount the city expects to receive in federal revenue sharing funds from July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974. The total is slightly less than the amount of $229,899 in revenue sharing which the city has received from the time the program began last year to June 30, 1973.

A major portion of the city's first revenue sharing allotments went toward the purchase of flood control equipment.

The federal government requires governing bodies which receive revenue sharing funds to file use reports with the government detailing intended uses for the funds.

Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd) questioned whether the $75,000 allocation for the well drilling could be allowed since the well may not be drilled for another year. City Atty. Donald Rose said the use is permitted because the report is to show intended use of funds.

Rose wins Dem committeeman post

William Rose of Elk Grove Village was elected Elk Grove Township committeeman last night after efforts to open voting to all township Democratic organization members failed.

R. Kent Kirkwood, of Mount Prospect, who resigned as president of the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization to seek the committeeman post introduced the motion that all paid members of the organization be allowed to vote.

The motion was defeated 22-10 by a vote of precinct captains only. Kirkwood received 23 votes in the final election. Rose had 23. And Paul Shaneyfelt received three.

Shaneyfelt and Kirkwood both said they would seek the committeeman post in the regular March election. Last night's election was because of the re-irement of Chester Chesney. Rose will serve until March.

ROSE AND OTHER party members said winning this election would be a definite advantage in March when all registered Democrats will select the committeeman.

There was considerable debate before the vote was taken on whether to open last night's election to all Democrats.

Paul Reitberg, precinct captain, said, "No matter who is elected, he has to live with the precinct captains and members of the organization. Whoever is committeeman would have a better position, having been elected by all members."

Kirkwood had suggested that an outside person be invited to preside over the election of Chesney's successor. He also objected to what he called a lack of by-laws to govern the filling of the vacancy.

Kirkwood had also suggested that State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a state central committeeman, preside over the election. But Pierce did not attend.

There was an effort to retain Chesney as a vote of confidence for his more than 12 years of service. But he declined.

Rose spoke before the election and said he felt that possibly everyone who was a Democrat should have the opportunity to vote for committeeman. But he added that the precinct captains should decide whether or not to abrogate that right.

Rose was an unsuccessful candidate last year for the state senate against Republican David J. Regner. Shaneyfelt was a one-time candidate for the state senate and township supervisor.

The meeting was held at Aerospace Machinists Hall in Des Plaines.

Camp planned for handicapped

A place in the woods of their own

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Imagine a placid lake, a canopy of green leaves, rustic wooden cabins and blind child touching a tree labeled in braille.

With a little help, a 10-acre camp for handicapped children from the Northwest suburbs will no longer be a dream.

The camp, located just east of Bartlett, Ill., was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) by the state this summer.

IT IS PLANNED for use by all handicapped children of school age in the Cooperative's member school districts, but according to NEC officials, it's still a long way from becoming a reality. The camp has been vacant for several years and has been nearly destroyed by vandals. As Jeffery Inkle, NEC business manager put it, "It can't be vandalized any more than it already is — short of burning it down."

The cooperative doesn't have enough money in its budget to hire a cleanup crew or buy furnishings and equipment for the camp but NEC officials plan to start the cleanup job themselves in the next few weeks and are looking for parents, civic groups and other volunteers to donate time and money.

Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center for the retarded, one of the cooperative's education services, said he's going to get "one of those dump trucks and just start piling in."

CHILDREN in Kirk Center are going to help too, Sterrett said. He hopes to make landscaping and cleanup work a project for the center's vocational education classes.

NEC officials hope to make the camp available to children with any type of handicap, physical, mental or emotional. They plan to label the trees in large type for children who have poor vision and in braille for blind children. The camp will be equipped with ramps, paths and bath facilities for children in wheelchairs.

"We want to give our youngsters a well-rounded exposure to all environments," Sterrett said. These children usually "don't know a camp experience like regular boys and girls do," he said. "We want the students to get out there to feel, touch and experience nature," said Jeff Peterson, diagnostician at Kirk Center. Students who have problems learning language will benefit from the camp, he said because it will "arouse curiosity," and get them to ask questions, talk and learn new words.

Besides vocational projects and learning about nature, camp counselors will also teach students to play. "We teach recreation to our kids because their recreation has basically been before the TV," Sterrett said. "Anything we can do to help our kids become more independent is our real objective," he said. "We want to help them be able to fit in with others and function and become more productive members of society."

THE CAMP HAS five wooden cabins that will house 12 children each, a lodge with a cafeteria and a stone fireplace, and a craft cabin for students working on art projects. The area abounds with trees, brush and wild flowers. Students will be able to use an 11-acre lake that borders the camp site which has been approved by the state for swimming and is stocked with fish.

The camp was originally called "Sunset Camp," and was operated by a private organization in the 1940s as a summer camp for adolescent girls. It was later used as a camp for diabetic children.

Sterrett heard about the camp about a year and a half ago when it belonged to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The department operates the Herrick House, a temporary foster home located on the opposite side of the lake, but had not used Sunset camp for several years.

STATE SEN. David H. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, sponsored a bill in the state legislature earlier this year to give the camp to the cooperative. The bill was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker on Sept. 5.

The camp will be operated through an NEC advisory board chaired by Arthur Aronson, High School Dist. 214 representative at NEC. The cooperative hopes to use the land as a day camp next summer and eventually make it into a 12-month residential camp. It will be self-supporting, said Sterrett, through donations, grant money from the state and student tuition.

PRINCIPAL RON Sterrett, of Kirk Center said the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs volunteers to clean up the special education camp. It's time to "just start piling in."

DeViney said of the new board. Along with the change of auditors, two new league observers attend board meetings now.

DURING THE PAST few months, the township board has allotted some $42,000 to various social service agencies, including a day care center, a new activities program for the elderly, support of the Northwest Mental Health Clinic, and the Northwest Opportunity Center and money for flood control equipment for the highway department. Additional requests will be reviewed Sept. 24.

The federal revenue sharing program is on a five-year schedule, at which time the U. S. Congress will review it and decide whether or not to continue the program.

Olsen is working to get the local social programs "on a sound basis first," in case revenue sharing is stopped at the end of the five years.

"We will come to a point where, as a community, we can't afford to do without those services," Olsen predicted, adding that local people will find some way to fund it.

One of the township's biggest projects is currently funded by local tax dollars. The Bridge youth services bureau, a counseling agency, is in its third year and is receiving $53,000 this year from Palatine Township. Other area townships are also contributing to its operation.

No word yet on 62-New Wilke stoplights

Officials in Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights still are awaiting information from the Commercial Light Co. of Chicago on when installation can begin on temporary traffic lights for the intersection of Algonquin and New Wilke roads.

Officials had hoped the work could begin by mid-September, but as yet no agreement has been signed between the two communities, which have agreed to share the cost of the project.

The project is expected to cost each community about $5,000 but a final agreement has not been reached because of a last-minute change requested by the state.

Because Algonquin Road is a state thoroughfare, the state has requested that a special traffic timing device be included in the project. Rolling Meadows the project is being held up until the City Engineer James Muldowney said awarded the contract for the work, can determine how much the device will cost and when it can purchase the device.

The company had bid $9,200 for the project, but the additional device is expected to hike the cost of the project from $800 to $1,000.

MULDOWNEY SAID the device will maintain a green light on Algonquin Road until it detects traffic on Wilke. It will replace a clock timing device that would have allowed a green light on each road for a designated number of minutes.

Construction of the temporary lights is expected to take ten working days once the project is begun. Both municipalities had sought the lights as a means of reducing the number of accidents at the intersection. Muldowney said he expects to hear shortly from the company on when the special device can be obtained and when work on the project can begin.

The temporary lights will be replaced next year with permanent traffic lights when the extension of New Wilke south to Golf Road is completed. That work is scheduled to begin later this year.

'Estimated tax' deadline Sept. 17

Individuals filing 1973 declarations of estimated tax have an important deadline approaching. According to Roger C. Beck, Internal Revenue Service district director for Northern Illinois, Sept. 17 is the date by which third quarter estimated tax installments must be filed and paid.

Beck reminded estimated tax filers that they no longer will receive a reminder notice each quarter.

Taxpayers whose anticipated income during 1973 has changed may be required to either amend their declaration, or if they have not already done so, to file one. Space to compute the amount of estimated tax due is provided in the estimated tax package.

Further information on filing estimated tax returns can be obtained from a local IRS office.

by PAT GERLACH

Widening and reconstruction of Golf and Algonquin roads should be completed by the end of 1973 and both Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates have entered the homestretch on interior resurfacing and signalization projects.

Fine grading of Golf Road, between Meacham and Roselle roads, is scheduled to begin Monday, said Al Sifrer, Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) project group leader.

"We hope to complete all paving from Meacham to Higgins on Golf by the end of November, weather permitting," Sifrer explained.

A $1.9 million contract with Greco Contractors Inc., Rosemont specifies 170 working days for the project which began last November.

SIFRER SAID WORK on Algonquin Road is progressing along the same timetable.

"There we have paved two lanes and hope to begin fine grading the north two lanes from Quentin Road to Roselle Road within the week," Sifrer said.

In Hoffman Estates this week, bids for a resurfacing project involving five miles of streets will be opened, said John Hossack, superintendent of public works.

Hossack said the areas involve some streets in the Highlands section and others in the Bode Road section west of Evanston Lane.

He indicated that the work is to be completed by mid to late October and said the village allocated $82,500 in Motor Fuel Tax (MFT) funds for the work.

A major street reconstruction program, using $150,000 in 1972 MFT money was completed in June.

IN SCHAUMBURG, installation of traffic signals at two busy intersections will be completed by the end of the month.

Stoplights are being placed at Roselle and Schaumburg roads and at Roselle and Wise roads at a total cost of $260,000. Work is being done by Rock Road Corp., Elk Grove Village.

Approximately 21 per cent of the cost will be paid by the village with MFT money, according to Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina.

Under the Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety (TOPICS), the village will receive supplemental assistance from the county, state and federal government, he explained.

Hofert recommends quick action on Meridian plans

Settlement with Meridian Housing Corp., which seeks special zoning from Hoffman Estates to develop a 497-acre bankrupt subdivision now under federal receivership, was strongly recommended by village attorney Al Hofert.

Hofert told a joint panel of plan commission and zoning board of appeals members yesterday they should act quickly or the courts will act.

During this third public hearing of a series to be held nightly until all testimony is given, Hofert said, "This zoning hearing is like none other."

He explained that Meridian's offer to buy the bankrupt subdivision in Palatine Township, formerly known as Howel-in-the-Hills, for $5.5 million and build a planned development called Westbury will save the village money and avoid legal fights.

LITIGATION RESULTING from the original development plans now in the courts has Hoffman Estates facing special assessment bond claims of approximately $1 million. If Meridian builds Westbury these bond claims will be redeemed by the federal receivers out of the proceeds from the land.

Hofert added that the Meridian firm could be the village's answer to the six-year legal battle.

The land in receivership under the jurisdiction of the Federal District Court of Chicago is part of the assets of the bankrupt City Savings and Loan Association.

Meridian's offer to purchase is the receiver's attempt to recoup losses. Federal judges have placed an Oct. 1 deadline on the land negotiations. The panel must bring its recommendations to the Hoffman village board by Sept. 17.

TONIGHT'S HEARING at 7:30 p.m. in Hoffman Estates High School will continue with testimony from more Hoffman Estates village experts.

Public Works Commissioner John Hossack and Planner Gerald Estes last night also gave the Westbury plan their stamp of approval.

Objectors will be heard later during the week.

U.S. funding of Salt Creek Watershed expected soon

Approval of federal funding for the Upper Salt Creek watershed flood-control program reportedly will be granted soon, but federal officials did not specify an exact date.

A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, said the Office of Management and Budget would submit the resolution for funding to Congress by the end of this week. The spokesman said congressional approval would be granted soon.

A spokesman for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service said the agency has heard rumors for several weeks that OMB would soon submit the resolution to Congress. As of yesterday afternoon, the congressional public works committees had not received the resolution, according to the spokesman.

The SCS would be the agency that would administer any federal funding.

OFFICIALS from OMB would not comment yesterday on when the resolution would go to Congress.

Federal funds of $11.6 million are being requested for the flood control program. The funds are about half the money needed for the project. State and local government agencies are contributing the balance.

Approval by OMB and Congress would end months of red tape at the state and federal levels for approval of funding.

No Levitt accord — yet

By 11 p.m. yesterday the Schaumburg Village Board of Trustees had not yet reached a decision on the Strathmore-Schaumburg single family residential development plans by Levitt and Sons. Discussion had gone on for more than two hours before press time; the decision was to have come later in the evening.

ROSELLE AND WISE roads intersection also will have stoplights soon. This corner is part of the $260,000 signalization program to be completed in Schaumburg within 45 days.

The village will pay 21 per cent of the cost under the TOPICS program.

INSTALLATION OF traffic signals at Schaumburg and Roselle roads has begun. The project is being done under terms of the TOPICS (Traffic Operations Program To Increase Ca-capacity and Safety) in which the village is being assisted with supplemental funds from the county, state and federal government.

Camp planned for handicapped

A place in the woods of their own

Imagine a placid lake, a canopy of green leaves, rustic wooden cabins and blind child touching a tree labeled in braille.

With a little help, a 10-acre camp for handicapped children from the Northwest suburbs will no longer be a dream.

Fall park classes signup under way

Registration for Hoffman Estates Park District fall youth programs such as guitar lessons and aikido, the ancient oriental art of self-defense, is being conducted at the Vogel Administration Building, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

There are 11 fall programs for youngsters and 12 for adults. Memberships in six park district-affiliated clubs are also being taken.

The youth programs include flag football for fourth to sixth grade boys, bowling for fifth and sixth grade boys and girls, arts and crafts for children in grades three through six, guitar lessons for fifth to eighth grade children, recreation clubs for fourth to sixth grade children, aikido for children 9 years old and up and junior high school students.

A special registration will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Vogel Administration Building for modern jazz for girls 4 to 13 years old, baton instruction for girls 5 years old and up and ballet for girls 4 to 13. Registration for playschool has been conducted since August.

For further information call the park district offices at 885-7500.

To be paid off in 10 to 20 years

Trustees decide on bonds to pay off flood control

by TOM VON MALDEN

The Village of Mount Prospect will seek a $2 million general obligation bond issue to pay for the major portion of its flood control program.

The five trustees present at last night's meeting agreed that bonds rather than a utility tax should be used for funding. Trustee Kenneth Scholten was absent.

The bonds will probably be paid in 10 to 20 years. According to Trustee Donald B. Furst a 10-cent per $100 assessed valuation rise in real estate taxes should yield $200,000 a year which would mean the bond could be paid off in slightly more than 10 years.

A SUPPLEMENTAL storm sewer system throughout the village which would tie into the Metropolitan Sanitary District inflow plan is not being considered for funding at this time. The $3.2 million sewer system could become the subject of another bond issue in about 10 years.

According to flood questionnaire results made public last night a slight majority of village residents prefer paying higher real estate taxes to paying a utility tax.

The margin of preference was slight, however. There were 277 residents in favor of the real estate increase option, which would be between 10 and 30 cents per $100 of assessed valuation each year. Another 222 residents said they would prefer a utility tax of up to 5 per cent on electricity, telephone and gas bills.

The village board met last night in special session to discuss publicly which financing method should be used to raise the $4,889,000 needed for approved flood control measures.

OF 9,000 questionnaires distributed along with flood control report booklets, only 678 were returned. Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said the less than 10 per cent return was very disappointing.

Twenty-five residents said they thought the flood control measures should be paid for by special assessments levied against only those who live in the flooding areas. Another 125 respondents wrote in a variety of solutions for financing the program.

Some of these included referendum, general obligation bonds, any type of tax with a three-year life, special tax on renters, utility tax on electricity only, increased water and sewer rates and payment by land developers and the Metropolitan Sanitary District only.

In questions on illegal downspout connections with the sewer systems, 225 homeowners said they would welcome village inspection of their property and 150 of these said they would like the village to disconnect their downspouts. The village has offered to perform the disconnections at no cost to the homeowners.

THERE WAS an even closer division in responses to the question of whether garbage cans or bags should be used in the village. There were 317 in favor of using bags only, while 354 wanted to continue the current use of both cans and bags. If bags only were permitted, 348 persons thought they should buy their own and 259 wanted them delivered either by the village or the scavenger system.

Most (425) of the returned questionnaires were from residences in the central portions of the village. Another large group of respondents was from the area just east of the Randhurst Shopping Center.

According to Eppley's office, the questionnaires also contained many favorable comments on the flood control report itself and many persons answered only the garbage collection portion of the questionnaire.

Many persons expressed concern about the durability of plastic bags, including one former resident of Rolling Meadows (where paper bags only are used) who said animals tear the bags.

Schools, teachers reach tentative pact

Teachers in Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 will complete voting today on a contract that was hammered out with the Dist. 57 negotiating team in a five-hour session Monday night.

The teachers were to have voted after school yesterday, but a delay in printing of the contract terms interrupted distribution of the ballots, according to Mount Prospect Education Association

Pres. David Johnson. Exact details won't be released until the contract is approved.

Both sides have expressed a belief that the contract will be approved. Johnson said, "All indications are that the teachers would accept it." Some teachers voted yesterday and Johnson said preliminary comments were good.

Dist. 57 board Pres. Robert Novy said of the agreement, "It looks good. I think we've got something that is very equitable."

Board member William Holloway, a member of the negotiating team, said, "We're pleased both parties got together to work things out."

Board negotiator Richard Zwieback said, "We feel it's a fair settlement. We really went at it to resolve our differences, and I think we were successful."

DIST. 57 IS one of the last school districts in the area to settle on a contract. Holloway and Johnson agreed it is because the financial situation of the district was unclear earlier.

Johnson said the teachers were unsure in the spring, so they elected to wait until more information was available. The school board had to budget a blind figure, because the contract wasn't settled, but board members have given no indication the arrangement caused any serious problems.

Negotiations have been closed to the public, and only limited statements have been made to the news media. Johnson said figures on the raises should be available later today, as soon as teachers have voted. Both negotiating teams agreed to restrict comment until that time.

Holloway said that if the teachers approve the contract, his committee is ready to recommend it to the board for approval Monday night at the school board meeting.

Board to consider results of survey

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education will discuss the results of the John Muir School questionnaire at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the district administration building, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

Adoption of a junior high school curriculum and discussion of an agreement with the Prospect Heights Park District are also on the agenda.

Rose defeats Kirkwood for Dem committee post

William Rose of Elk Grove Village was elected Elk Grove Township committee member last night after efforts to open voting to all township Democratic organization members failed.

R. Kent Kirkwood, of Mount Prospect, who resigned as president of the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization to seek the Democratic post introduced the motion that all paid members of the organization be allowed to vote.

The motion was defeated 22-10 by a vote of precinct captains only. Kirkwood received five votes in the final election. Rose had 23. And Paul Shaneyfelt received three.

Shaneyfelt and Kirkwood both said they would seek the committee post in the regular March election. Last night's election was because of the retirement of Chester Chesney. Rose will serve until March.

ROSE AND OTHER party members said winning this election would be a definite advantage in March when all registered Democrats will select the committeeman.

There was considerable debate before the vote was taken on whether to open last night's election to all Democrats.

Paul Rettberg, precinct captain, said,

"No matter who is elected, he has to live with the precinct captains and members of the organization. Whoever is committee member would have a better position, having been elected by all members."

Other precinct captains argued for their right to fill the vacancy.

Kirkwood had suggested that an outside person be invited to preside over the election of Chesney's successor. He also objected to what he called a lack of by-laws to govern the filling of the vacancy.

Kirkwood had also suggested that State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a state central committeeman, preside over the election. But Pierce did not attend.

There was an effort to retain Chesney as a vote of confidence for his more than 10 years of service. But he declined.

Rose spoke before the election and said he felt that possibly everyone who was a Democrat should have the opportunity to vote for committeeman. But he added that the precinct captains should decide whether or not to abrogate that right.

Rose was an unsuccessful candidate last year for the state senate against Republican David J. Regner. Shaneyfelt was a one-time candidate for the state senate and township supervisor.

The meeting was held at Aerospace Machinists Hall in Des Plaines.

Preschool sign up will open today

Registration for the preschool program of the Mount Prospect Park District begins at 9 a.m. today, but doors will open at 8 a.m. Registration is at Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple.

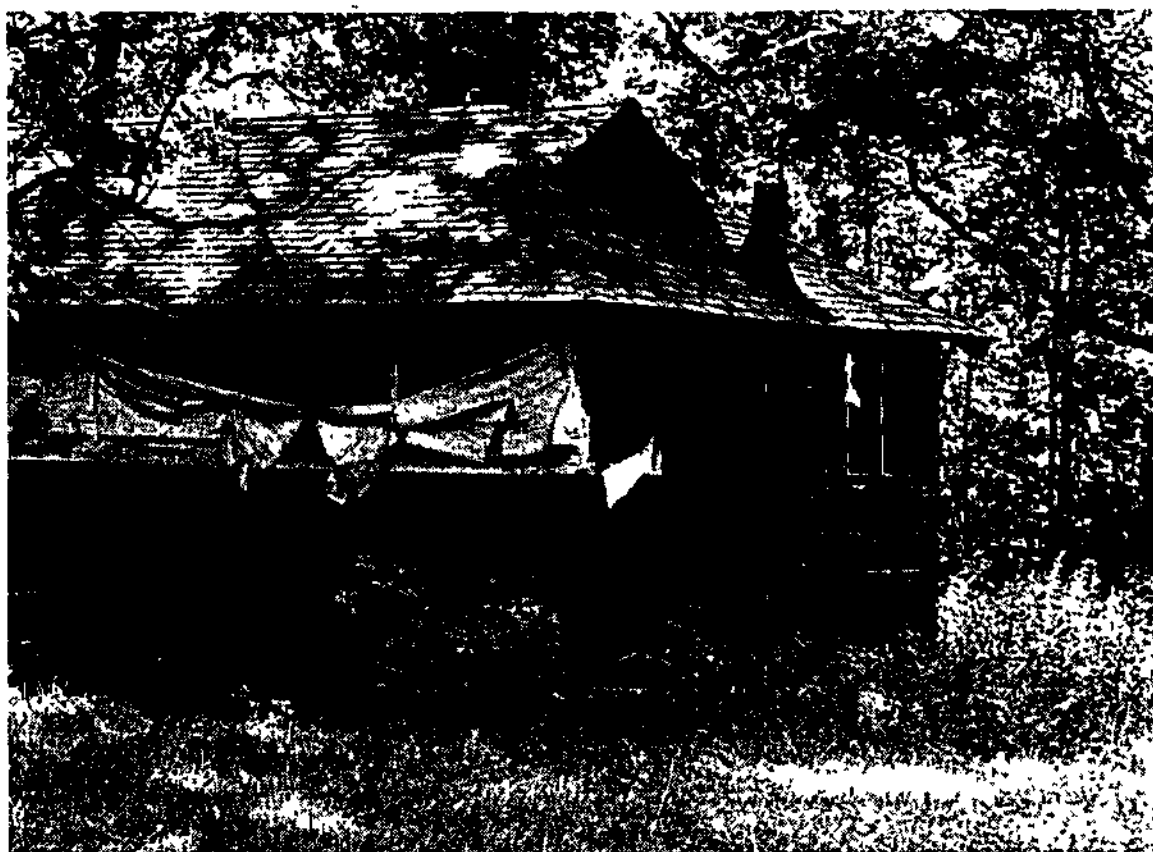

To qualify for the program, children must be four years old by Dec. 1, 1973, but no older than five by September, 1974. Birth certificates of hospital records and proof of residency are required at registration. To aid instructors, mothers must also volunteer to assist twice during the sessions, which are Sept. 25-Dec. 7. Fee is $20 and class limit is 20.

Twelve classes have been set up at Lions Park Center and Mount Prospect Community Center. The program includes group play situations, games, rhythmic activities, stories and crafts.

A SUMMER CAMP for handicapped children was given needs major repairs before it can be used. Located near to the Northwest Educational Cooperative this month. Bartlett, Ill., the camp has cabins for 60 children, a lake The camp has been vandalized in recent years and and a lodge. NEC hopes to open it next summer.

A new 'Walden'

Rustic camp planned for handicapped children

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Imagine a placid lake, a canopy of green leaves, rustic wooden cabins and blind child touching a tree labeled in braille.

With a little help, a 10-acre camp for handicapped children from the Northwest suburbs will no longer be a dream.

The camp, located just east of Bartlett, Ill., was given to the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) by the state this summer.

IT IS PLANNED for use by all handicapped children of school age in the Cooperative's member school districts, but according to NEC officials, it's still a long way from becoming a reality. The camp has been vacant for several years and has been nearly destroyed by vandals. As Jeffery Inkley, NEC business manager put it, "It can't be vandalized any more than it already is — short of burning it down."

The cooperative doesn't have enough money in its budget to hire a cleanup crew or buy furnishings and equipment for the camp but NEC officials plan to start the cleanup job themselves in the next few weeks and are looking for parents, civic groups and other volunteers to donate time and money.

Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center for the retarded, one of the cooperative's education services, said he's going to get "one of those dump trucks and just start pitchin'."

CHILDREN in Kirk Center are going to help too, Sterrett said. He hopes to make landscaping and cleanup work a project for the center's vocational education classes.

NEC officials hope to make the camp available to children with any type of handicap, physical, mental or emotional. They plan to label the trees in large type for children who have poor vision and in braille for blind children. The camp will be equipped with ramps, paths and bath facilities for children in wheelchairs.

"We want to give our youngsters a well-rounded exposure to all environments," Sterrett said. These children usually "don't know a camp experience like regular boys and girls do," he said.

"We want the students to get out there to feel, touch and experience nature," said Jeff Peterson, diagnostician at Kirk Center. Students who have problems learning language will benefit from the camp, he said, because it will "arouse curiosity," and get them to ask questions, talk and learn new words.

Besides vocational projects and learning about nature, camp counselors will also teach students to play. "We teach recreation to our kids because their recreation has basically been before the TV," Sterrett said. "Anything we can do to help our kids become more independent is our real objective," he said. "We want to help them be able to fit in with others and function and become more productive members of society."

THE CAMP HAS five wooden cabins that will house 12 children each, a lodge with a cafeteria and a stone fireplace, and a craft cabin for students working on art projects. The area abounds with trees, brush and wild flowers. Students will be able to use an 11-acre lake that borders the camp site which has been approved by the state for swimming and is stocked with fish.

The camp was originally called "Sunset Camp," and was operated by a private organization in the 1960s as a summer camp for adolescent girls. It was later used as a camp for diabetic children.

Sterrett heard about the camp about a year and a half ago when it belonged to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The department operates the Herrick House, a temporary foster home located on the opposite side of the lake, but had not used Sunset camp for several years.

STATE SEN. David H. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, sponsored a bill in the state legislature earlier this year to give the camp to the cooperative. The bill was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker on Sept. 5.

The camp will be operated through an NEC advisory board chaired by Arthur Aronson, High School Dist. 214 representative at NEC. The cooperative hopes to use the land as a day camp next summer and eventually make it into a 12-month residential camp. It will be self-supporting, said Sterrett, through donations, grant money from the state and student tuition.

PRINCIPAL RON Sterrett, of Kirk Center said the Northwest Educational Cooperative needs volunteers to clean up the special education camp. It's time to "just start pitchin'."

From 50 to 60 cents

School lunch prices rising

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 53 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 90 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

Cost of adult lunches will be higher at Arlington High School than at other schools, district officials explained, because there is a separate serving line for teachers at that school. At other schools, teachers go through regular cafeteria lines with students.

The increases are necessary because of increased prices in staple food items purchased by the district, district officials said. Cost increases range from 7 per cent over last year for sugar to 91 per cent for macaroni.

In other action, the board approved a program to provide free and reduced price lunches for students from low-income families. Under the program a student from a family of four with an income of $5,310 a year is eligible for a free lunch and the same student with a family income of $6,380 a year is eligible for a reduced price lunch.

District officials estimate about 200 students will be eligible for free lunches and about 200 more will be eligible for reduced price lunches.

'Counselor in the park' program curbing vandalism

by JOE SWICKARD

The Arlington Heights Park District was facing a wave of vandalism and throngs of rowdy youths when summer began.

Repair crews were dispatched regularly to clean up the wreckage of vandals. Residents complained long and loud about masses of raucous, abusive youths who congregated nightly. Some parents would not allow their children to go to the parks at night for fear of the teenagers.

By Labor Day, the traditional end of summer, the situation had turned almost 180 degrees. The number of police calls to the parks were down. Windows remained intact and persons who had called to complain before, now called to praise the parks.

Kay Muller, park board vice president, credits the efforts of "counselor in the park" programs in reversing the destructive trend.

THE PROGRAM, began early this summer through the joint efforts of the park district, village government and the village youth council. The action marked one of the first times the village expended funds for a park program.

According to Mrs. Muller, the use of counselors was agreed upon after consideration of other plans including village police in the park or the establishment of a park district police force.

The youth council recommended the counselor be paid through village funds because the problem extended beyond the boundaries of the parks. Council chairman Tom Martin said the program was a continuation of youth-oriented services regularly provided by the village.

The village board agreed and funded the program with $9,000 for a 10-week period. Counselors were assigned on a nightly basis to the six major parks. As the summer progressed, the complaints tapered off as the compliments increased.

MRS. MULLER, also a member of the youth council, termed the program, "dollar to dollar, the best investment the village has ever made."

She said the success of the project could be judged on three criteria: vandalism incidents, citizen reaction and the reaction of the kids who used the parks.

Angelo Capulli, park superintendent, said the incidents of vandalism have decreased over the past two or three months. "We still have some problems, yes. But the last few months it's really down," he said.

"Really now, we haven't had the streaks or rash of broken windows we had earlier. That's really stopped," he said.

JUVENILE OFFICERS also reported a decline in the number of calls and complaints about the parks.

Mrs. Muller contended that persons who had earlier complained bitterly about rowdiness have come forward with praise for the parks and the counselors.

"Now we are getting their unsolicited accolades," she said.

However, she said the reaction of the youths, themselves, was the most important factor.

"I went into the parks at night to get their (the teenagers' feelings). At first they had the cool front. They asked why we had 'narks' (narcotics police) in the parks. Later I went back and found the counselors had become a positive, constructive leader of the kids there," she said.

ALTHOUGH THE counselors were not active in overt drug control efforts, such as arrests, their presence in the parks discouraged rampant drug traffic there, Mrs. Muller said.

She said open and widespread dealing had made Pioneer Park "a reputed hot-bed of drugs" prior to the counselors. The counselors who set and enforced limits on illegal actions stopped the dealing to a great degree, she said.

Mrs. Muller said the counselors "beautifully" fulfilled the council's expectations in providing the kids in the parks with "someone who's a good model for them. Not a policeman and not there just to hassle them. But someone who accepts them for what they are."

She called the program "the right thing at the right time," and points with pride to a letter from a mother thanking the counselors in the parks for "turning my daughter around."

New trash bids; rates are lower

The new firms have submitted bids to collect garbage in Arlington Heights at considerably lower rates than are being proposed by Laseke Disposal Company, the village's exclusive agent.

SCA Services Inc. of Elmhurst and Northwest Disposal Company of Rosemont submitted bids of $5.13 and $3.63 a month respectively. Laseke has proposed a rate of $5.53 cents a month and wants an exclusive contract through 1979. The proposed rate of $5.53 is 14.7 per cent higher than the current monthly charge of $4.82.

The basic contract bid by all three firms is for twice-weekly back-door service.

The two new bids were submitted slightly higher than the $5.13 and $3.63 rate, but Trustee Frank Palmatier adjusted the rates according to a commercial charge of $3.62 a cubic yard. The commercial rate is expected to be approved, the same rate as last year. Original bids were $5.50 and $4.90 before adjusted by Palmatier.

The new rate proposals were revealed at a meeting last night when more than a dozen Arlington Heights residents complained to village officials of the exclusive garbage contract given to Laseke Disposal Company and asked for changes in the collection system.

THE HOMEOWNERS spoke out at a public hearing held to find out what residents want in a new garbage contract. The present contract expires in January and village officials are currently negotiating with Laseke for a four-year pact.

Representatives of the Surrey Ridge West and Greenbrier subdivisions asked that residents be given better service on large items. They said residents of their areas favor paying 10 cents a month for collection of these items on a regular basis as has been proposed by village officials. Residents now can only have large items removed at extra charge or during spring cleanup.

Victor Johnson, president of the Surrey Ridge West Civic Association, said many of the homeowners he represents feel there is no benefit to back-door service since most people leave their trash containers in front of their homes. "There is feeling that we are subsidizing the luxuries of other parts of Arlington Heights," he said.

Other testimony called for a referendum to determine whether the people want curb or back-door service. Others asked a survey be taken to determine the wants of most residents.

Trustee Frank Palmatier said village officials have chosen back door service because "we want a better appearing town... with more attractive neighborhoods."

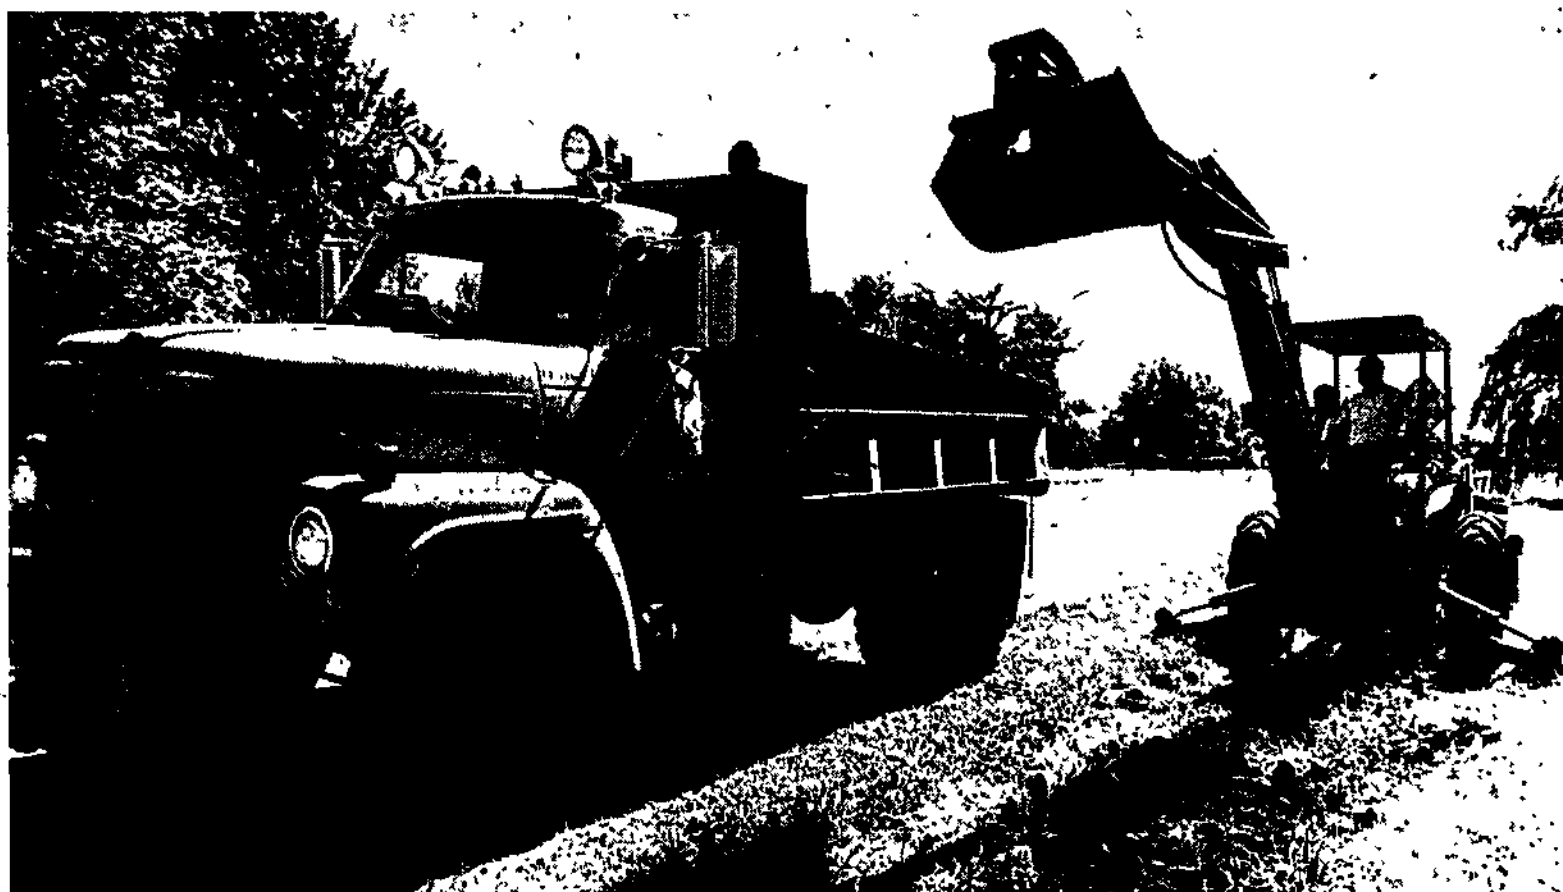

Hersey-St. Viator tickets on sale

In anticipation of an overflow crowd Friday night, tickets for the season-opening football game between Arlington Heights arch rivals Hersey and St. Viator are now on sale.

Beginning this morning at both schools, fans interested in purchasing advance tickets may do so between 8 and 8:45 a.m. at St. Viator and between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. in Hersey's main office. Adults cost $1.25 and students $75.

Tickets will go on sale at 5:45 the night of the game, but to avoid the lines, fans are encouraged to buy their tickets in advance.

The preliminary game will begin at 8 p.m. with the varsity contest scheduled for approximately 8 p.m. at John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

STATE HIGHWAY CREWS widen the ditch along Wilke Road on the east side of Arlington Park Race Track. The crews have been at work on the project since Monday morning. The maintenance work has not affected the flow of automobile traffic in the area, although barricades are set up near the highway.

Arlington Park District moves first in 'battle of parks'

The Arlington Heights Park District has asked for a legal opinion of a recently enacted state law that would enable them to annex land from neighboring park districts.

The land, currently in three other districts, would add almost $32 million in assessed valuation to the financially troubled Arlington Heights district.

In other related discussions, the board members voiced possible tactics for annexing the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.

SPECIFICALLY, the board asked its attorney, Charles Bobbette, to draw up and circulate a memorandum of Ill. House Bill 834 and how it affects the district. The bill permits property owners to disconnect from one park district and annex to another contiguous district more representative of the municipality in which the property is located.

While no directed action was voted, the board was presented with a listing, including assessed valuations, of lands within the village limits that are in other districts. The listed lands, with a total assessed valuation of $31,986,820, currently are within the Mount Prospect, Salt Creek and Buffalo Grove park districts.

The Arlington Heights district has lands outside the village limits, also. The area, the Bruning Industrial site and Meier Road south of Lincoln, are in Mount Prospect and have an assessed valuation of just more than $5 million.

THE MOST valuable section commissioners hope to bring under the district's control is Arlington Park Race Track with an assessed valuation of $18.6 million. It is presently in the Salt Creek Park District, which also serves Palatine.

While not mentioned specifically, the board did make reference to a proposed trade center on a 120-acre site owned by Charles Klehm. The unincorporated land is inside the Elk Grove Park District, but Klehm wants the trade center to be annexed to Arlington Heights.

One tactic was mentioned to insure that the trade center, which could mean $75,000 to the parks, would come into Arlington Heights. The parks would require Klehm to petition the park board for annexation to meet the village's requirements for a planned unit development.

In other action, the board asked Bobbette to seek village cooperation in forcing 3-H Corp. to remove top soil stored on dedicated park land at the Greenbrier retention basin. The move would force 3-H to conform with plans they submitted to the village board for the development with a completed park.

Rose wins Dem committeeman post

William Rose of Elk Grove Village was elected Elk Grove Township committeeman last night after efforts to open voting to all township Democratic organization members failed.

R. Kent Kirkwood, of Mount Prospect, who resigned as president of the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization to seek the committeeman post introduced the motion that all paid members of the organization be allowed to vote.

The motion was defeated 22-10 by a vote of precinct captains only. Kirkwood received five votes in the final election. Rose had 23. And Paul Shaneyfelt received three.

Shaneyfelt and Kirkwood both said they would seek the committeeman post in the regular March election. Last night's election was because of the retirement of Chester Chesney. Rose will serve until March.

ROSE AND OTHER party members said winning this election would be a definite advantage in March when all registered Democrats will select the committeeman.

There was considerable debate before the vote was taken on whether to open last night's election to all Democrats.

Paul Rettberg, precinct captain, said, "No matter who is elected, he has to live with the precinct captains and members of the organization. Whoever is committeeman would have a better position, having been elected by all members."

Other precinct captains argued for their right to fill the vacancy.

Kirkwood had suggested that an outside person be invited to preside over the election of Chesney's successor. He also objected to what he called a lack of by-laws to govern the filling of the vacancy.

Kirkwood had also suggested that State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a state central committeeman, preside over the election. But Pierce did not attend.

There was an effort to retain Chesney as a vote of confidence for his more than 12 years of service. But he declined.

Rose spoke before the election and said he felt that possibly everyone who was a Democrat should have the opportunity to vote for committeeman. But he added that the precinct captains should decide whether or not to abrogate that right.

Rose was an unsuccessful candidate last year for the state senate against Republican David J. Regner. Shaneyfelt was a one-time candidate for the state senate and township supervisor.

The meeting was held at Aerospace Machinists Hall in Des Plaines.

Village pamphlet tells tax uses

The Village of Arlington Heights has mailed 22,000 pamphlets presenting a capsule municipal budget report to homeowners and apartment dwellers.

The mini-report briefly outlines the sources of revenue and a general listing of expenditures by the village. The brochure also gives a thumbnail sketch of how the village and other governments figure, collect and use property tax monies.

According to the report, prepared by village personnel, the "average" family in Arlington Heights spends 42 cents daily for municipal services. The report compares this amount to $7.53 the same "average" family spends on housing daily.

Darryl Kenning, assistant village manager, said the report cost about $1,500 to produce and mail. The postage for the mailing came to somewhat less than $1,000, he said, and printing costs were estimated at $615.

Kenning said no extra man-hours were spent in preparing the booklet. The project was considered part of the regular duties of his office and the finance department, he said.

Student lunches going from 50 to 60 cents

The cost of a student's lunch in High School Dist. 214 will go up Thursday, from 50 to 60 cents for a "type A" meal.

In addition, the cost of lunches for adults eating in the school cafeteria will increase 55 to 70 cents at seven schools and from 55 to 90 cents at Arlington High School.

The price increases were agreed to Monday by the Dist. 214 Board of Education, which also voted to increase prices on sandwiches, salads and other dishes the students can buy separately by 5 to 10 cents each.

The "type A" lunch is a full lunch, including salad and bread, for which the district receives a federal subsidy. No subsidy is received for the individual sandwiches or for adult lunches.

Cost of adult lunches will be higher at Arlington High School than at other schools, district officials explained, because there is a separate serving line for teachers at that school. At other schools, teachers go through regular cafeteria lines with students.

The increases are necessary because of increased prices in staple food items purchased by the district, district officials said. Cost increases range from 7 per cent over last year for sugar to 91 per cent for macaroni.

In other action, the board approved a program to provide free and reduced price lunches for students from low-income families. Under the program a student from a family of four with an income of $5,310 a year is eligible for a free lunch and the same student with a family income of $6,380 a year is eligible for a reduced price lunch.

District officials estimate about 300 students will be eligible for free lunches and about 200 more will be eligible for reduced price lunches.

Village board wrapup

Commuter lot to remain unpaved

The commuter parking lot south of the Arlington Heights Municipal Building will remain unpaved for two more years.

The village board voted an extension of the zoning variation with an eye toward future development of the site as the village Public Safety Building to house the police department and the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

However, in lieu of paving the parking lot, the board directed Village Mgr. L. A.

Church solicitation request deferred

A request by the Unification Church of Chicago to solicit funds in the village was deferred by the Arlington Heights village board.

Village president Jack Walsh said, in delaying the decision, the board could not pass on the application until a representative of the church appeared before the board.

The Unification Church also had asked the board to waive any licensing fees for the solicitation.

Liquor license denied village restaurant

The Arlington Heights village board voted 5-4 to deny a class A liquor license to Leonardo's La Gondola restaurant, 27 W. Campbell St. The vote upheld the unanimous recommendation by the public health and safety committee to deny the restaurant's petition.

The license would permit the restaurant to sell beer and wine with meals.

Frederick St. traffic to yield to Belmont

Traffic on Frederick Street will yield to traffic on Belmont as the result of action taken this week by the Arlington Heights Village Board. A yield sign will be installed at the intersection.

Multi-family housing fight mapped

Homeowners in Arlington Terrace subdivision began formulating plans last night to fight a proposal for multi-family development near their home.

Sceasny Builders of Chicago reportedly is seeking the property for multi-family housing development and will present a proposal to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission on Oct. 17.

The property is located north of Willow Road and east of Waterman Avenue in unincorporated Prospect Heights near Hersey High School.

Members of the Arlington Terrace Homeowners Association are objecting to the plans because they do not want multi-family dwellings in an area zoned for single family housing, according to Rand Burdette of 1821 Stafford Rd.

"We oppose the development of this property as other than single-family residential," he said. "That is the whole flavor of the area."

HE ESTIMATED that houses in the subdivision currently range between $50,000 to $75,000, adding the development would lower their values. Approximately 260 homes are located in Arlington Terrace.

Committees of homeowners will circulate petitions to other homeowners and those in surrounding areas in hopes of preventing possible annexation. Members of the homeowners' association also are planning to invite plan commission officials to small coffee sessions to air their views.

About a year ago, the Arlington Terrace Homeowners Association battled with village officials over the Rand Road study which recommended that property east of Rand Road on Thomas be zoned multi-family.

Members of the association convinced officials to zone the property for town-house units if and when developed.

Robbery suspect awaits initial hearing

A Des Plaines man charged with trying to kill a local druggist Monday during a robbery attempt was taken to Cook County Jail yesterday to await a preliminary hearing.

Wayne Imwood, 21, 1960 Welwyn Ave., will appear tomorrow in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on charges of attempted murder and attempted armed robbery.

Imwood is accused of trading shots with the pharmacist Monday morning at Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, Des Plaines.

Police said a man wearing a stocking mask and baseball cap entered the store and pulled a pistol on the pharmacist, who grabbed his own pistol and opened fire. The handit fired back at the druggist, who police have refused to identify, and then fled the store.

Police, alerted by a nearby postman who heard the shots, captured Imwood about 30 minutes later in a field just south of Golf Road. The postman and other witnesses reportedly told police of seeing a man fitting Imwood's description fleeing south from the store down Broadway on foot.

MONDAY'S ATTEMPT marks the third time the drug store has been hit by a gunman since Aug. 20 when a robber tied up druggist Frank Altmeyer and a customer after forcing the druggist to hand over two bottles of an undisclosed drug.

The store was held up again less than a week later by a gunman who again demanded a quantity of drugs. No cash was taken in either of the robberies.

IMWOOD is currently under indictment by a Cook County Grand Jury on a charge of armed robbery naming him in the July 6, 1972 holdup of the Hynes Pharmacy, 809 Lee St., which netted $200 cash and an unknown amount of drugs.

Imwood is scheduled to face trial on the count Oct. 9 in Chicago Circuit Court. Associate Judge Jerome Burke yesterday ordered Imwood's bond lowered from $30,000 to $10,000.

U.S. funding of Salt Creek Watershed expected soon

Approval of federal funding for the Upper Salt Creek watershed flood-control program reportedly will be granted soon, but federal officials did not specify an exact date.

A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, said the Office of Management and Budget would submit the resolution for funding to Congress by the end of this week. The spokesman said congressional approval would be granted soon.

A spokesman for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service said the agency has heard rumors for several weeks that OMB would soon submit the resolution to Congress. As of yesterday afternoon, the congressional public works committees had not received the resolution, according to the spokesman.

The SCS would be the agency that would administer any federal funding.

OFFICIALS from OMB would not comment yesterday on when the resolution would go to Congress.

Federal funds of $11.8 million are being requested for the flood control program. The funds are about half the money needed for the project. State and local government agencies are contributing the balance.

Approval by OMB and Congress would end months of red tape at the state and federal levels for approval of funding.
